First Place In GOP Race Is Claimed By Stassen

Says He Will Start With 300, Predicts Close Victory in Nebraska Today

Omaha, April 12 (AP).—Harold E. Stassen filed claim to top place in the national GOP presidential race today as he fought a sharp closing battle with Gov. Thomas E. Dewey and Senator Robert A. Taft for victory in Tuesday's Nebraska primary.

With cloudy skies forecast, upwards of 300,000 Nebraskans are expected to vote tomorrow in Democratic and Republican contests.

The majority of them will stamp the GOP ballot for the one of seven men they would like to see nominated for President in the Philadelphia June convention.

The result, expected to govern the State's 15 convention votes on the first ballot or longer, may play an oversized part in the final selection of the nominee.

Claims 300 at Start

Riding the crest of his Wisconsin victory, Stassen took time out in a final round of campaigning here to lay claim to 300 votes on the first Philadelphia test. He predicted his total will be higher than any other candidate's in the scramble for the 548 votes needed to nominate.

In Washington a Dewey campaign manager ridiculed Stassen's prediction that he will have 300 votes on the first roll call. Herbert Brownell, jr., former national party chairman who managed Gov. Thomas E. Dewey's 1944 presidential campaign, said that "To date 337 convention delegates out of a total of 1094, have been selected in 15 States. Governor Dewey has a clear cut majority of these delegates. Governor Stassen has less than one sixth of them. . . .

"It is obvious that Mr. Stassen's statement was made public in a last-minute attempt to gain votes in my native State of Nebraska. His statement is wholly misleading, and I'm sure that Nebraskans will not be taken in by it."

Stassen claimed victory by a close margin in tomorrow's free-for-all contest here. He said he may lag in early returns, but contended he will nose out Dewey and Taft on the final count when the farm vote is in.

He said 19 of the 32 candidates running for the 15 Republican delegate posts favor his candidacy. Taft and Dewey both have claimed a large share of this vote.

Most of the delegate candidates said they will follow the primary results when they cast their first ballot at Philadelphia.

Truman's Name Only One

Democrats elect a 12-vote delegate slate expected to support President Truman for the nomination. Mr. Truman's name is the only one on his party's presidential ballot. Senator Joseph O'Mahoney (D., Wyo.) is the sole contender for vice presidential indorsement.

Dewey, appealing to Nebraska voters in a radio speech from Albany tonight, was on record with a claim that he will emerge as the victor tomorrow.

J. Lee Rankin, chairman of his Nebraska campaign committee, said he is confident the New York Governor will win.

Senator Hugh Butler (R., Neb.), Taft's local manager, said the Ohioan' campaign "has been carried on by Nebraskans and he will be chosen by Nebraskans."

Butler earlier had complained that more than 100 Stassen backers had "invaded" the State to try to turn the result.

The weatherman's forecast of cloudy skies indicated the vote might not reach record proportions despite the hot Republican battle waged here personally by Taft, Stassen and Dewey.

Federal Pay Hike Plans Are Deferred

House Republican leaders yesterday postponed any pay increases for Federal employes until Congress decides on the cost of the new preparedness measure.

Speaker Joseph W. Martin, jr., told reporters after a GOP Steering Committee meeting that the group had determined to defer action on a pay boost "for several weeks" until it is clear what the defense and foreign aid programs will total.

"Military spending is paramount," he said. "We've got to do what is necessary to build a strong national defense. When we see what that requires, then we can determine what else we can do."

Martin said that Chairman Ed Rees (R., Kans.) of the House Civil Service Committee had met with the policy-makers to discuss the pay raise proposals. Rees told The Washington Post he had not made any specific recommendation to the leaders but was simply 'keeping them informed of what we are doing."

A "cost of living" pay increase bill introduced by Rees has been approved by a Civil Service Subcommittee, but has not yet been acted upon by the full group. It would give most Federal employes a flat $468 additional a year, retroactive to April 1 and continue through July 1, 1949.

Rees said he metioned this bill and the fact that some 45 other pay measures are pending before

'Rights' Mean Vote Forfeit, Dixie Warns

Deep South Leaders Fail to Find Way To Carry Out Policy

Atlanta, July 12 (AP).—Deep South Democratic leaders served notice today that any presidential candidate advocating a civil rights program must forfeit Dixie's bloc of electoral votes.

Party chieftains from five States agreed on that, but they said they didn't decide a bigger question—how specifically to carry out their policy.

After an all-day conference behind closed doors, they said further talks would be necessary tomorrow to chart details of a "basic, common course of action."

Is Political Poison

South Carolina Democratic Chairman W. P. Baskin called the parley to decide what to do about President Truman's civil rights program which is political poison to the South.

Party chairmen from Alabama, Georgia and Florida and a representative of Mississippi's chairman were on hand. Representatives from other southern States failed to appear.

Baskin, elected chairman of the conference, read a statement to newsmen that the conference "confirmed the general opinion that no candidate advocating the civil rights program would receive electoral votes of Southern States."

The conferees said later if the national convention insists on the anti-lynching, anti-poll tax, anti-racial discrimination program, and on President Truman's nomination for another term, the Solid South might "just go fishing on election day."

Favors Jackson Conference

The prepared statement said the conference "looked with favor on the states rights conference called to meet in Jackson, Miss., on May 10, to further the cause of states rights."

At the outset of the meeting, the conferees were advised by newsmen of a Midwest Democratic conference resolution calling on the

Showdown On Air Power Due Today

70-Group Backers Seeking to Boost Funds Well Above Truman's Request

By John G. Norris
Post Reporter

Mounting Congressional sentiment for greater air power is expected to send a 2.4 billion dollar special aircraft supply bill to the House floor today and bring an immediate showdown on a 70-group air force.

This development in the battle over the preparedness program came as Defense Secretary James Forrestal told Congress that Russia now knows how to make the atomic bomb but lacks the industrial capacity for bomb manufacture.

Both Republicans and Democrats backed plans to boost plane production funds above President Truman's budget. Many GOP members of the House Appropriations Committee want to vote the additional money.

Ready With Amendment

And a bipartisan bloc from the House Armed Services Committee plans to offer an amendment on the floor for the purpose, if the Appropriations Committee does not act. Representative Carl Vinson of Georgia, ranking minority member of the former group, says he will move Wednesday to add 922 millions to USAF plane rocurement funds.

House Speaker Joseph W. Martin's indorsement of the plan yesterday made it likely that one or the other plans would succeed.

Meanwhile, Army chiefs served notice on Congress that:

(1) Failure of Congress to act on universal military training this year will require a reappraisal of America's entire national defense picture.

(2) If present plans for reliance o na well-trained, up-to-strength National Guard—likely to be achieved only under UMT—have to be scrapped, a further increase i nthe standing Army will become necessary.

Royall, Bradley Testify

Chairman Chan Gurney (R., S. Dak.) of the Senate Armed Services Committee, told reporters that Army Secretary Kenneth Royall and Gen. Omar Bradley, Army Chief of Staff, testified to this effect at a closed-door meeting of the group yesterday.

Forrestal's testimony on Russian progress on the A-bomb was given on the other side of the Capitol. He repeated a prior statement that "as yet" the USSR does not possess the "knowledge and capacity" to make the bomb.

Questioned on this point, he stated:

"I said they do not have the atom bomb. I did not say they do not have the secret of the atom bomb. I am informed by Dr. (Vannevar) Bush that the scientific knowledge and technical procedure in the manufacture of the atomic bomb are known to Russia. But they do not yet have the industrial capacity . . ."

He was interrupted here by Representative F. Edward Hebert (D., La.), who said: "And we have no way of knowing when they will acquire the industry capacity."

"That's right," Forrestal agreed.

Forrestal spoke before the House Armed Services Committee, as that group began hearing on the new arms program. He urged approval of the stopgap draft, universal military training and the "balanced increases" in the armed forces proposed in the Administration's three-billion-dollar supplemental defense budget.

The Defense chief repeated prior warnings against now going beyond the air force expansion asked in that program.

Speaker Joseph W. Martin, jr., announced a decision of the House leadership to give top priority to defense spending following a

Soviet Forces Are Increased In Germany

New Units Reported Mostly Secret Police; Tension Continues

Berlin, April 12 (AP).—Allied intelligence reports said today the Russians were increasing their occupation forces in Germany which entirely surround the city of Berlin.

The increases were said to be mostly MVD (secret police) units concerned with executing new Russian border and traffic controls. German press reports spoke also of new infantry units moved into the Soviet zone.

Several months ago informed estimates placed Soviet troop strength in Germany at more than 300,000, about three times the American total. Present Soviet strength is unknown. American troops in Berlin number about 5500.

Seek to Relax Squeeze

Meanwhile, the western powers were seeking means of relaxing or getting around the Soviet squeeze against them in Berlin, as evidenced in restrictions on traffic and communications between the city and western Germany.

[The United Press said American and British authorities moved today to prevent Russian domination of Berlin by ordering reconstruction of a giant power plant capable of meeting all electrical demands in the American, British and French sectors of the city. The reconstruction will cost 14 million dollars.

[American authorities said technical experts have been studying "disturbances" affecting broadcasts by Rias, American-operated German radio station in Berlin.]

Rail movements out of Berlin remained suspended because of a Soviet demand for inspection.

The Americans started an air freight service to move out household goods of families returning to the United States or being transferred to the American occupation zone.

American officials also tried to persuade the Russians to resume transport of German parcel post from Berlin to western Germany. There are 106 railroad carloads of such packages awaiting shipment.

The Americans also protested the Soviet demand for withdrawal of a five-man United States signal corps team which works on telegraph and telephone lines linking Allied forces with those in western Germany.

The British announced they would withdraw their linemen.

The Americans and British will agree to the Soviet request to withdraw aid stations on the auto

His parents said the bed was moved near the window because the bedroom was being painted.

16 Senators Urge Revised U. N. Charter

Limitation of Arms And Curbs on Veto Demanded by Group

By Ferdinand Kuhn, Jr.
Post Reporter

Sixteen Senators of both parties yesterday demanded immediate revision of the United Nations Charter, with or without Russian consent, together with a world-wide limitation of heavy armaments.

Their demand took the form of a resolution introduced by Senator Homer Ferguson (R., Mich.) with the apparent intention of forcing public hearings on it.

Immediate Action Sought

In the extent of its backing and in the drastic nature of its provisions, the resolution was the most formidable of all the recent signs of discontent in Congress with the workings of the United Nations.

It called upon the President to make the first moves without delay, and to carry out these provisions among others:

(1) Abolition of the Great Power veto "in matters of aggression, armament for aggression and admission to membership in the United Nations." This appeared to be an attempt to do away with the veto on enforcement measures. The United States is already trying to abolish the veto on measures of peaceful settlement, but has clung to the right of veto in questions involving force.

(2) Adoption of the American proposal, bitterly resisted up to now by Soviet Russia, for an international atomic development authority. The resolution also proposed that the United States, Britain and Russia each be limited to 20 per cent of the world's total strength in warships, warplanes and heavy guns. A similar proposal was made by the Soviet delegation at the 1946 Assembly, but was resisted by the United States, partly because it would put a country with mechanized armaments at a heavy disadvantage compared to a country with low industrial potential and yast infantry strength.

World Police Force

3. Creation of a world police force consisting of an international contingent of volunteers from the smaller nations and five national contingents, as reserves, consisting of the armed forces of the three major powers.

There were many other proposals in the long resolution, including a change in the makeup of the Security Council and reorganization or replacement of the present International Court of Justice. Until all the changes become effective, the resolution proposed, "the armed forces of the United States and its weapons of every kind shall be maintained at wholly adequate levels."

The sponsorship of the resolution was mixed. The Republicans who backed it, in addition to Ferguson, were Senators Aiken (Vt.), Baldwin (Conn.), Ball (Minn.), Cain (Wash.), Capehart (Ind.), Flanders (Vt.), Jenner (Ind.), and Tobey (N. H.). The Democrats were Senators Byrd (Va.), Hoey (N. C.), Johnson (Colo.), McFarland (Ariz.), O'Conor (Md.), Sparkman (Ala.), and Stennis (Miss.).

Senator Ives (R., N. Y.) was an original signer but later thought better of it and withdrew his name.

Continuance Of Parley Stirs New Violence

Bogota, Colombia, April 12 (U.P.).—Secretary of State George C. Marshall today blamed international communism for the uprising which interrupted the Pan-American Conference and turnedthis city into a shamble.

Speaking as the stench of more than 400 dead still hung over the ruined downtown section and as firing continued in the streets, Marshall said:

"I the actions we take here regarding the present situation, we must have clearly in mind that this is a world affair, not merely a Colombian or Latin American one."

Marshall made this statement to chief delegates of the Pan-American Conference and repeated it to the press this afternoon.

He made it as the chief delegates decided to carry on with their conference in a demonstration, as the Colombian government put it, that communism cannot triumph over Colombia and the nations of the Western Hemisphere.

Sees Political Maneuver

Marshall made plain this belief, without stating it specifically: that the Communists deliberately planned to break up this conference to embarrass him as author of the European Recovery Plan and to try to influence the Italian elections next Sunday.

(A pooled dispatch sent from Bogota Tuesday night through the State Department said: "There are reports that Soviet Charge d'Affaires Eugene Fedin has asked for his passport following a break in relations. Colombia has no representatives in Moscow now.)

Marshall made it equally plain that this conference must go on here in Bogota or a major battle in the "cold war" will be lost.

As this dispatch is written, heavy firing in the downtown area has twice emptied the streets of the pedestrians who emerged this morning from their homes for the first time since Friday.

In the morgues, the bodies of those killed in the bloody day and

Martin Backs Revised Bill On Home Rule

Davis of Georgia Fears 'Riffraff' Will Run Capital

House Speaker Joseph W. Martin, jr. (R., Mass.), last night strongly indorsed the revised District home rule bill.

"I'm not committed as to details of the bill," said Martin, "but it appeals to me as a very progressive step and one that should be enacted for the benefit of Washington."

"Personally I'd be for the bill," said Speaker Martin, adding that he could not predict what the House would do, but I rather think it will go through."

House District leaders are seeking to take up the new home rule bill at a House District Committee meeting Thursday. The votes were not yet counted to insure District Committee approval, but sponsors indicated strong hope that the bill would be cleared without difficulty.

Fight Looms in Committee

A fight is sure to be made against the bill in the District Committee. Representative James C. Davis (D., Ga.) strongly denounced the home-rule plan. Davis, a member of the District Committee, said: "I'm going to vote against it."

"My main reason is that the District of Columbia was laid out as the seat of the United States Government, where there would be no overlapping jurisdiction by any other government. I have many other reasons for opposing the bill. Washington is a gathering place of radicals, Communists, near-Communists and riffraff of all types and kinds. To put the operation of the seat of the United States Government into the hands of radicals who are always very alert to exercise the voting privilege, when good people are indifferent, would create a situation that would be intolerable. If we ever put the Government here into the hands of the people who would run it under home rule, the Na-

Lewis Ends Coal Strike But Must Stand Trial

Goldsborough Sets Case Wednesday To Determine if He Ignored Court

By Alfred Friendly
Post Reporter

John L. Lewis, winning a $100-a-month pension for retirement-age miners, ordered his 350,000 union members back to work yesterday.

But that action failed to convince Federal Justice T. Alan Goldsborough that Lewis thereby "purged" himself of contempt of court for ignoring a week-old back-to-work order. So the jurist ordered Lewis to stand trial on the charge at 10 a. m. Wednesday.

Press dispatches from the coal fields made it perfectly clear that the miners would go back to their jobs, though there may be some temporary shuffling of the feet here and there.

In the Midwest, some collieries were manned as early as yesterday afternoon. In Pennsylvania it was expected that at least 40 per cent of the men would be in the mines today.

Fine Might Bring Trouble

There were some scattered threats, however, that if Goldsborough fined Lewis for contempt, the men would quit work again.

But Goldsborough—to judge from his actions in court yesterday—appeared determined to hear the contempt case out, without any show of gentleness toward Lewis. He dismissed with sharp and sarcastic words the contentions of Lewis' counsel, Welly K. Hopkins. These boiled down to:

1. A temporary restraining order, served on Lewis April 5 and ordering him to end the strike, was unconstitutional and so was the Taft-Hartley Act under which the order was issued.

2. Neither Lewis nor the union had called the strike, so the order could not apply to them.

3. Besides, Lewis had now called off the strike.

Back-to-Work Order Issued

As had been forecast, Lewis issued back-to-work orders to the miners less than an hour before his court case was called up. He acted after he had agreed to a pension plan proposed by Senator Styles Bridges (R., N. H.), newly appointed third trustee of the miners' welfare and retirement fund. The settlement was reached in an early morning conference between Bridges, Lewis and Ezra Van Horn, the operators' trustee on the fund. Van Horn dissented, but a two-thirds vote carries on the trustee board.

The conference was short, from 8:30 to about 9:15. Then the three trustees met the press in an office of the United Mine Workers building. A 1500-word statement by Bridges and a detailed summary of the plan were already mimeographed and ready.

The plan Lewis accepted was vastly less favorable than one which he could have had last November. At that time, the former third trustee, Thomas E. Murray, New York financier, proposed a plan for pensions for all miners over 60 who had worked as recently as July 1, 1942. He proposed that 20 million dollars be set aside from the welfare fund as an initial amount from which to make disbursements.

Van Horn objected, but Lewis might have concurred and the 2 to

Herschel Johnson Is Nominated as Envoy to Brazil

President Truman yesterday nominated Herschel V. Johnson to be Ambassador to Brazil.

Johnson, a diplomatic career officer from North Carolina, has been serving as deputy United States representative to the United Nations Security Council. He succeeds William D. Pawley at Rio de Janeiro, who resigned recently because of ill health.

Pawley has been in Bogota assisting Secretary of State Marshall at the Inter-American Conference.

Fall on Ice Is Held No Basis For Suing Property Occupants

Persons who fall on icy public sidewalks cannot ordinarily sue occupants of abutting property for damages, the United States Court of Appeals ruled yesterday.

The court interpreted portions of the District of Columbia Code to mean that the duty to clean public sidewalks rests upon the District Government. The court said that under the common law also, the duty of removing snow from sidewalks is not imposed upon property owners.

The decision was made in a $45,000 civil suit brought in behalf of Harlan Radinsky, 16, of 219 T st ne., who fell in front of an apartment building owned by Ernest M. Ellis and Irene K. Ellis. The Appeals Court agreed with the District Court that there was no liability on the part of the defendants.

The D. C. snow removal law, as explained by the upper court, requires one having charge or control of real estate abutting a paved sidewalk to remove snow from it within the first eight hours of daylight after its fall or to insure sure footing by scattering sand or ashes on the slippery surface.

But, another part of the law says the District Commissioners must remove snow and ice when the owners of abutting property have failed to do so in response to the statute, in which event the District's Corporation Counsel is directed to sue the property owners for the expense of removal and may exact an additional $25 penalty.

The court opinion, written by Justice Wilbur K. Miller, then says, "It is held by the weight of authority that an individual does not have a cause of action against one who neglects to aid the municipality in meeting its obligation."

Whether the injured person can maintain a suit against the District if it doesn't clean the walk without reasonable delay was not discussed by the court.

The Appeals Court also said that the District Court should have declared a mistrial at the end of the opening address by the plaintiff. The plaintiff's lawyer told the jury that the defendant had liability insurance. This was improper, the court said.

Secrecy Pledge Broken

U. S. Aide Admits Divulging Export Plans on Fats and Oils

By John W. Ball
Post Reporter

Miss Dorothy Bayles of the Commerce Department admitted yesterday she divulged Government export plans for fats and oils last September to an employe of a fats and oils industry association two days ahead of their official announcement.

When she finished, members of the Special House Committee investigating speculation in commodities and leaks of Government information, sympathized with the witness and expressed praise for her record of efficiency as a Government employe.

She revealed the figures to a long-time friend, Miss Geraldine Canning, an employe of the Institute of Shortening Manufacturers. Miss Canning formerly had worked with Miss Bayles at Commerce Department, she said.

Miss Canning promised, Miss Bayles said, not to "tell anybody." Miss Bayles was shocked to learn later, she said, that Miss Canning had immediately telephoned her boss, Eugene W. Brockenbrough, secretary of the Institute, who was attending a convention of his group at Memphis, Tenn. Brockenbrough, in turn, told the secret to his 26 members.

Brockenbrough also gave the figures to James William Joseph Stedman, at that time with the Fats and Oils Branch of Production and Marketing Administration of the Agriculture Department, who was in Memphis to talk to the Institute. Stedman, recognizing them as accurate, discussed them with delegates from the rostrum. Later he learned that the figures had not been officially announced, and returned to the convention to ask that they ignore them.

In the meantime, prices of lard and other oils had gone up the full limit on the commodity exchanges.

Miss Bayles told the committee she made up her mind to tell her story, as the result of two stories in The Washington Post:

PEOPLE In The NEWS

Herschel V. Johnson, Diplomat, Familiar With Trouble Spots

Herschel V. Johnson, President Truman's nominee for the post of Ambassador to Brazil, is a skilled career diplomat who made up his mind what he wanted to do before he got out of college.

Now in his twenty-eighth year in the diplomatic service or allied fields, Johnson has been in many trouble spots.

He served as first secretary under Ambassador Dwight W. Morrow in Mexico City when Morrow was trying to smooth relations between the two countries knotted by decades of misunderstandings.

After a stint in the State Department's Division of Mexican Affairs, as chief, Johnson went next to England, where in the hectic prewar years he served variously as "second man" and acting Ambassador.

In October 1941 President Roosevelt named Johnson to the post of Envoy Extraordinary and Minister Plenipotentiary to Sweden, which became America's best European listening post during World War II.

Johnson described this job as "a hot spot during the war with the enemy all around." He was on hand to see Swedish opinion eventually force an end to export of ball bearings to the Germans, and it was to Johnson and the British envoy in Sweden, Sir Victor Mallet, that Heinrich Himmler made his unsuccessful surrender offer.

Next came the opportunity to help ease the first growing pains of the United Nations Security Council. Johnson was named deputy United States representative with the rank of Minister, serving first with Edward R. Stettinius, jr., then, when Stettinius resigned, acting in his stead until Senator Warren R. Austin took his place about six months later.

Johnson, now 54, is thick set, of ruddy of complexion, with gray eyes and sandy hair. A native of Atlanta, Ga., he has kept some Southern inflections in his speech. After growing up in North Carolina, where he was graduated from the University, Johnson taught French at the Chamberlayne School for Boys in Richmond, Va., for a year—until 1917, when he enlisted in the regular Army. Serving first as a lieutenant, then an infantry captain, Johnson fought with the Sixth Division in the Vosges Mountain battles and in the Meuse-Argonne offensive in World War I.

Persistent in his support of Southern cooking "if it's done right," bachelor Johnson takes delight in furnishing his living quarters wherever they may be to his own tastes.

Rebels Seize 2 Costa Rican Cities, Report

Managua, Nicaragua, April 12 (U.P.).—Reliable sources here reported today that right wing rebels in Costa Rica, using Guatemalan equipment, had captured the Atlantic port of Limon in a surprise amphibious attack, and simultaneously had seized the key city of Cartago.

These sources said a well-armed force of 400 uniformed men landed at Limon from a Guatemalan ship, and swept through the city. Later, two Guatemalan bombing planes reportedly landed at Limon.

There were no details of the capture of Cartago, which is 15 miles southwest of the Costa Rican capital at San Jose.

House Gives Top Priority To Defense Expenditures

meeting of the GOP steering committee yesterday.

And when asked about the plans of a big Air Force bloc to seek immediate expansion to 70 air groups, Martin replied:

"I, of course, would be for that."

Representative Vinson said his amendment would provide 922 million dollars in contractual authority to boost USAF plane procurement funds to $2,037,000,000.

"We want an immediate showdown on the 70-group Air Force issue," said Vinson.

Speaker Martin said this plan was not discussed at yesterday's steering committee session. A GOP policy decision on the preparedness program—whether to back the draft, UMT and other phases of the Administration proposal will await the conclusion of the hearings before the Armed Services Committee, he said.

But when questioned about the 70-group air force proposal, Martin said:

"Most of our boys are for that. It didn't come up for a vote today. Probably a vote is not necessary."

The House Appropriations Committee will vote this morning on an Administration proposal that all funds carried in the 1949 budget estimates for plane procurement be made immediately available. Total funds budgeted for Air Force and Navy aircraft include $1,976,000,000 for procurement plus 300 to 400 millions for research. Approval of the estmate now would save three or four months in getting the big aircraft program rolling.

In opposing further expansion of USAF funds at this time, Forrestal suggested that Government controls over industrial production would become necessary should the armament program be greatly increased.

Awaits Recommendations

House committeemen repeatedly pressed him for an expression of his views on a 70-group air force, which USAF chiefs say is essential to American security. Forrestal did not oppose or support this goal and said he would be guided by recommendations from the Joint Chiefs of Staff this week.

But he insisted that one service should not be expanded without considering the needs of the others.

In this connection, Senator Gurney revealed that Army chiefs had testified that they had recommended a 822,000-man Army as essential to security. This would have provided 12 Regular divisions in the United States, he said. But when Forrestal cut this to 782,000 officers and men, the Army—unlike the Air Force—decided to go along and back it, it was said.

Questioned on Changes

Chairman Walter G. Andrews (R., N. Y.), of the House Armed Services Committee questioned the defense officials on some of the changes he had made in the draft bill sent up from the Pentagon.

Forrestal said he agreed with Andrews' plan to defer conscientious objectors rather than put them in "concentration camps." He indicated that he opposed Andrews' proposal to give peacetime draftees and volunteers the benefits of the wartime GI Bill of Rights, on the grounds of cost.

Royall told Andrews that his exemption of veterans with from 12 to 18 months' service from any further military obligation in peacetime would cut drastically the number of former GIs required to join the National Guard and Reserves and make it impossible to build those services to desired strengths.

Marshall Blames World Reds For Bloody Riots in Bogota

night after the uprising started Friday are now being piled layer on layer. A United Press correspondent found 400 bodies in one morgue alone. And bodies are still coming in.

Every top member of the United States delegation is convinced beyond reasonable doubt that the Communists incited the uprising to break up the Pan American Conference.

(A dispatch to the State Department in Washington quoted the official Bogota radio as saying that Colombia broke relations with Russia as the result of the uprising. But hours later this had not been confirmed in dispatches from Bogota.)

Chief delegates will meet tomorrow to formalize their decision to continue the conference. It will be streamlined and will be cut down in length. But they are determined to continue it to an end.

To Report to Congress

Representative Donald L. Jackson (R., Calif.), a member of the United States delegation, plans to return at once.

The United States is bringing in special radio equipment to insure contact among scattered delegate personnel here in event of further troubl which might disrupt telephone service.

Nonessential members of the United States and other delegations are being flown home.

Well-informed sources say the body of Jorge Eliecer Gaitan, Liberal leader whose assassination touched off the uprising, is hidden at a private home in the suburbs, awaiting quiet so it can lie in state and then be buried beside Simon Bolivar in Balivar Square.

Bank remain closed until normalcy is restored.

It is expected that when the conference next meets a blistering resolution against communism will be passed.

Heavy Firing Echoes News

Heavy firing broke out again today soon after the government announced that the Pan-American Conference would be continued.

The newspaper El Tiempo said police found in the rags of blood-stained clothing torn from the lynched assassin of Gaitan, doucments bearing the name Juan Roa Sierre. The documents were an army record book and a police certificate.

El Tiempo said the assassin's body was so mutilated it was impossible to determine whether the photographs found on the documents were of him. The assassin's weapon, a .32 caliber nickel-plated pistol, also was found, El Tiempo said.

Reserves 100 Plane Seats

(Secretary Marshall reserved 100 seats in Pan-American planes for returning Americans, Miami, Fla., reported. The State Department in Washington said this was a precautionary step.)

Conservative estimates put the damage done by mobs to business establishments at 20 million dollars in addition to damage to public buildings. It was estimated it would take five years for complete restoration.

Some Agents "Taken Alive"

The government radio said that two Russians and 13 other foreign agents had been caught "flagrantly" during the uprising. It added that some of them were taken alive.

The mob ruled Bogota from 2 p. m. Friday to 6 a. m. Saturday.

Two main facts emerge from the uprising:

1, An ill-fed, ill-clothed, ill-housed mob of men, women and children emerged on the streets like people from a lower world, completely savage. They looted wantonly and in their frenzy they killed each other, for loot or in blood lust. That was how most of the casualties occurred.

2. But the burning of government buildings and churches, in the belief of nearly everybody, was organized and directed by Communists.

Cite Organized Pattern

Those who are convinced the red hand of communism was at work point to the organized pattern of the burning. It was not the haphazard burning of a mob. The arsonists set fire to the Communications Ministry, the Justice Ministry, the Foreign office, the Interior Ministry, the State Department Building, all vital for lawful administration.

During the uprising the Confederation of Workers declared a general strike. It was petering out of its own accord today.

United States Ambassador Willard Bealuac arrived at his office at 8:30 a. m. for the first time since Friday morning.

month, and two others, Senators Johnson and McFarland, supported the unsuccessful Taft amendment to cut the amount.

At least three other resolutions on the United Nations are already in the hopper of the Foreign Relations Committee—one by Flanders, to call a special assembly for considering the quarrel between the United States and Russia; one by Senator Glen Taylor (D., Idaho) for a special conference to revise the Charter; and another by Ferguson for strengthening the United Nations.

The Foreign Relation Committee probably will be reluctant to hold public hearings on the latest resolution, especially in view of its crowded calendar, but if the pressure from the 16 signers is great enough it will be hard to resist.

Ferguson, the chief sponsor of the new resolution, described it yesterday as "the new answer to Soviet Russia: a guaranteed peace if the Moscow rulers want it, or, if they have other designs, a mutual defense pact of the rest of the world in the name of a higher law, with an impartial world judge and an unchallangeable world policeman."

Other sponsors issued statements praising the resolution. McFarland of Arizona described it as the result of "a nation-wide grass roots movement," already supported by important organizations. O'Conor of Maryland said the United Nations had "demonstrated its inability to cope with major emergencies," and added that "the longer this situation continues the more our people lose faith in it."

Advantages to Soviet Cited

Flanders said the resolution was "better than an expression of pious hope."

"Russia has a real stake in the undertaking if she can be brought to see it," he said.

"Free access to the Mediterranean and free access to all-year seaports would meet with no difficulties if arranged for by a world organization stronger both in a military sense and any other essential sense than any single action of which it is composed."

Czechs Held Planning To Evacuate Germans

Prague, April 12 (AP).—The Czechoslovakian government is pursuing a determined policy to move German population out of Czech border areas. The policy will continue until the last 200,000 have been moved.

(Czech refugees said in Munich, Germany, today that a forced migration to the interior of Czechoslovakia and possibly to Russia was planned. The refugees told German police that 180 railroad cars were standing by, ready to carry off the Sudeten Germans.)

13 American Warships Will Pay Lisbon Visit

Lisbon, Portugal, April 12 (U.P.).—The United States Embassy informed the Portuguese government today that 13 American warships, headed by the battleship Missouri, will call at Lisbon for several days in June on a good-will mission.

It will be the third American naval force to visit Portugal since war's end, and the most powerful. The announcement said two admirals and 15,000 American personnel would be aboard the ships.

Czechs Say Reds Worse Than Nazis

By Security Council

U. S. Urges Probe Into Czech Coup

Lake Success, April 12 (AP).—The United States today suggested that the Security Council name a subcommittee to look into charges of Soviet help in Czechoslovakia's communis coup.

The proposal appeared headed for a Soviet yeto, however.

United States delegate Warren R. Austin announced the full support of the United States Government for the plan to hear evidence and witnesses.

The Prague regime has rejected a special council invitation, arguing that the change in government was an internal affair and the United Nations had no business discussing it.

Austin said "this refusal to participate does not give me a feeling of confidence that all is well. If this regime had a clear conscience, surely it would seize eagerly the opportunity of presenting its side of the case to the council."

Russia's Andrei A. Gromyko hung out the veto warning in a 62-minute speech devotedly mainly to an attack on what he termed United States interference in Europe.

The Council adjourned without setting any date for resumption of the debate on Czechoslovakia.

Three Leaders Who Fled Country Reach Washington

By The Associated Press

Three refugee Czech leaders reached this country yesterday and reported that the Communist oppression in Czechoslovakia is "worse than under the Nazis."

The three included Dr. Joseph Lettrich, president of the Slovak Council and the Slovak Democratic party. They flew here from England where they had fled after escaping a Communist guard in their homeland.

The others are Dr. Jan. Ambrus, a general in theSlovakairforce and a member of the Slovak Council, and Dr. Lettrich's brother, Julius Lettrich, an army captain.

The future of Czechoslovakia, Dr. Lettrich told reporters, "depends on the governments of your democratic nations.

Part of World Promlem

"The problem of Czechoslovia is the problem of Europe and the whole democratic world. They must be solved together."

Dr. Ambrus was questioned for two days at the Brattislav internment camp before managing to escape, he said.

All three declined to tell how their flight was managed.

They estimated that 3500 Czechs have fled the country, including 22 members of parliament and the secretaries-general of four of the non-Communists political parties. These are the Social Nationalists, the People's Party, the Slovak Democratic party and the Social Democrats. The latter have since merged with the Communists.

Dr. Lettrich said it is impossible to say whether a government in exile would be formed.

Plan Help for Refugees

"Our first goal now is to help our people who have escaped," he added.

The three agreed the season for the death plunge of former Premier Jan Masaryk was "Communist oppression."

There was no other way for him to be faithful to his Democratic principles," Dr. Ambrus added.

The Lettrichs plan to continue to Chicago to the home of their sister, Mrs. Anna Sharova. Dr. Ambrus plans to go to New York, but all hoped to confer here first with former Czech Ambassador Jurak Slavik, who resigned after the Communist coup.

Their Pan-American plane came to Washington after bad weather blocked a scheduled landing at New York City.

Italy to Get 31 Million of Nazi Gold Loot

By The Associated Press

Italy's anti-Communist parties got more campaign ammunition yesterday. The western powers decided to return 31 million dollars in gold looted by the Nazis.

The State Department said the British-French-American gold commission in Brussels had approved an Italian government claim and would return this gold soon.

The announcement obviously was another of the long-planned moves by the western powers to strengthen Italian government forces in the closing days of the hectic political fight for control of Italy.

The nation-wide election next Sunday will decide whether Italy stays in the western block or the Communists take over.

Italy is the only country so far to get two dividends from the 320 million dollar "gold pot" in Brussels. This represents gold stolen by the Nazis from European countries they occupied. The American Army discovered it in April, 1945, in the salt mines at Merkers, Germany.

In the first allocations last October, Belgium was awarded 100 million dollars worth; the Netherlands, 39 million dollars; Austria, 29 million dollars; Italy four million dollars, and Luxembourg, $2,200,000.

500 Greek Guerillas Pursued After Attack

Athens, Greece, April 12 (U.P.).—Dispatches fro Patras said today that troops and gendarmes were in pursuit of an estimated 500 guerillas who attacked in the Peloponnesos yesterday as King Paul and American Lieut Gen. James A. Van Fleet arrived in the area.

The guerillas attacked Kalavryta, in the north central Peloponnesos, early Sunday, reports said, and a day-long battle followed.

Italian Popular Front Rally Bombed; Strike Is Uneventful

Rome, April 12 (AP).—A one-hour nation-wide general strike and fresh violence in the south hit Italy today—just six days before the general elections.

The strike was called by the Communist-led General Confederation of Labor (CGIL) in protest against the violent death of 35 Sicilian workers and labor leaders during the past two years.

Reports reaching Rome indicated the strike went off in a quiet and orderly fashion. There was no general paralysis of activity.

Rome's Factories Idle

In Rome, many stores remained open. Factories were idle. Busses and streetcars halted, but telephone service was not disrupted.

The pre-election violence flared at Lizzanello, in the southern province of Lecce. A bomb tossed into the midst of a Communist-led Popular Front meeting killed Cesare Trove, 56, and Sesare Longo, 16, and wounded 20 other persons.

Posters Attack Scelba

In Rome the Communists put up posters attacking the Minister of the Interior, Mario Scelba. They showed Scelba surrounded by 35 crosses—the victims for whom the strike was called. Police were ordered to tear the posters down.

Later Scelba countermanded the order and permitted them to be displayed.

Both will speak Friday in Naples.

Premier Alcide de Gasperi, winding up his campaign efforts, let it be known he would accept a challenge to debate with Palmiro Togliatti, Communist Party chief in Italy. Both will speak Friday in Naples.

De Gasperi demanded before an audience of 100,000 in Florence tonight that Italian Communists disarm.

Communist Stronghold

Florence is a Communist stronghold with a Communist mayor, and the large turnout was believed to indicate resurgent government strength in northern Italy.

"Since we are sure of winning the election, can we be sure Togliatti will renounce his plot with the Cominform?" De Gasperi asked. He requested the Moscow-trained Togliatti, since "you know Russian very well, to ask the Soviet Union to join France, Great Britain and the United States in renouncing Trieste."

Brittania's Tribute

TO ROOSEVELT—On the third anniversary of his death yesterday, a statue of Franklin D. Roosevelt was unveiled in London. Standing before it are King George and Eleanor Roosevelt; behind it, the Royal Marines salute

Roosevelt Altered Moral Axis Of Mankind, Says Churchill

London, April 12 (AP).—Winston Churchill, standing beside Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt, demanded tonight that Britain and America face their postwar difficulties with the courage of Franklin D. Roosevelt.

The British Commonwealth will march resolutely beside the United States and "thus all will come right," Churchill said.

"I shall not hesitate to affirm that he was the greatest American friend that Britain ever found, and the foremose champion of freedom and justice who has ever stretched strong hands across the oceans to rescue Europe and Asia from tyranny or destruction.

"But I will go further, and place on record by conviction, shared I believe by the whole British Empire and its commonwealths, that in his life and by his action he changed decisively and permanantly the moral axis of mankind by involving the new world inexorably and irrevocably in the fortunes of the old. His life must thehefore be regarded as one of the commanding events in human destiny.

"As a result of his personal influence and exertions, the principle of 'one world'—as his opponent Mr. Wendell Willkie called it—in which all the men in all the lands must play their part and do their duty, has been finally proclaimed and comprehended."

Britain's wartime Prime Minister spoke at a dinner climaxing a day of tribute by his country to his American colleague, who died three years ago today at Warm Springs, Ga.

He followed Mrs. Roosevelt, who unveiled a memorial statue of her husband earlier in the day before King George VI and a crowd of silent thousands in Grosvenor Square.

Mrs. Roosevelt said at the dinner, given by the Pilgrims Society, that she was humbled and comforted. Among the guests were Princess Elizabeth, Prince Phillip and Prime Minister Attlee.

"Remember," Churchill said solemnly, "that our troubles now are less than those which President Roosevelt faced and which he overcame."

London rarely has seen such an occosion with the King, Queen, lords, bus drivers and housemaids striving spontaneously to make one woman feel she was welcome to these isles.

Even late tonight the Strand and the Thames embankment were crowded with thousands who pushed around the Savoy Hotel on the chance they might see Mrs. Roosevelt.

King George said the statue would be a "permanent reminder of our comradeship with the American people in the dark days of the war."

"It will remind us of the importance and value of that comradeship," he said. "We shall, as we look at it, renew our pledge to continue to share with that people the ideals of peace and freedom for which President Roosevelt strove with such untiring faith."

After the unveiling, Churchill walked slowly around the base of the statue, his head characteristically thrown forward. He paused a moment. Then he brushed at his eyes with his hands.

1000 Pay Tribute At Hyde Park Home

Hyde Park, N. Y., April 12 (AP).—President Truman and Secretary of State Marshall joined today in tribute to Franklin D. Roosevelt.

Their messages, sent to memorial services for the late President, were read by former Postmaster General Frank Walker to 1000 persons gathered at Roosevelt's ancestral home on the third anniversary of his death.

"With every passing year," Mr. Truman wrote, "we see in clearer perspective the impact which Franklin D. Roosevelt made on the life of the time in which he was called to national and to world leadership."

Marshall said Roosevelt's "outstanding quality of leadership was possibly the decisive influence in the conduct of the war."

Trygve Lie, Secretary-General of the United Nations, appealed for "an end to war talk" and urged the great powers to return to the path of peace envisioned by Roosevelt.

Henry Morgenthau, jr., Secretary of Treasury under Roosevelt, told the crowd the late President was "the living, breathing symbol of freedom in all its aspects and forms."

Tito Charges Allies Keep Trieste Upset

Belegrade, April 12 (AP).—Yugoslavia tonight accused American and British authorities in Trieste of formenting unrest there to prolong their occupation of the free territory.

The government of Marshal Tito made the charge in a 28-page note to the British Embassy, with a copy to the American Embassy. Neither embassy commented.

This was the latest in a series of charges and counter-charges over Trieste, which Yugoslavia has sought. On March 20 the Wesern Allies proposed the free zone be returned to Italy.

The Yugoslav note accused the British-American military government in Trieste of being "directly responsible for the permanent terroristic attacks of fascists on the democratic population of Trieste."

It said they maintained the largest police froce in the world in relation to the population, and that 50 per cent was recruited from prewar fascist policemen.

The note virtually rejected all previous official protests by the United States and Britain. It did not mention the proposal that Trieste be given back to Italy.

highway that links Berlin with the west. The British acceptance reserved the right to reestablish the station next winter and reminded the Russians the British intend to stay in Berlin.

Traffic Grip in Austria Tightened by Soviet

Vienna, April 12 (AP).—The Russians today established two new check points for traffic of western powers through the Soviet occupation zone in Austria.

One was at St. Poelten, 35 miles west of Vienna along the American corridor road to Linz and Salzburg. All traffic was being stopped, but there was no indication that non-Russian personnel was being held up for any long period.

Another check point was established 10 miles outside Vienna on the road to the British and French airport at Schwechat. No incidents were reported.

British authorities said they would remain firm in their refusal to show identification cards of military personnel to Soviet guards at check points.

Russia Claims Right To Keep Danube Ships

London, April 12 (AP).—Russia today claimed the right to keep as war booty the Danube River ships it seized in Austria in 1945.

Soviet Deputy N. P. Koktimov lodged the claim as the Big Four Foreign Ministers' deputies wrangled for two hours without progress over the terms for an Austrian peace treaty.

Chinese Red Successes Laid To Government Muddling

Nanking, April 12 (AP).—Aroused members of the National Assembly today blamed government inefficiency and muddling for Communist successes in China's civil war.

The government, they said, has "concealed the truth, spurned our offers of assistance, and refused to give us arms when we wanted to fight."

But Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek told members of his ruling Kuomintang Party they must present a united front, particularly during the current assembly session.

Members who attended the weekly meeting said the generalissimo told them the tumultuous assembly session would end April 24 as schedled—and there would not be another until three months after total suppression of the Communists.

The assemblymen spoke in answer to Defense Minister Pai Chunghsi's report on the military situation. He said China, with its population of 450 million, should have 45 million trained men in case there is another war.

Communists cut the railway east of the important rail junction of Chenghsien today, forestalling government attempts at reinforcement. Pro-government dispatches reported reservees from Kaifeng, 40 miles to the east, were reported turned back at the broken line.

16,000 Students Go On Strike in China

Peiping, April 12 (AP).—Sixteen thousand students of 11 north China universities went on strike today.

At National Peking University, the faculty joined the student body in the strike, aimed at exacting government pledges against violence and illegal arrests of students.

Halder Reveals '38 Army Plot

Nuernberg, Germany, April 12 (AP).—Gen. Franz Halder, former chief of the German General Staff, told a U. S. War Crimes court today a group of top German army officers had plotted to overthrow Hitler back in 1938.

Halder told the court trying 14 former high Nazi military leaders that the Potsdam and Berlin garrisons and a tank division were ready to occupy the Reich's chancellery and arrest Hitler's government.

Orders already had been given to start the coup "when the world was surprised by the news that (British Prime Minister Neville) Chamberlain and (French Premier Edouard) Daladier would come to Munich for discussions with Hitler," Halder said.

Jews Battle Arabs In Hills of Judea

Jerusalem, April 12 (AP).—A Jewish-Arab battle raged tonight in the Judean hills. The Jews appeared to be in full control of the eastern half of a 20-mile stretih of vital supply highway in the area.

The Arab villages of Deir Yassin, Kastel and Kolonia in the area have been captured by the Jews. The Jews are holding fast in their colonies of Matza, Kiriat Abavin and Arza.

The Arabs blazed away tonight with rifle, automatic weapon and light artillery fire in an attempt to cut through these position, which flank the mountain road over which the Jews must send supplies to food-short Jerusalem.

Although the heaviest fighting was concentrated in the Judean hills, bitter battles were reported today in other sections of the Holy Land.

Haganah, the Jewish army, said Arabs were beaten back at Ramat Yehhanan.

Palestine police said Jews attacked the Arab village of Kfar Mashir Abdin.

The British army said a shipload of about 600 Jewish refugees without visas to enter Palestine had been intercepted and were being escorted to Haifa.

Despite the widespread fighting, official reports said three Jews and one Arab were killed during 24 hours of fighting. This raised to 2774 the unofficial total of fatalities since last November.

Haganah escorted photographers to Kastel today to prove its claims that the hilltop fortress five miles west of Jerusalem remains in Jewish hands. Kastel commands a part of the Jerusalem-Tev Aviv highway.

The photographers found the village in ruins. Among the Haganah forces holding the fortress were a number of girls.

Nearby Azra, formerly a workers' hospital, also presented a grim picture of ruin, having been hit by Arabs' 25-pound shells last Saturday.

Zionist Council Votes 'Independence' May 16

Tel Avin, Palestine, April 12 (AP).—The Zionist general council today to proclaim the independence of the Jewish state in Palestine on May 16—immediately upon the end of the British mandate. They also voted to apply to all governments for recognition.

Discussion continued today on the setup of an "internal authority" to handle the administrative affairs of the Jewish area until May 16. This internal authority later would become the provisional government of the Jewish state.

U. N. Truce Unit Urged For Palestine

Lake Success, April 12 (AP).—Canada suggested today that the Security Council send a United Nations commission to Palestine to supervise a truce.

Authoritative sources said the suggestion by Gen. A. G. L. McNaughton, chief Canadian delegate, was received favorably by several delegates.

Council members met at United States delegation offices for their fourth closed conference on Palestine. The delegates are seeking some way to end hostilities before the U. N. Special Assembly on Palestine convenes Friday in New York.

Little Hope was held that they would discuss trusteeship before the Assembly opens.

Warren R. Austin, United States delegate, was said to have declared he would refer the McNaughton idea to the State Department.

Under the McNaughton plan the Security Council would order a truce by a resolution. This resolution would lay down the terms for the Jews and Arabs. The Security Council would send a commission to the Holy Land to supervise the truce.

while on a date. She wanted to correct that error, she said.

2. On April 4, The Post in an exclusive story, said that Miss Bayles had denied she had revealed the figures—that she had said only that she had told Miss Canning that the announcement would be released soon. She decided then, she said, that she would tell the whole story, and called Chairman August H. Andresen (R., Minn.) of the committee to do so.

She had been aroused when the fats and oils market made a sudden upturn on September 5, she said, the day the first meeting to set the year-end allocations had been held.

At that time she called Miss Canning to see if the institute knew of any leak or any other reason for the rise in prices.

Later, when the allocations virtually were aproved on September 8, she called several members of the fats industry to report that a release of the figures would soon be made. That is a service, she said, the department gives industry members.

Among those she called was Miss Canning. In a discussion she inadvertently told the actual figures, and then begged Miss Canning not od ivulge them.

She said Miss Canning told her at dinner on September 30 that she had told her boss, "Then I took a nose dive," Miss Bayles said.

"If I hadn't talked too damn much, I might be mad," she said, nervously twisting her fingers.

In earlier testimony Brockenbruogh had admitted the figures had come from Miss Bayles. But he also insisted that the approximate amounts had been known by industry people before that.

On September 6, he said, he had overheard some men "apparently interested in cottonseed" discuss the figures in the dining room of the Baker Hotel in Dallas. He was behind a post, he said, and they were on the other side. He wrote down the figures they discussed on a napkin, but later threw it away when he got the figures in Memphis.

"I have the deepest sympathy for you," Representative Mitchell Jenkins (R., Pa.) told Miss Bayles.

"I think we'll all agree that Miss Bayles has been a very efficient and trustworthy public employe," Andresen added. His words were echoed by Representative John W. McCormack (D., Mass.).

After the hearing Andresen said that investigation is proceeding into an "earlier leak" of the fats and oils figures.

the committee. They include proposals for raises of as much as $1000 a year.

The $468 pay boost would cost about 630 millions additional, Rees stated.

Speaker Martin said the decision to defer any action on pay boosts until the size of the defense budget is determined applies to other spending proposals.

Asked about the Federal aid to education program, he said this was not discussed at yesterday's meeting but that the principle would apply here.

Senate Passes Bill On A-Board Loyalty

Measure Requires That FBI Reports Be Made Available to Joint Committee

By Mary Spargo
Post Reporter

The Senate passed and sent to the House yesterday a bill requiring that FBI reports on any one nominated by the President to the Atomic Energy Commission be made available to the Senate members of the Joint Committee on Atomic Energy.

The bill is one of the congressional replies to President Truman's executive order instructing officials of the executive branch to reject congressional demands for confidential loyalty check information about Federal employes.

The President's order followed a refusal by Secretary of Commerce W. Averell Harriman to turn over a letter from FBI Chief J. Edgar Hoover regarding Dr. Edward O. Condon, director of the Bureau of Standards, in answer to a subpena from the House Committee on Un-American Activities.

Ban Rejected

Chairman Bourke B. Hickenlooper (R., Iowa) served notice as soon as the President's order was issued that his group would not accept the ban. Hickenlooper said the committee had every right to know all about every person nominated to the atomic energy post.

The Senate act was introduced by Senator William F. Knowland (R., Calif.). Knowland said the Senate should act at this time when no nominations are pending in order to avoid casting any reflection upon any individual who might be nominated or renominated at a later date.

Knowland said the Joint Committee has no reason to think an FBI check on any present member of the commission is necessary. His bill would authorize the Senate members of his group to call for such a check in the event any present member is renominated, as well as for checks on new nominees.

Senator Brien McMahon (D., Conn.) was defeated in an attempt to amend the bill to exempt Chairman David E. Lilienthal and other present members of the commission from inquiry in the event they are renominated when their terms expire this summer.

Senate Sole Arbiter

The bill makes the information available only to Senate members of the committee because it is the Senate alone which acts on presidential nominees.

McMahon maintained the measure was unconstitutional because it is an infringement upon the executive powers of the President.

Speedy passage in the House is expected. There is little question that the measure will come smack up against a presidential veto when it reaches the White House.

Nebraska Democrats Asked For Strong Truman Turnout

Los Angles, April 12 (AP).—Nebraska Democrats were urged today by their state chairman, William Ritchie, to vote tomorrow for President Truman and Senator O'Mahoney.

Ritchie, here to attend a Jackson Day dinner, issued this statement:

"A good showing is important naturally and Democrats in the rural districts where the primary is open should not for any reason call for Republican ballots.

"Party officials are ured to get out the Democratic vote regardless of the lack of real contests in the Democratic primary."

Another Choice Folly, Ellender Tells Truman

By The Associated Press

Snator Ellender (D., La.) said he told President Truman yesterday it would be "folly" for the Democrats to choose another candidate for President at the party convention in Philadelphia.

President Truman was told yesterday by Pleas Greenlee, Democratic State chairman for Indiana, that the party organization in that State is "strong for him."

"We think the President is doing a wonderful job," Greenlee told White House reporters

Stassen Claims First Place

are dry enough. There were snow flurries in sight for northwestern Nebraska tonight, but the prediction for tomorrow was "partly cloudy and a little warmer."

Most of the State's GOP politicians were crediting Senator Arthur Vandenberg of Michigan, who says he doesn't want the nomination, with at least fourth place in tomorrow's voting. A finish of this sort, in the absence of any campaign for him, would spurt the Senator's standing as a possible darkhorse nominee.

Despite his second-place run in Wisconsin, few here thought Gen. Douglas MacArthur would run better than fifth in the seven-man contest.

Mrs. Mary E. Kenny, State chairman of MacArthur for President Clubs, predicted only that the general will receive "a big vote" in the primary.

Calling Nebraskans "independent thinkers," she said she does not believe they will be "high-pressured or propagandized."

There has been no campaign under way here for Gov. Earl Warren of California or House Speaker Joseph Martin of Massachusetts.

The polls open at 8 a. m. and close at 8 p. m., local time. Eastern Nebraska is in Central Standard Time, western Nebraska on Mountain Time.

In his closing appeal to an audience at an Omaha high school, Stassen pegged his repeated demand for outlawing of the Communist Party to the recent revolt in Bogota, Colombia. The talk was broadcast State-wide.

The former Minnesota Governor noted in a prepared address that the Communists were operating as a legal party there. He blamed them for the assassination of a Liberty Party leader which he said fanned rioting.

Stassen said President Truman and Governor Dewey don't agree with him that the Communist Party should be outlawed.

"But I believe they are wrong," he said.

"In our own country, particularly in New York," he continued, "it is evident that the Communists have used every legal advantage and at the same time continued to work underground, so that today more than 40 per cent of the known Communists of the Nation are in New York."

Martin Given Standing Ovation by House For His Efforts in Settling Coal Strike

By The Associated Press

House Speaker Joseph W. Martin jr. (R., Mass.), received a standing ovation yesterday from the House for his efforts to end the coal strike.

Republicans and Democrats alike stood and applauded when Representative Bender (R., Ohio) referred to Martin as "a statesman who stuck his neck out when other men were afraid to stick their necks out."

Martin met with John L. Lewis and others last Saturday and paved the way for an agreement ending the miners' pension dispute.

Representative Church (R., Ill.): "Martin's stature as a statesman is today the highest in the Nation."

Other Republicans joined in the tributes.

"A new star has risen in the political firmament," said Representative McDowell of Pennsylvania.

"Martin's success has put him in the front rank of prominent Americans," said Representative Brehm of Ohio.

Representative Keefe (R., Wis.) said the people of the Midwest are looking to Martin "to take the lead in the solution of some other problems that need attention."

A Democrat, Representative Rankin of Mississippi, said Republican politics "are showing signs of improvement."

And Representative Sabath (D., Ill.) said that if the country must "suffer the misfortune" of having a Republican President, Martin would be the best choice.

Terms of Miners' Accord

Yesterday's agreement on miners' pensions represents a compromise of proposals made by John L. Lewis in negotiations with coal operator Ezra Van Horn.

Here is what Lewis had asked:

Pay—$100 a month.

Qualifications—60 years old and with 20 years' service in the mines, not necessarily consecutive.

Eligibility—all members of the United Mine Workers, including those long-since retired or those working for wagon mines and small surface operations not under contract with the union and not contributing the 10-cent tonnage royalty paid by the big operators.

Amount available for payments the first year—unspecified, but up to the full resources of the fund, about 50 million dollars to 60 million dollars a year.

Here is what he got in the tentative agreement proposed by Senator Bridges (R., N. H.) as the neutral trustee or "umpire" between himself and Van Horn.

Pay—$100 a month.

Qualifications—62 years old with 20 years' service in the mines.

Eligibility—all members of the United Mine Workers who retire after May 29, 1946—the date when the Krug-Lewis agreement was signed, ending the 1946 strike. A five-cent tonnage royalty was provided in that contract for welfare and retirement. The amount was boosted to 10 cents when the private operators recovered their mines from government operation last July.

Amount available for payments immediately—five million dollars.

Lewis Ends Coal Strike

1 vote would have put the plan in effect. But Lewis refused.

Bridges' plan, accepted by Lewis after a month's strike which cost the miners an estimated 108 million dollars in wages, provided pensions only for miners 62 and over, and only for those who had worked as recently as May 29, 1946. Bridges proposed that five million dollars of the fund be set aside to pay for the pensions.

Though the plan was only a shadow of what Murray offered, it was believed also to be only a start. For the resolution adopting it made clear it was subject to change in all aspects.

Observers felt confident Lewis would try to better it as the months went on. They guessed he would seek a much higher royalty payment, to support the welfare fund, when he negotiates for a new contract with the mine operators this summer. The payment is now 10 cents per ton of coal mined.

Lewis Wires Miners

Lewis promptly wired the miners:

"Pensions granted. The agreement is now honored."

A letter by Lewis to the miners on March 12, saying the contract was being "dishonored" through failure to set up a pension plan, started the walkouts.

Van Horn said he opposed the plan because:

1. Sixty or 62 years was too low a figure to begin retirement.

2. There was not enough money in the fund to pay pensions of $100 a month.

3. It provides pensions to employes of employers who are not contributing to the fund.

The press conference was over by 9:45. The scene then shifted to District Court. The procedings were on a motion requiring Lewis to show cause why he should not be punished for contempt of court, having ignored a temporary restraining order of the court.

That order, issued April 3 and served on Lewis April 5, called on Lewis, the union and all its officers and agents, to stop encouraging, aiding or even permitting the strike. It told them also to instruct the miners "forthwith" to return to work.

Lewis was not present; Hopkins and other union lawyers represented him.

Assistant Attorney General H. Graham Morison pressed the charge. He recited the history of the walkout and said Lewis and the union had done nothing to obey the mandate.

Hopkins followed with part of his argument. Justice Goldsborough said he believed that both questions of law and fact were involved. The fact to be determined was whether there was a strike and whether the union was responsible for it.

Lewis Affidavit Read

Hopkins read an affidavit of Lewis which insisted that the miners had acted only voluntarily and as individuals, in protest at the state of affairs reported to them by Lewis' letter of March 12. No strike had been "authorized, called, recommended or suggested, directly or indirectly," he said.

But then, switching ground, Hopkins contended that there had been "a full, complete and good faith compliance" with the court's restraining order when Lewis ordered the men back to work yesterday morning.

He began to read another telegram Lewis sent to the miners yesterday. It said in part:

"Your voluntary cessation of work should now be terminated . . ."

Laughter Greets Statement

A bellow of laughter went up from the courtroom.

". . . and your protest ended. It is the belief of the international union and your officers that the production of coal should be resumed forthwith. Therefore, you are now officially advised that you should return to you usual employment immediately upon receipt of this telegram."

Was Hopkins arguing, Goldsborough asked, that the union had lost control of the miners on March 12 and had now regained control?

That was not a fair statement, Hopkins replied. But, he said several times, the result of the message would surely be that the men would return.

Morison told Goldsborough this was not full compliance with the restraining order, for Lewis had not acted "forthwith."

Goldsborough asked Hopkins if he believed that the telegram constituted full compliance. What about the period April 5 until that morning?

Contention Is Rejected

Hopkins repeated that Lewis and the union had not been in contempt. The Taft-Hartley Act, he went on, provided that all injunctions be lifted immediately the dispute was settled, and it was now settled; the men were going back to work.

That sort of argument, Goldsborough snapped, "has never been proclaimed in a court of law since Hammurabi on up. The court won't consider seriously a defense of this sort . . .

"The court rules now that the fact—if it is a fact—that an agreement has been reached that may result in the miners going back to work has absolutely nothing to do with the proceedings of contempt. That's final and the court will hear no argument about it!"

Goldsborough then set the time for the trial. Later, when Hopkins moved for a week's delay, Goldsborough shouted, "No debate and no argument!"

On Wednesday, Lewis himself must appear.

Goldsborough also extended the restraining order for another 10 days.

ODT May Cancel Rail Curbs Today

The Office of Defense Transportation said yesterday that it will wait until today before deciding whether to cancel rail traffic curtailment orders. First, Director J. Monroe Johnson said, he wanted to see how many miners returned to work.

The orders, to go into effect Thursday midnight, would reduce traffic on coal-burning roads to 50 per cent of normal.

As Vibrant Energy is Released To Every Muscle, Fibre, Cell

Do you get up in the mornings still tired, feel down-and-out all day? Have you checked-up on your blood strength lately? Overwork, undue worry, cold, flu or other illness often wears down the red-blood-cells.

Every day—every hour—millions of tiny red-blood-cells must pour forth from the marrow of your bones to replace those that are worn-out. A low blood count may affect you in several ways: no appetite, underweight, no energy, a run-down condition, lack of resistance to infection and disease.

To get real relief you must keep up your blood strength. Medical authorities, by analysis of the blood, have by positive proof shown that SSS Tonic is amazingly effective in building up low blood strength in non-organic nutritional anemia. This is due to the SSS Tonic formula, which contains special and potent activating ingredients.

Also, SSS Tonic helps you enjoy the food you eat by increasing the gastric digestive juice when it is non-organically too little or scanty—thus the stomach will have little cause to get balky with gas, bloat and give off that sour food taste.

Farm Price Support Bill to Be Prepared

Secretary Anderson Agrees to Back Measure But Objects to Parity Formula

Secretary of Agriculture Anderson agreed yesterday to prepare a bill to extend present price supports for agricultural products for another year.

Anderson's agreement was made over his protests that a new parity formula, upon which price supports are based, should be enacted. Such a formula is included in a new long-range farm bill, now before the Senate Agriculture Committee.

Anderson appeared on behalf of the bill yesterday, although he disagreed with several of its provisions. Among these is one which would permit the choice of two parity formulas (1) the present parity formula, or (2) one using a moving base period of the most recent 10 years. The highest formula would be used.

Wants Single Formula

Anderson said that only one formula should be set up.

"Farmers cannot afford to ignore the criticism of parity prices as now calculated," Anderson told the committee. "Nor can they afford to revise the parity formula in such a way as to open themselves to the charge that they are simply using the highest possible measure in each case.'

Anderson advised that wage rates paid to hired farm hands be included in any new parity formula on which farm prices are based.

(Parity is a price for farm products based upon their relationship with the prices of goods farmers must buy. The farm price support program is based on parity. Many farm prices are now maintained by the Government at at least 90 per cent of parity.)

Anderson declared that price supports at 90 per cent are too high. He also urged that only farmers who agree to limit their plantings to Government acreage quotas should be granted price supports.

Senate leaders expressed themselves as believing that the new long-range bill may pass this session. House agriculture leaders, however, are reportedly against any idea of rewriting farm legislation this session.

Martin Backs Rule Measure

tion's Capital wouldn't be fit for a buzzard to fly over."

Representative George J. Bates (R., Mass.), ranking member of the District Committee, said he is still open-minded on the bill but that one of his main objections to the earlier plan had apparently been met in the new one. Bates had protested the section of the first home rule bill that would have permitted public borrowing up to 10 per cent of the assessed valuation of taxable property here. The new bill reduces the borrowing limit to 3 per cent and makes clear that Congress would have to approve borrowing projects before and not after they are submitted to a referendum of the voters.

Bates said he felt the change would be all right, but he still prefers a pay-as-you-go policy for public construction. He said he is not opposed to the home-rule idea as such.

"I'm not yet convinced," Bates added, "that there is a widespread demand for this bill on the part of the people of the District."

Representative J. Glenn Beall (R., Md.) said he had not had a chance to study the new plan and is not ready to commit himself, but may vote for the bill.

At least 9 of the 24-member House District Committee are now counted in the lineup for the bill. At least 6 are regarded as fairly certain to oppose it. Of the others, 2 wer out of town yesterday and some said they wanted more time to study the plan.

Representative John L. McMillan (D., S. C.), former chairman of the District Committee, and the one member of the home rule subcommittee who did not support the new plan, said that he does, however, favor giving Washington a non-voting delegate in the House of Representatives.

As for a referendum to approve the home rule plan, McMillan said: "I think it should be submitted to the citizens of the whole United States, because the people of the whole country have an interest in the Nation's Capital."

McMillan said his "inclination is to vote against bill."

Representative Oren Harris (D., Ark.) said he, too, is inclined to vote against the bill. Like McMillan, Harris said: I have long since been a strong advocate of letting the District have a delegate in the House of Representatives."

Representative James C. Auchincloss (R., N. J.), chairman of the Home Rule Subcommittee, said that a delay in obtaining copies of the bill from the printer had led him to postpone its introduction in the House until Wednesday.

Meanwhile, District Commissioner Guy Mason gave a qualified approval of the proposal.

Commissioner Mason said that he would agree to the idea of a referendum, as now proposed. Declaring "I've always favored voting representation in Congress," Maso nadded that even the representation of a nonvoting delegate would be an advantage.

Mason cited as his main objection to the bill the fact that persons who are not domiciled in the District would still be able to vote for members of the council and of the Board of Education.

Maj. Gen. U. S. Grant 3d, chairman of the National Capital Park and Planning Commission declared yesterday he thought all the changes in the Auchincloss home rule plan are "a great improvement."

Grant added, however, that he was doubtful whether the city manager form of government proposed in the plan would work. He said that he believed the Nation's Capital ought to have as chief executive a high government official, with entre to congressional committees and the various branches of the executive department.

A. J. Driscoll, a member of the Board of Public Welfare, said yesterday that he thought the referendum proposal "would be a democratic way of handling things." Driscoll, who said he believed a number of changes had been needed in the original bill if it was to get through Congress, added that he was in favor of the delegate proposal.

The D. C. League of Women Voters yesterday pledged all-out support of the revised plan and expressed the hope that all Washingtonians will urge its passage at this session of Congress, then work to make the referendum an overwhelming indorsement of democracy.

Mrs. John F. Thomas, league president, said the group feels that members of the District subcommittee should be complimented on the admirable way in which they have incorporated the suggestions made at the hearing into the revised plan.

Senate Unit Backs School Pact in South

The Senate Judiciary Committee yesterday voted six to two to approve a compact of 14 southern States to pool their resources to build schools of higher education.

The measure to give consent to the compact simply allows agreements for such regional schools. It make no reference to whether such schools are planned as Negro or white institutions.

The inter-State compact was drawn up at the Southern Conference of Governors at Tallahassee, Fla., last February in order to meet legal requirements that Negroes be afforded equal educational with persons of different color.

The constitution requires Federal consent for all such interstate "treaties."

In the 14 states which are party to the compact, Negroes are not admitted to all—white state universities. The compact would split the financial burden of supporting a number of supporting a number of regional professional schools.

Southern governors, Congressmen and civic leaders, including several Negro educators, testified at hearings early this year that the compact will enable Southern states to support higher education facilities none can individually supply.

Some opponents of the compact charged that it is intended to perpetuate segregation.

Voting against approving the compact were Senators Homer Ferguson (R., Mich.) and William Langer (R., N. D.).

Republican Senators E. H. Moore Oklahoma, Alexander Wiley of Wisconsin, and Forrest C. Don-Democrats in voting for the bill. The Democrats were Senators J. William Fulbright of Arkansas, James O. Eastland of Mississippi anad Pat McCarran of Nevada.

Union Racket Case Delayed; Kelly Death Ruling Refused

The Federal Court trial of a group of labor figures in a four-year-old racket case was delayed yesterday until Wednesday.

Judge Alexander Holtzoff granted the three-day postponement because of the illness of a defense attorney.

The court also made two rulings regarding one defendant who is mysteriously missing. He is Larry Kelly, alleged ringleader in the case and former head of the District of Columbia area council of the AFL Hod Carriers' union.

Holtzoff granted a government request for a spearate trial for Kelly, if he is ever located. But he denied a defense motion that Kelly be declared a war casualty and legally dead.

Joseph V. Moreschi, international president of the AFL Hod Carriers' union; his son and two other national officers of the 400,000-member union are among those charged.

The 10 defendants, including one woman, are accused of helping to loot the war-swollen treasuries of three union locals of mere than $75,000. The locals involved are those here, at La Plata, Md., and at Quantico, Va.

An indictment returned against the group in 1944 after a full year's grand jury investigation said the money was used to: (a) finance an elaborate night club in downtown Washington, (b) buy large stocks of whisky and champagne, (c) pay for lavish improvements to the union men's private homes, and (d) build workers' housing accommodations, the rents for which the defendants kept.

School Segregation Ends in Carlisle, Pa.

Carlisle, Pa., April 12 (AP).—The Carlisle school board decided today to end segregation of white and Negro pupils—a practice that goes back to Civil War days, when Carlisle wa san underground station for fleeing slaves.

"There has been a feeling on the board for several years that it was an infringement of the law and moral rights," said Dr. Ray McCullough, president of the school board.

Starting with the next school term, 123 elementary Negro pupils will be distributed among all classes.

Trial of Hollywood Writer Under Way

Bias Accusation Made Against Justice Curran

Trial of the Hollywood writer, John Howard Lawson, for refusing to tell Congress whether he was a Communist began here yesterday with a long day of legal wrangling.

Justice Edward M. Curran ruled out defense points as fast as Lawson's lawyers brought them up, and today probably will move on to pick a jury to hear the case in the District Court.

The stocky Lawson is a former president of the Screen Writers Guild. He wrote the script for "Blockade," "Action in the North Atlantic" and other film hits. Last fall he was one of 10 Hollywood notables haled before the House Un-American Activities Committee. When asked whether they were or ever had been Communists, all 10 refused to answer. They claimed the committee had no power, under our Constitution, to ask about their political beliefs. For this, all were indicted for contempt of Congress.

Chief Defense Counsel Robert Kenney opened the trial yesterday with a charge that Justice Curran was biased against Lawson. Kenney said the judge handled cases of this kind for the Government when he was District Attorney here, and asked that the case be sent to another justice. Curran refused, saying that the defense has shown no ground for charging him with bias, and that the move was too late, anyway.

Defense Counsel Charles Katz then moved to change the trial to some other city, saying people here are afraid of the House committee, because of its antiCommunist inquiries. Again Curran refused, saying he had no doubt Lawson could get a fair trial in the District Court.

The defense then attacked the District jury system, saying there is no set policy on who shall serve and who shall be ruled out. People with bad handwriting, poor people and laborers, and people not born in this country are often turned down, Lawson's lawyers said.

Prosecutor William Hitz showed that in the juries now serving there are beauty shop workers, porters, laborers and people out of work. After argument, Curran upheld the District jury system and ordered the trial to go ahead today.

The prosecutor plans to call only two witnesses—Representative J. Parnell Thomas (R., N. J.), chairman of the House committee, and Robert E. Stripling, its counsel. The defense, however, has called a long list of witnesses from Hollywood, and in all the trial is due to take about two weeks.

If found guilty, Lawson would face up to a $1000 fine and four to 12 months in jail.

Called 'Closed'

Arlington Convention Criticized

What he termed the "closed nature" of Arlington County's Democratic convention, to be held June 1, was attacked yesterday by Arthur F. Souther, Americanism chairman of the Virginia Sons of the American Revolution.

Souther charged that:

1. Federal Government workers in the county are eliminated from participating in the convention under the Hatch Act, since all convention participants are termed "delegates."

2. The convention is aligned with the Virginia anti-Truman revolt, with convention members required to sign a pledge to "abide by the action of the State Democratic Convention" on July 2 and "any subsequent State Democratic Convention" in which they vote as delegates.

The Arlington party convention will be held in the Rucker Building in Clarendon.

Souther also attacked a $5 filing fee to be required of convention participants, pointing to neighboring Fairfax County where the Democrats are holding a mass meeting to select delegates to the State convention and are requiring no such fee. He said he had wired Mayor Horace Edwards of Richmond, State Democratic chairman, asking by what authority the Arlington committee imposed the fee.

Arlington convention members also must swear they supported all County Democratic candidates in the last election and be passed upon by the County Democratic executive committee.

Harrison Mann, chairman of the executive committee, said the $5 fee is "customary in Arlington" for those filing for other than public office. The money is used to defray local convention costs, he added.

Mann also said the Arlington committee had "no intention" of eliminating Federal workers by use of the word "delegates" in the filing declaration.

Falls Church Water Service Rate Raised

The Falls Church (Va.) Town Council last night increased the charges on installation of water meters from $45 to $65.

This will not affect current applications, councilmen said, but will apply on all future requests for water service.

The council also voted for Falls Church to adopt dyalight saving time when and if the District of Columbia does, and designated April 15 to May 15 as "Cleanup Month."

A request that property opposite the proposed Teen Canteen be rezoned for business use was denied.

The property is zoned 1-A, residental. The owner, Mary E. Rawls, requested that it be zoned commercial. Council members objected to the petition on the grounds that the property could be used for any purpose.

Requests for additional sidewalks near the Oak st. School and Southwest st. were put under study by a council committee.

Nobody Wants to Run For Boyce, Va., Offices

Office of recorder is vacant.

Hyattsville Lions To Entertain Mayors

Venezuela's Head To Visit Truman

The White House announced yesterday that the President of Venezuela and his wife will come to Washington and join President Truman on a trip to Bolivar, Mo., for the July 5 unveiling of a statute to Simon Bolivar, the Venezuelan national hero.

Mr. Truman will speak at Bolivar. Presumably the Venezuelan President also will be heard.

Psychiatry Short Of Social Workers

U. S. Public Health Official Says 10,000 Are Needed in Comparatively New Field

Richmond, Va., April 12 (AP).—There is need for more workers in the comparatively new field of psychiatric social work, a United States Public Health Service official said today.

Daniel O'Keefe, consultant in psychiatric social work of the service's mental hygiene division, said there now are slightly more than 1000 workers in this group.

"I feel that there is a real need for something like 10,000 workers of this type," he said.

O'Keefe said psychiatric social work's essential purpose is to serve persons with mental or emotional disturbances.

In an address at the seminar in psychiatry and neurology at the Richmond Academy of Medicine, O'Keefe reviewed the Army medical program's use of the psychiatric social worker. At the close of the war the Army had about 700 persons classified as psychiatric social workers, stationed in hospitals, disciplinary barracks and consultation clinics, he said.

Airfield Held No. 1 Naval Academy Need

Annapolis, Md., April 12 (AP).—Rear Admiral James L. Holloway, jr., fired another shot in the Naval Academy's campaign for an airfield today.

In a welcoming talk to the academy board of visitors he put "highest priority" on the "acquisition and development of a first-rate airfield" where Midshipment can receive aviation training.

But the academy superintendent declared such a field is only one of several pressing needs.

The number of Middies at Annapolis si due to increase shortly, he said, and present facilities will be inadequate.

Expects More Than 3500

The Bureau of Naval Personnel, Holloway told the board at its opening session, estimates academy enrollment "will level off" at slightly more than 3500 Midshipment. This would insure that about half of future career officers will be academy graduates.

At the same time, the Navby places the capacity of Bancroft Hall at 2500 men. Bancroft is the huge dormitory in which all Midshipment live.

The current enrollment is 2800, who are being housed "by efficient utilization of available spaces," Holloway said.

"By accepting highly undesirable conditions of crowding, the berthin gand messing facilities can accommodate about 3400 Midshipmen," he added.

Rooms to Be Converted

Club and faculty rooms will have to be converted to classrooms and laboratories to take care of an enlarged brigade next term, the admiral said, and "these undesirable conditions must be accepted until such time as additional constructed is effected."

Holloway made only an indirect reference to the proposed airfield site at Sandy Point when he referred to a report by the 1946 Board of Visitors. This, like the 1947 report, asserted "aviation indoctrination" is essential for midshipmen.

The House Armed Services Committee has approved $12,000,000 for a field at Sandy Point, but residents of the area are opposed.

Eleven of the 18 board members arrived this morning for the annual academy inspection. Five Senators and two Representatives are expected to join the group later.

'Think Peace,' Women Advised

Baltimore, April 12 (AP).—"We must keep thinking peace and keep our powder dry," Mrs. J. L. Blair Buck, president of the General Federation of Women's Clubs, urged delegates to the annual Maryland convention today.

She said war must be considered possible but not inevitable despite the "seriousness" of present-day international conditions.

Mrs. Buck advised the club women to support a resolution being introduced in the Senate on a proposed revision of the United Nations Charter. Aim of the move is to strengthen the international organization, she said.

"It is up to the women of the country to guard against the war hysteria which is so insidious and which can sweep us into conflict before we realize what is happening," Mrs. Buck declared.

Cutters Bringing In Disabled Tug, Tow

Norfolk, Va., April 12 (AP).—Two Coast Guard cutters were en route to Norfolk tonight with the disabled toug Carlotta and four LCMs (landing craft, medium) in tow.

The cutters Marion and Madrona were dispatched to the tug's assistance after she reported she had lost the LCMs she was towing off Wolf Trap Light in Chesapeake Bay.

The cutters and their tows were expected to reach Norfolk shortly before midnight, Coast Guardsmen reported.

Policeman Sues to Get Back on Force

An Alexandria policeman, fired last October on charges of conduct unbecoming an officer and wearing a uniform off duty, has filed suit in Alexandria Corporation Court asking that his discharge be ruled illegal.

The former policeman is Fred L. Kaus, 43, member of the force for 19 years. He was fired by City Attorney Joseph M. Pancoast, while Pancoast was also acting as city manager.

Contending Pancoast did not take the oath of office as city manager and was not bonded as manager, Kaus claims Pancoast's action was null and void. He also maintains he was not guilty of the conduct charge and that the charge of wearing the uniform was "technical." He asserts that Pancoast could not serve as both city attorney and manager at the same time.

The suit is directed against Nicholas A. Colosanto, who became city manager in November. Pancoast said yesterday he, as city attorney, will represent Colosanto. The case came up at docket call yesterday, but was held over until May.

Streptomycin Use By State Urged

Baltimore, April 12 (AP).—Governor Lane, state health officials and Mayor d'Alesandro of Baltimore had letters today from Dr. Hugh J. Welch urging that streptomycin be made part of the "route hospital and sanatoria care" in State institutions.

The Baltimore physician is vice president of the Streptomycin Gift Bank. He is working to have the drug made available to needy patients free.

Unless such institutions as the gift bank furnish the drug, its use would involve expenditures of State funds.

A committee of physicians to determine the usefulness of the drug in tuberculosis treatment was appointed recently by Dr. Robert H. Riley, director of the State Health Department.

Grand Jury Enjoined To 'Banish Prejudice'

Cumberland, Md., April 12 (AP).—Equal justice for all men without prejudice was asked today by Chief Judge William A. Huster as the Allegany County grand jury went into session.

In his charge, Judge Huster told the jurors to "Banish prejudice."

Among the cases to be considered is the reported shortage of approximately $8000 at the city tax collector's office.

Mr. A. N. Spanel, President

Dover, Delaware

March 15, 1948

Dear Mr. Spanel:

I am taking the liberty of calling your attention to my article, "Our Final Choice" (copy attached), in the January issue of Reader's Digest -- which presents the case for World Federation as the answer to the ominous situation that confronts the world today.

You may wonder why I, as the executive of a substantial industrial enterprise, should be so immediately concerned with this problem. The fact is that I am concerned for that very reason. As the head of a business, it is my obligation, on behalf of the stockholders and employees of my company, to endeavor to insure them against every possible hazard. But how can they be insured against the destruction, by another war, of the entire environment and civilization in which they operate — unless by the establishment of world law and order that would prevent war?

Does not this equally apply to you, Mr. Spanel? Will so much as one single shred of industrial values remain for anybody, if the answer to our present international fumblings should be global war?

You are in a position to help clarify the thinking of a great many Americans. That is why I am writing you; that is why I am also enclosing the full version of my article, of which the Digest printed a condensation. May I most earnestly beg you to think deeply into this whole matter?

Frankly, I am often caught in the middle of a busy morning with a feeling of futility — with a wonder as to whether anything I may do may prove to be of any lasting consequence with respect to the people or the properties for whom I am presumed to exercise responsibility. With the potentialities of atomic and biological warfare staring me in the face, I for one am no longer content to plan on the bland assumption that nothing of this sort can happen. It MAY happen, and it will happen; unless something is done about it. Perhaps it is too much to ask — but will you help?

The attached material is for you to use in any way you wish. No permission is required to quote or reprint from the Digest version, provided "Reader's Digest" is given due credit.

Sincerely yours,

W. T. Holliday

OUR FINAL CHOICE

Reprinted from the Reader's Digest

MAN, at long last, has developed the instruments with which he can destroy his world—and will destroy it, unless the power to do so is taken from him.

So I put this to your common sense: If you know that down cellar in your house there is a hundred pounds of dynamite, with a fuse of a certain length attached and lit, is it your main job to see that the beds are made and the cupboard is filled?

Let us wake up! The first job of all of us today is to secure world peace. Our only alternative is World War III. The horror behind those cool words is beyond imagination. Already the scientists, in the merest babyhood of atomic power, are talking about bombs a hundred times more powerful than the Hiroshima type, which could blast New York off the earth and kill 6,000,000 people! Just as appalling, the scientists tell us, are developments in warfare by deadly bacteria.

Whenever a civilization is faced with a new and fundamental challenge, there is only one thing that can save it from decline and fall: Its men and women must change their habits of thought to meet the challenge. Either they meet their new world with new thinking, or they go under.

Do all of us realize that our present and normal state of world affairs is nothing but raw anarchy? We are living under a world condition of lawless chaos that we could not tolerate for an instant in our immediate lives.

Scholars talk about "international law," but the plain truth is that there is no such thing. Law means enforced law. To enforce law, it takes a government. And where is their international government?

Well, you say, don't we have the United Nations?

We do—for what it is. But at present the United Nations is not constructed to do the job that needs doing; let us recognize its shortcomings and try to correct them. While there is still time.

The United Nations cannot maintain world peace for the simple reason that the United Nations is not a government. It has no world laws and no power to enforce them [illegible] they existed. The United Nations [illegible] nothing but a league, a many-[illegible] treaty signed by 57 separate [illegible] —each of which keeps all [illegible] independent power of deciding [illegible] moment whether it will make war.

History is full of such agreements from the leagues of ancient Greece down to the League of Nations. Every one has proposed to abolish war and every one has ended in war. If the league theory [illegible] all that history had to tell us about maintaining peace, the human race might as well shut up shop.

Under our noses, however, lies a different fact of history that is equally well proved; it constitutes the only hope by which imperfect men in an imperfect world can live in peace together.

The Promise of Federation

WHAT IS the real meaning behind the symbol of the policeman? If you look closely at the public peace in your city, you will be reminded that you and your fellow townsmen would be completely incapable of maintaining the peace by yourselves as individuals. The policeman represents public force, wished-for order and agreed-upon laws. Most important, he represents the unseen fact that you and your fellow citizens have given up your primitive, independent right to settle your own disputes with your own force, and have assigned to him the power to handle something which you are individually powerless to handle. In a word, you and your fellow citizens have federated.

The essentials of federalism are all within the policeman. He does not tell you when to get up in the morning, or what to eat for supper—his powers are his assigned powers, and no more. But when you have trouble within the scope of his duties and powers, he takes charge. And it works.

It is one thing to say that a federal world government would have supreme jurisdiction in maintaining the peace. But how would it enforce this peace? Right here is where you and I must change our habits of thought. It is hard for us to think of armies and navies not belonging to separate nations but to the world as a whole. Yet it is a condition of world government that all the great weapons of mass destruction must be given up by the nations and handed over to the world government. Theoretically, the world government would have the power to make overwhelming war upon any nation that threatened world peace.

I say "theoretically" because the real nub of enforcing world peace should be something quite different. Otherwise we are back at the impossible paradox of making war upon a nation for the sake of preventing war. How do we get around this contradiction?

The writers of our Constitution [illegible] same problem. They wanted the federal laws to be obeyed by the states. But they knew the Union could not merely [illegible] the states to enforce federal laws. And they knew that for the Union to proceed by force against a state as a whole, for the sake of punishing a few lawbreakers, would be like burning down the barn to get rid of the rats.

They solved the problem by giving the federal government the power to go straight to the individual citizen, within any state, and punish him for his violation of federal law.

And that is how federal world government would enforce world peace. Just as you and I, whether we live in Oregon or Ohio, are punished if we break the federal laws against counterfeiting, any national citizen under world government would be punished if he broke world laws against fomenting international war. If this seems an extreme break with our old habits of nationalistic thought, the fact is that the world is already moving in this direction. The principle of individual guilt for committing war is simply setting up Nuremberg trials before the event.

The shape of this world government is clear in outline. At the top is a world constitution. Under this, world government is embodied in a world legislature for enacting the laws to maintain peace, world courts to interpret those laws, and a world executive body to execute the laws, and a world police to enforce them.

Arguments Against World Government

The objections to world government have never [illegible] once seen the statement disputed that it is the only final answer to world war. In sum the critics more or less tacitly concede world government to be necessary—and loudly declare it to be impossible. They list a variety of obstacles.

I was invited not long ago to take the side of world federation in a debate against a well-known commentator. I replied that I would be happy to debate with him, provided he would really take the other side. He must do more than point out the problems and difficulties on my side—he must argue against world federation itself as a solution for war. The gentleman declined. He said there wasn't any debate.

Some declare, for example, that national sovereignty prevents world federation, because no nation would diminish its sovereignty enough to join. Let us see what this can mean.

Outside a nation's own borders, there is no such thing as national sovereignty — meaning inherent supremacy. Within its borders, the nation is of course supreme among its subdivisions and citizens. The only touching of this aspect of sovereignty by limited world government is its power to punish national citizens for fomenting international war. In this matter, world government has the supremacy. Yet I hardly see how this takes any supremacy away from the nation, because so far as I know, in the matter of fomenting international war, no nation now exercises any rule at all over its citizens. If the nations really want war prevented under world federation, the sole "sovereignty" they would have to renounce would be the power of the nation itself to decide to wage war.

Others argue against a world government to prevent war on the grounds that it would be a negative and repressive government, a mere police-state. To go a little deeper is to see that the only repression is of disorder, and that the law and order upheld by government is the necessary foundation for everything positive in social living.

Again, it is widely asserted that the world is not yet ready for world government, even of a limited sort. The critics on this score tell us we must first have long practice in international coöperation through such agencies as a world bank, a world food authority, etc. We need such agencies. But they would be no more capable of upholding the peace than the Universal Postal Union, a thoroughly successful example of world-wide coöperation, has been able to uphold the peace since it was founded in 1878. You cannot maintain the peace with a postman, banker, or grocer. It takes a policeman.

Last are the critics who declare that human nature itself is not spiritually ready, has not yet reached the state of perfection necessary for world federation. I am inclined to agree. Yet was human nature any nearer perfection in 1787, when our Constitution was written; will it be any nearer in 1987? The atomic bomb is not waiting for us to perfect human nature!

Program for Organization

WITH ALL its shortcomings, the United Nations provides the framework for the working world federation we need. Let us see how the job could be done.

The first step is for some nation to introduce in the General Assembly a motion that the United Nations shall call a world convention to draft a world constitution. Article 109 of the charter provides that "a general conference of the members for reviewing the present Charter" can be called by two thirds of the General Assembly and seven out of 11 of the Security Council. That "conference" would be the constitutional convention — and no single nation can veto it.

At that conference, "any alteration of the present Charter" can be recommended by two thirds of the nations represented. That "alteration" would be a federal constitution for the world—and no single nation can veto a line of it.

Now comes the rub. The next step is to submit that constitution to the nations themselves for ratification. Again under Article 109, the "alteration" shall take effect when it has been ratified by two thirds of the nations, including all the permanent members of the Security Council. In other words, one nation can stop the rest from having constitutional government.

Now that is neither reasonable nor tolerable. It is a curious fact of history that our 13 original states, as they approached federation, were restrained by exactly the same rule of all-or-none. The Articles of Confederation, under which the Constitutional Convention of 1787 was called, said that any amendment adopted must be ratified by all 13 states. How did our infant Constitution manage to come into effect under conditions so stringent?

It didn't. By a bold and wise stroke, the drafters of our Constitution ignored the Articles of Confederation and wrote the provision into the new instrument that it should be established among the ratifying states when nine out of 13 had ratified.

The delegates to a world constitutional convention would be just as bold, and just as wise, if they ignored the Charter of the United Nations and provided in the new instrument for its own ratification on more moderate terms. If two thirds of the nations can write a constitution, it would seem reasonable that two thirds of the nations could establish it among themselves.

Once this federation is established among a reasonable proportion of the world's nations, it forms an open and easily expansible system. For any nation that did not want to come in at first, there would always be a vacant chair.

Facing the Facts

WHICH brings us to today's constant question: What about Russia?

But that isn't the real question. The first question we must answer is this: What about the people of the United States?

We ourselves are the crux of the problem. Do we want world federation? Will we work for it? Will we lead the way? We had better know for sure what we will do, before we try guessing what somebody else will do.

The Russians are realists. And the only way to deal with realists is to give them something real to chew on. This world has no chance of abiding peace until we Americans see to it that our Government takes the lead in establishing a world order of greater and deeper realism than anything the Russians have to offer.

The Russians too are seeking an enlarging order, perhaps a world order. They call it "liberation," but the order they apparently want is an order of sheer Russian rule. In one word: empire. But an empire of force is no longer genuinely workable, as the Russians themselves prove by the suppressive measures they find necessary to take among every people they have "liberated."

Federalism is not empire. Under a world federation, the rule would be world rule, the law world law, arrived at by the voluntary coöperation of all the member nations. Which is exactly the reason for the much greater and more lasting workability—and hence superior realism—of federalism over empire.

We Americans must lead the way to federalism. If our government spoke up firmly and clearly for an immediate world federation limited to the prevention of war, I am convinced that a huge majority of the world's nations would join us at once, and gladly.

I myself believe Russia would join. You may believe differently. Should Russia delay in joining, it is entirely possible to create a working and all-but-world-wide federation out of the United Nations without her help.

No one pretends that this would be an adequate solution. It would, for one thing, mean two worlds. Yet I wonder if two plainly defined worlds might not be preferable to the multiple, chaotic world we have today. At least the issue would be out in the open. And it would be a clear issue, instead of the myriad of small, sordid issues the world now finds insoluble without that clarity. And the issue would no longer lie between Russia and America, on a plane of dog-eat-dog rivalry, but between Russia with only nine percent of the world's people on one side and a federation of most, or very possibly all, the rest.

If we Americans really want an enduring peace for the world, we must make this effort toward the only true source of public peace that has ever existed: justice under law and government. We must speak up for it so that our representatives will hear and will act. One by one, whoever and wherever we are, we must stand up and be counted.

The alternative is the catastrophic destruction of our civilization.

Armed Forces Personnel Lack Stressed

If an enemy comes to our shores in another war, we will need "many more" men in uniform than we had in 1945, Rear Admiral Thomas L. Sprague, chief of naval personnel, said yesterday.

Admiral Sprague addressed the 180th District Rotary Conference at the Hotel Mayflower.

Present task groups in the two oceans would be able only to "bide our time" while industry rearmed, he said. The Navy is now trying to stabilize its organization and train both officers and men in nuclear energy and electronics, he said.

To Balance Strength

Terming the Navy the "largest technical school in the world," Admiral Sprague said the service intends to bring into balance its air strength and its Seabees branch, now regarded as not adequate.

Assistant Secretary of State Robert V. Allen, new head of the State Department's Office of Information Exchange, told the Rotary luncheon the "Voice of America" broadcasts must be worked out by trial and error.

The success of different types of broadcasts must be judged by reactions received from countries behind and near the "Iron Curtain," he said, "but we must also be bold." Cooperation between the Government and the private press can do a job similar to that "arsenal of democracy" job done during the war, he said, now that we are the "arsenal of spiritual and political democracy."

UMT Plan Urged

Maj. Gen. Frederick A. Irving, chief of the career management group, Army General Staff, speaking in palce of Maj. Gen. John E. Dahlquist, deputy director of personnel, urged universal military training as as necessity to defend our shores. He added that the cost of one year's UMT, estimated at $1,270,000,000 would be one tenth of the money annually spent on luxuries.

The two-day Rotary conference of the 180th district, which includes Maryland and Delaware as well as the District, closed last night with a reception and District Governor's banquet at the Hotel Mayflower.

On Thursday, the Virginia Rotary clubs in the 187th district will open their conference at the George Mason Hotel in Alexandria, Va. At 1:30 p. m. they will assemble at the George Washington Masonic National Memorial and will be greeted by Rotary leaders and Mayor William T. Wilkins of Alexandria.

Hagerstown, Md., April 12 (AP).—A 24-year-old man was sentenced to 30 days in jail today partly because, as Magistrate Harry E. Snyder observed, "the guilty fleeth when no man pursueth."

The defendant, George Jones, pleaded innocent to a charge of stealing an infantile paralysis fund collection box containing $15. Witnesses testified they had seen him with the box in his hand.

Magistrate Snyder noting that Jones had skipped town right after the theft occurred, quoted the Bible and imposed the sentence.

Coal Dust Caesar

True to the promises in the advance billing, John L. Lewis ended the coal strike with a magnificent last-minute play to the gallery. If the acting was somewhat shopworn, at least the staging was as nearly perfect as Mr. Lewis could make it. In genuine melodrama fashion, he appeared with the rent the moment the mortgage was to be foreclosed. Presumably this magnanimous gesture to the national interest was calculated to bring down the house in cheers. It must have come as something of a shock to Lewis' thespian sensibilities, therefore, to learn that Justice Alan T. Goldsborough, that most prosaic of all drama critics, was not convinced. Indeed, Justice Goldsborough delivered the unkindest cut of all when he observed that an argument such as presented by Lewis' attorneys had never been proclaimed "in any court since Hammurabi on up."

Justice Goldsborough is refreshingly unimpressed by showmanship—a fact that Mr. Lewis should have remembered from the time he met a previous nemesis in the District Court in 1946. We believe that Justice Goldsborough is indisputably right in holding that Lewis' present telegrams recalling the coal miners to work have nothing to do with his failure to obey the court order to end the strike "forthwith" when it was served on him April 5. As a matter of fact, the devious logic used by Lewis' representatives in attempting to explain why he had purged himself of contempt could teach the party line a twist or two. For example, Lewis consistently held that there was no strike, that the miners were free agents acting on their own volition. Yet one of his telegrams to the miners reads: "Your voluntary cessation of work should now be terminated and your protest ended." The clew to Lewis' instigation of the stoppage is his statement that the operators have now "honored" their contract. The miners walked out on advice from Lewis that the contract had been "dishonored." Clearly any argument about whether the interruption was "voluntary" or constituted a strike is a mere exercise in semantics.

Tension In Germany

General Clay has shown sounder statesmanship than his British counterpart, Gen. Sir Brian Robertson, in dealing with the tense situation in Germany. The American commander has not let himself be flustered. He has rightly diagnosed the Russians' behavior in Berlin as an effort to frighten us out. He has let them know unmistakably that we do not intend to be frightened out, no matter how unpleasant they may make the position of our exposed and hopelessly outnumbered garrison there. He has done it quietly, without dramatics, with rock-like firmness. It has been one of the finest exhibitions of self-control and restraint on the part of any commander since the troubled occupation of Germany began.

General Robertson has acted differently. Last week, of all weeks, when tension already was dangerously high, the British commander made a speech at Duesseldorf which might well have been left unsaid. He appealed to the people of western Germany to "come forward determined to make the best of the largest part of your country which is on the right side of the 'iron curtain'; the rest will come in time." He exhorted them to resist Communist propaganda, to "stand together against these gentlemen who, with democracy on their lips and truncheons behind their backs, would filch your German freedom from you." The speech was interpreted at once as a signal that all efforts at four-power cooperation were at an end, that the partition of Germany was final and that the West would sooner or later fight the East for Germany's lost lands.

Too many Germans already see their salvation in what they regard as the inevitable war between the United States and Russia. We hope there will be a cessation of any move to aid and abet them in any such confidence. In Germany more than in any other country we need to make it quite clear that we will stay in occupation as long as necessary to prevent a new war. We need to make it just as plain that irredentism and unity are less important to us right now than integration into Marshall Europe. Britain and Russia traditionally have looked on Germany as a buffer and worked for it. A new view is needed, and France and America have it. Any other view means that nothing constructive will be done in the economic restoration of western Europe.

The X At Bogota

Whether the Daily Worker is right in saying that the sordid misadventure in Bogota has dealt the United States a "terrific black eye" depends upon American statesmanship. The damage would be complete if this conference were abandoned. Argentina and Cuba (who, incidentally, were the conference's most vociferous critics of United States policy) are reported already to have left, but, if Secretary Marshall succeeds in holding the remaining delegates together, Argentina and Cuba will doubtless return. It doesn't matter if they don't. What matters is that the remaining delegates put themselves on record (a record to which, we are sure, Cuba, if not Argentina, would subscribe) in fulfillment of the task which brought this conference together. This was to concert measures for dealing with Communist aggression and for laying the groundwork for economic union.

The loss of the conference papers need not be a deterrent. This act, together with the events of which this was an incident, merely adds to the challenge to Pan American statesmanship to complete the job—a job which is now shown with the vividness of a lightning flash to be an urgent requirement of hemispherical security. The chance is golden to turn this dastardly deed against its perpetrators. By going ahead with their work, elsewhere if not in Bogota, the delegates could return the black eye, and make it permanent. The initiative belongs to Mr. Marshall. He will probably find those of his quondam critics who are not in flight in a condition of sheepishness as they contemplate the implications of the outrage in the conference capital.

In the meantime the question arises: Was the American intelligence system caught napping? It is the intelligence function to save policy-makers from walking ignominiously into such traps as they are now in in Bogota. Yet, judging from the State Department's surprise, they were kept in blissful ignorance that anything might go amiss. We heartily subscribe to Representative Clarence Brown's demand for an inquiry into the status of the Nation's intelligence system. Either the country is not being served by a service that in this cold war is situated in the very front line of the national defense, or it is not being used as a guide to conduct.

It is simply not reasonable to accept the explanation that the outbreak in Colombia was "spontaneous." Organization is not spontaneous, and the American pool correspondent, Mr. Milton Bracker, refers to "the incredible swiftness with which an assassination by a single shot spread and the revolutionary strategy whereby all centers of communications were the first objectives of the insurgents." It had long been known that a plot had been in process of hatching to scuttle the conference. This parley was as anathema to the moguls of the conspiratorial Kremlin as the Marshall Plan. News of a plot had appeared in messages from Buenos Aires, where the Communists, who voted for Peron in the last election as the best bet in the anti-American campaign, were said to be the hatchers. What happened in Bogota turned out to be the perfect sabotage that had been contemplated. Maybe the assassination of Gaitan was not planted. But Gaitan hadn't the national standing to evoke in death at an assassin's hand such an extraordinary outburst as has occurred, such a reversion to barbarism. Nor is Colombia that kind of a country. To anybody but a simpleton it is obvious that a train of consequences had been laid beforehand.

Certainly no coup we can think of fits an exhibit of black propaganda better. Here was a perfect example of what Stein, one of the founding fathers of Germany, called a "jacquerie organized from above." How it was done will probably never come to light; for black propaganda, which means incitement to sabotage, operates by deception of source and intent. It is its characteristic to separate nature from origin. The fact is that the plotters' purpose was accomplished—in the sense of exploding the conference. Everything about it belies the appearance of natural causes.

Only a person lost to a sense of smell could have failed to get a whiff of the witches' caldron that was so obviously brewing that others, if not our delegates, had been forewarned of an explosion. Where were our agents? The FBI used to operate in South America. There is an intelligence unit in the State Department; another in the Army Department, yet another in the Navy Department, and presumably a fourth in the Air Department. Over all is the Central Intelligence Agency. This latter, which has a statutory mandate, was the precursor of interservice unification. It is supposed to have agents of its own in the field, though its primary task is to "evaluate" all intelligence reports, and give the lowdown every day to the White House and the Secretary of State. The suspicion (unless the State Department is self-insulated) will be created that the CIA is "just another agency." Is it? We now know that the armed services have been backward in carrying out both letter and spirit of the unification act. Is this true of the intelligence function?

In this matter the public has long been left in a fool's paradise. The perilous times call for an end to it. This newspaper has agreed on the necessity of partial mobilization and an increase in the budget for the armed services. But these in themselves are the modern version of a Maginot Line. What is needed is a recognition of the true nature of the force with which we have to contend and with which we must appropriately contend as the price of survival and as a safeguard against a shooting war. That nature is the cold war technique of intimidation and propaganda and infiltration. Knowing the nature of the opposing force, knowing how it operates, policy-makers could easily develop a policy of counteraction. But, without any such clear view, policy is left like Mahomet's coffin, in midair, unable even to make an assumption whether we are in a hot war or a cold war.

Brains are more important than brawn in coping with the Soviet's engine of conquest, ideas more than arms. They should be enlisted, and the intelligence system accorded the status it deserves, so as to hammer out and operate effective counteraction. Mr. John Foster Dulles has made this suggestion. If the events at Bogota are regarded as underlining it, as well as treated as an imperative to push the conference to a conclusion, then the saboteurs would find they have loosed a boomerang.

Choosing The President

Even those citizens who cling to the illusion that, in this great democratic land, the people choose their own President must be a little puzzled by the welter of presidential primaries and State conventions that are crowding the news columns. Last week all political eyes were on Wisconsin. Today it is Nebraska. Next week it will be New Jersey and so forth. Thirteen States will hold primaries to determine the preferences of the rank and file of voters as to nominees for President. Most of the others will simply leave the choice to the politicians.

Of the 293 delegates to the Republican National Convention chosen to date 102 are entirely unpledged. Many others yet to be chosen will go to Philadelphia without instructions, which means that they will be free to engage in deals or to vote for unpopular candidates who could not hope to win in a primary contest. Of course, every convention is under strong pressure to name candidates who stand well with the people. Our political history is replete with instances, however, in which second-rate men with little command of public confidence have been nominated for President.

Often the primaries themselves do not register the will of the people. The more formidable contenders usually refrain from competing openly in States that have favorite sons, thus preventing any effective registration of the party members' real choice. Primaries and conventions are scattered over several months, moreover, with the results in the early primaries tending to influence the action of voters who go to the polls later on.

In our opinion, there ought to be a uniform primary day throughout the country, just as there is a uniform election day. All qualified voters should on that day have a right to go to the polls and register their preference as to the nominee of their party for the office of President. Democrats could vote only in the Democratic primaries and Republicans only in Republican primaries. By this means each party would have as its nominee the person most favored by its rank and file. "Dark horses" and compromise candidates would no longer be encouraged to hope that the lightning would strike in their direction. Fairness under this system would also dictate that the vice presidential nomination go to the runner-up if he would accept it. The national conventions would thus have nothing to do but fill the air with oratory and adopt party platforms.

To be sure, party chieftains will resist any such encroachment upon their existing prerogatives, but some system of this sort will have to be adopted if the people are actually to name the President instead of merely choosing between two contenders selected by political bigwigs.

Recruits For ECA

Valuable recruits for the Economic Cooperation Administration can be found in the ranks of Government employes who have been connected with our foreign-aid programs and are acquainted with the particular problems that will confront the ECA. Some of these individuals have been devoting most, if not all, their time to one or another aspect of previous foreign-aid programs, and could be shifted to the new agency without impairment of the regular Government services and to the great advantage of the new agency.

When Mr. Hoffman has completed his survey of available Government personnel, and decides which employes are especially qualified to serve him, he will be confronted by another problem: how to persuade Government officials with civil service status to accept temporary appointments. As Jerry Kluttz has pointed out in The Washington Post, the Civil Service Commission could do a great deal to overcome the natural reluctance of such employes to shift to ECA by devising a foolproof system of job security for those accepting transfers.

The ECA also needs experienced businessmen on its staff to plan export programs that will be effective and at the same time will not put an undue strain on domestic resources. The recruitment of representatives of private industry presents difficulties of a different charter. Reluctance to serve cannot be overcome by offers of attractive salaries. For probably all the industrialists who possess the needed qualifications for ECA positions would have to make heavy financial sacrifices if they entered Government service for any length of time. It seems to us that the most effective means of persuasion in such cases lies in an appeal to patriotism and enlightened self-interest. Better still, the President, as we have suggested before, might apply pressure by naming before asking men who have particularly special qualifications. The ERP is everybody's business.

Spain And ERP

The good-natured foolishness of your correspondent of April 7, T. Frank Linnen, in promoting Spain's inclusion in ERP is painful.

Morally there is no justification whatever for us, aspiring as we do to represent and to be the antithesis of totalitarianism, to provide France with means to feather his noisome nest, rumpled in the first instance by the Nazis (see The Goebbels Diaries), with whom, recently, we were at pains to differ. "Fascist-tinted" indeed.

Spain's geographical position in western Europe has not influenced her in the pursuit of that liberal culture we like to regard as being of western Europe. "She trades with the world." So does Russia. "Her government is recognized." Russia is recognized, and how!

Franco Spain, in its fight against communism represents the pot and the kettle; the same methods prevail (secret police, torture, execution), and the results, which Mr. Linnen blandly terms as rule "for 10 years without any serious unrest," are the same as for opposition in Russia, where there has also been no serious unrest for 10 years. A secret police discourages unrest.

Where the government fo Spain is fait accompli, and totalitarian, neither Greece nor China may be said to have either a settled government or policy. There is reason to hope, therefore, that we may encourage liberal elements there well enough and long enough to frustrate the seeds of totalitarianism.

And, finally, would ERP aid assure us Spanish military aid in the event of a Russo-American war? Or, without it, were Spain threatened, would she welcome the establishment by us of bases within her boundaries to help her fight? I think she would. We at least could be relied upon, should we win, to let her alone. Russia would not tolerate the existence of a fascist state, supposing she had overrun all of Europe and was strong enough to topple it.

In the deplorable eventuality of ERP for Spain we could certainly propagandize and, for many people, counteract the righteous indignation of Russia. But in the light of the evidence why should we contemplate that sort of game?

Labor Support For Italy

Many concessions have and are being made to stem the Red tide in Italy, but it remains for American labor to make perhaps the most significant contribution and influence an election that may well be historic.

An immediate and continued cash offering by all American workers to our hard-pressed Italian brothers would balk Russia's propaganda, for it would be ridiculous to brand our independent labor organizations as "imperialistic."

To sum it all up, this plan would definitely put labor's false friends in this country on the spot, and prove cheap insurance for our own national welfare.

"Federal Pay Raise"

By leaving out a line in my letter which appeared in The Washington Post of April 8 on Federal Pay Raise" you have managed to make it as inexplicable as your editorial of April 3 on "Federal Pay Raise."

The third sentence should read: "Simple arithmetic tells us that 70 per cent less the increase that Government workers have received since 1940, which is 26 per cent, leaves a gap of 44 per cent between what the Government worker is paid today and the increase in the cost of living."

"Three Musketeers"

In the column by Richard Coe on April 5 there was inserted among the comments of Ingrid Bergman the notation that the Legion of Decency had demanded that the character of Cardinal Richelieu be portrayed as a Protestant in the forthcoming version of "The Three Musketeers." That is the last straw. I for one am very well fed up with having the Roman Catholic Church determine what shall or shall not be shown on the American screen.

Who ever heard of a Protestant Cardinal? Why cannot the Catholics accept the fact that there are "black sheep" among their members just as there are undesirable members of any organization?

C. J. PILLING 3d.

The Legion of Decency might be interested to know that Cardinal Richelieu wasn't such a foul character—he gave considerable support outside of France to the Protestants in Germany and the Netherlands in their fight for liberation from oppression. At home, however, the very Catholic Cardinal was far less friendly to the Protestants, and forced the broad tolerant measures of Henry IV to be annulled, and ruled France with an iron hand.

All I ask from Hollywood is a close approximation of truth, which seems to be the last thing the Legion of Decency wants.

Membership In WHO

The House Rules Committee has tabled the bill which would enable the United States to join the United Nations World Health Organization.

Russia has already ratified the constitution of WHO, and since there are so few areas where the Russians and the United States are able to work together, it is to be hoped that the House Rules Committee will report the bill out favorably. If the committee continues to hold the bill, it would appear justifiable to say that they are depriving us not only of the opportunity to foster improved health standards in the world but of one very important chance to promote peace through international cooperation within the United Nations.

"Deserved Punishment"

Were I not one of the persons dependent upon our public transportation system, undoubtedly I would have read your editorial, "Deserved Punishment," of April 5 and nodded my head in complete agreement with a fine statement of principle.

But I wonder. Has the writer of the editorial stood on a loading platform, eager to get home after a days work, and watched car after car go by, crowded at the front end but with unfilled space in the rear? Has he stood there while these cars have stopped to let off an occasional passenger, but have not opened their front doors to admit any more?

I submit that the normal intelligent person, ordinarily law abiding, will in time take the only recourse left to him, i.e., board the car through the exit door.

It is strong language you have used, "inexcusable rowdyism, and to me it indicates a complete lack of understanding of some of the factors responsible for this growing practice.

Statehood For Alaska

The March 26 letter of Mrs. Grace Stafford of Kodiak, Alaska, on Alaskan Statehood, constitutes a challenge that I, as an Alaska citizen of 28 years, and an earnest advocate of Statehood, feel should be answered.

The House Subcommittee on Territories and Possessions conducted extensive hearings on the question of Statehood for Alaska, in Alaska last summer. These hearings were held for the specific purpose of making it possible for the commitee to get the opinions of Alaskans themselves on this issue. Meetings were held in five of the larger towns in the territory and anyone who desired to be heard on the subject, either for or against, was given an opportunity to do so.

This record shows that approximately 100 bona fide Alaskans appeared as witnesses at the hearings. Fully four-fifths of them spoke in favor of Statehood and submitted convincing reasons for their position. Not more than half a dozen of these were Federal officials. About that many more were territorial officials on full-time jobs. The rest of them included homesteaders, business men, ministers, housewives, attorneys, newspapermen, representatives of service clubs and veterans organizations—in short, it was a representative cross-section of the population of Alaska, most of whom could claim Alaska residence covering from 10 to 50 years, and very few of whom have that "assured income" of which Mrs. Stafford speaks so glibly.

Less than a dozen witnesses appeared before the committee to oppose Statehood. Several were not residents of Alaska at all. T[illegible] of the most vociferous opponents spoke in favor of the absentee landlords of the territory. Neither of them is a resident of the territory at the present time.

While I recognize the right of the lobbyists to present the case for their employers, I have never been able to understand why the mouthings of the "hired men" of the canned salmon industry and other moneyed groups should be always accepted in some circles as words of wisdom, while the public officials, both territorial and Federal, who are the "hired men" of my Government should be cardindexed as incompetent and dishonest.

I shall pass over Mrs. Stafford's unsupported assertions covering her basic reasons for opposing Statehood for Alaska. They have all been fully disproved by testimony adduced at the Statehood hearing. Incidentally, it is worthy of note that the recommendation of the full committee, comprised of Congressmen from 21 States and the three territories, was unanimous that Alaska be given Statehood now, surely a magnificent tribute to the fact that the vulgar majority has proved its case with striking effectiveness.

Let Mrs. Stafford read her Alaskan history. She will find that every movement toward self-government for the territory has been fought by the same forces now opposing Statehood in Alaska with the same threadbare and timeworn argument that "Alaska is not ready" to assume her responsibilities. Alaska is old as a territory because her "conscientious minority"—the absentee and local owners of her resources for their own material gain, have worked effectively through misinformed and uninformed citizens to keep the territory in swaddling clothes.

Washington Calling

Patchwork Intelligence

BLOODY REVOLUTION is part of the fabric of Latin-American politics. But such revolutions do not just happen suddenly and for no reason at all.

They grow out of long-smoldering resentments and conflicts, sparked by leaders whose aims and ambitions are fairly well known. Over the ashes of tragic Bogota is a towering question mark.

Were American officials sufficiently well informed about the explosive potentialities in Colombia? A number of other related questions occur, but that one is paramount.

For the first time in its history this country has a Central Intelligence Agency. The agency, under the direction of Admiral R. H. Hillenkoetter, has its own staff of agents. In addition, it coordinates the intelligence reports of the Department of State and National Defense, the Atomic Energy Commission and the Federal Bureau of Investigation.

Although outsiders can know almost nothing of its work, the hopeful impression prevails that Washington is for the first time equipped to learn what is about to happen well in advance of its happening. There is, evidence, however, that the cloak and dagger atmosphere hides, in some instances at least, the kind of knowledge that an earnest reader could obtain in the Library of Congress.

One of the civilians entitled to receive and read the intelligence agency's top secret reports gets a lot of laughter out of the privilege. He has become accustomed to the kind of anticlimax that bursts with the fury of a child's popgun.

HERE IS an example. A heavily armed messenger of the Intelligence Agency arrives with a top secret document. It can be delivered only into the official's hands. The seals must be broken in the presence of the armed messenger and the official.

If the official should decide to take it home and read it overnight, being a busy and hard-pressed man, then an armed guard would have to patrol his house during the night. He examines the document and finds it is a copy of a report printed in London and available to a fairly sizable number of readers.

It is understandable that a brand-new intelligence agency cannot achieve perfection overnight. Years of experience and development are necessary to round out such an organization.

At one point, however, a matter of elementary cooperation would bring a decided improvement. This is the point at which internal security and foreign intelligence meet.

Under the law, the FBI is responsible for internal security. This covers sabotage, with all its new and terrifying possibilities in bacterial and atomic death. But the authority of the FBI ends at the water's edge where Central Intelligence and the Army and Navy take over.

COORDINATION is not good. I have learned of specific examples of where it has failed and where the failure could be serious.

During the war and in the events that led up to war, the Army and Navy tended to treat the FBI like a dubious stepchild. For example, the Navy had specific information about the landing of two enemy agents in New England. This information was not passed along to the FBI for 10 days and then only in a vague and guarded form, although detection and capture of the agents was the job of the FBI.

A glaring example came to light in the Pearl Harbor investigation. The FBI in Hawaii, and the FBI alone, mentioned a telephone call from Honolulu to Tokyo on December 6, 1941. This revealing conversation, with its thinly disguised references to a major event to come, was passed on to both Army and Navy commanders. It was ignored.

The very fact of an arbitrary separation between domestic security, on the one hand, and foreign intelligence and security, on the other, is dangerous in the face of the threat of world communism. That jealousies should hamper cooperation is fantastic at this moment in history.

Military policy-makers say the field of internal security is "under study." There is little time left for study. We need, and quickly, an efficient, mature agency that can bring together all sources of information and analyze them promptly. The kind of explosion that occurred in Bogota should not come as a surprise.

Inadequate Coverage

More and more The Washington Post is shedding its thin mask of a "liberal" publication and taking its true place among the reactionary papers of this country. Each day this becomes more evident, and nowhere can one find a better example than in The Washington Post's recent "silent treatment" of the meeting held on March 30 by the Washington Committee for Wallace at which Leo Isacson, Vito Marcantonio, and Adam Clayton Powell spoke.

Oh, yes, last year The Washington Post could fulfill its so-called duty as an impartial reporter of events and publish at length details of a disgraceful exhibition put on at the foot of the Washington Monument by one Gerald K. Smith. But when the time comes to do a real service for its readers by giving information about the beginnings of a true peoples movement in our town, The Washington Post is found wanting. It will not "stand up and be counted," but thinking Americans everywhere will recognize these deplorable tactics.

Today And Tomorrow

By Walter Lippmann

Bogota And After

Lippmann

ON THE causes of the disaster in Bogota there is as yet nothing to say because nothing is as yet known, nor do we know what connection, if any, there was between the explosion in the streets and the issues which the conference was trying to resolve. There may be no more connection than there is between the story of a play and an accidental fire which burns down the theater in which it is being acted. But it may be that this is a warning of how thin is the crust of our civilization and how violent the passions beneath.

THE COURSE of the conference before it was so brutally disrupted gave strong indication that with the accepted diplomatic formulae it is not possible to reconstruct, stabilize and consolidate that part of western civilization which was least ravaged by the war and is the least threatened today. Secretary Marshall was finding it extraordinarily difficult to reconcile our commitments in Europe with the commitments our Latin-American neighbors believe to be inherent in the inter-American system. The conference showed, so I venture to think, that the United States and the Latin-American republics, despite all their traditional bonds, do not constitute a viable community in the modern world, and that their problems are becoming progressively more insoluble within the confines of the Western Hemisphere.

The real community, to which we all belong, was not truly represented at Bogota. The geographical boundaries of the conference were on the Canadian frontier and in the Atlantic Ocean. These are artificial boundaries. For in their strategical defense, in their economy, in their cultural connections, the Latin-American republics and the United States are not a self-contained community of states. They are part of that larger community of which Canada, Europe and Africa are integral parts, and none of the great issues of security and reconstruction is soluble except within the framework of this larger community.

THE TWO world wars of this century, and all the measures that have to be taken against a third, have demonstrated conclusively that the nations from the Canadian border to Cape Horn are not in themselves a strategical system. The Americas have had to be defended in Europe and Africa by Americans in alliance with Europeans. After both wars the Bogota nations have been unable to recover and achieve a stable prosperity separately. The true economic connections do not run north and south in this hemisphere but are triangular and multilateral around the great basin of the Atlantic Ocean.

The failure to recognize the artificiality of the inter-American system and the reality of the Atlantic community was the underlying cause of the deep trouble in which the conference was laboring when it was so violently interrupted. Greater tact and diplomatic skill might perhaps have averted the demonstrations against this country. But at best they could only have assuaged and postponed the issues which arise from the fact that our Latin-American policy and our European policy have not been coordinated and harmonized here or in Latin America. The European Recovery Program and its aftermath—the so-called Western Union—are not transitory emergency measures. They are a new undertaking which makes it impossible to assume, and to let the Latin republics assume, that the older, prewar American system continues unchanged. We have reached the end of isolation, not merely for the United States, but for the whole hemisphere.

THE REASON for Secretary Marshall's going to Bogota at this immensely critical moment in history was to explain in person, —what should have been explained carefully and persistently during the past year to the diplomats in Washington and in the Latin-American capitals— that the Western Hemisphere must take its place in the larger community of the western world, of which the Atlantic Ocean is now the inland sea. That in fact is what Secretary Marshall was trying to say when he attempted to justify the large funds appropriated for "European" recovery and the smaller funds immediately available for Latin-American development.

But the time has come to grasp the nettle of Latin-American criticism of this country, and not to think that by flattery and doles we can somehow muddle through to harmony within the restricted region of the inter-American system.

WE ARE in the formative stages of one of the great historic enterprises of modern times—the construction of a new political community made up of the older nations of Europe and the new nations which are descended from them —all of them the heirs and all of them the bearers of the same civilization. Except as the American republics join together in this grand enterprise, they will not be united among themselves.

One world, embracing all mankind, we shall not see in our time. But what we may see, if we have the vision and the energy, is the formation of a great western community, at last a confederation of federations of European and American nations, determined to give the lie to those who say that our civilization is doomed and to give back faith, and the will to live, to those who fear that freedom is perishing where it originated. Only by going forward to something greater than we have ever before attempted can we save all that is good which we wish to preserve.

THERE, and not in hemispheric isolation, is the destiny of the American republics.

False Reporting Penalties Backed By U. N. Conferees

Geneva, Switzerland, April 12 (AP).—The legal committee of the United Nations Conference on the Freedom of Information today approved the principle of penalties for false and distorted news.

The committee adopted an Indian amendment to the draft convention of human rights, implying that penalties for false reporting were permissible.

Zachariah Chafeee of the United States delegation opposed the amendment, which, he said, was impracticable. "We cannot oppose hatred by persecution," Chafee declared.

The convention has to go through several further redrafting stages before final approval.

Military Guaranties

By Sumner Welles

Congressional Sanction Important

THE BELGIAN Prime Minister's appeal for American military guaranties to the five members of the pact of Brussels—Great Britain, France, Belgium, the Netherlands, and Luxembourg—emphasizes the need for a prompt decision on an issue of vital importance. Unless we make the right decision we shall be gambling with our own national security.

This is a presidential election year. The Soviet government believes, just as Hitler did when he launched his blitzkrieg in that earlier election year of 1940, that during a presidential campaign this Government cannot function efficiently and that party politics will prevent united support for a strong policy.

The Soviet government has convinced itself that an American economic collapse is in the offing. It also knows that the average European is not going to feel any individual benefit from the European Recovery Program for some months to come.

The results of demobilization upon our air and ground forces, our present military weakness, and the amount of time required to rebuild our armed strength are taken into full account in Moscow.

From the standpoint of the Politburo an advance toward the Atlantic and the Mediterranean would be easier this summer than it would be later on.

THERE ARE some indications —none of them as yet, however, conclusive—that a final decision has not been reached.

The "benevolent" treaty with Finland is intended to deceive European opinion. It was negotiated with an eye to the Italian elections. Russia already had all the bases in Finland she needs. She could overrun that defenseless country in 48 hours.

We can be sure that expansion will continue so long as Russia thinks she can get away with it.

In the face of these contingencies, what should this Government's policy be?

Is it wiser for us to leave both the Soviet Union and the countries of western Europe in doubt whether we would actually give military support to the remaining free peoples of Europe if they defend themselves against Russian aggression?

Or are we more likely to strengthen western Europe's will to resist, and to dissuade the Kremlin from provoking what it would then know to be war with the United States, if we now make it altogether certain that this Nation will regard any further direct or indirect aggression against a free country of Europe as an aggression against the United States as well as against the United Nations?

ONE OF the wisest foreign diplomats we have in Washington has reminded me that it was the Soviets that first insisted upon guaranties against indirect aggression. One of the causes of the breakdown in the negotiations of the summer of 1939 between the British and the Russians was the Soviet demand for British support if Hitler committed an act of indirect aggression by setting up Nazi governments in the Baltic states.

In his recent address to the Congress, Mr. Truman said he is "confident" that we "will support by appropriate means" the free countries that resist communism. But as I have previously pointed out, western Europe wants to know what those "appropriate means" may be. It is also fully aware that Mr. Truman may not long continue as President, and that only congressional action can offer any positive assurance of military support.

The European Recovery Program will give western Europe moral and economic strength, if it has a chance to work. What could be more fantastic than for the American people to pour billions of dollars of their resources into western Europe in order to strengthen their allies, if they are at the same time unwilling to take the steps required to make it more likely that the European Recovery Program can succeed?

IF THE western European peoples are to move toward federation and make the most of our economic help they must have confidence which can for the time being only come from certainty of American military support against aggression. This implies further sacrifice on the part of the American people. It means that universal military training and the temporary revival of selective service will be necessary.

Our guaranty of military support should, however, surely not be extended, as is being suggested in many quarters, through bilaterial military alliances or staff arrangements, between the United States and one or more of the European countries.

If the United Nations, so often proclaimed by this Administration as the foundation of our national policy, is not once more to be disregarded, we must resort to Article 51 of the Charter which authorizes measures for "collective self-defense." That article envisages precisely the kind of international emergency which the United States and the western European countries now confront. Should this country, under the authority so granted, give the guarantees which western Europe so urgently needs, the United Nations will have taken a long step toward the development of collective security.

Liberia Officials Are Guests at Blair-Lee House

Two cabinet ministers from Liberia were guests of the United States at Blair-Lee House yesterday.

They were Postmaster General Nete Sie Brownell, one of the first native born Liberians to hold cabinet office, and Speaker Benjamin Freeman of the House of Representatives.

Loy Henderson, director of the Office of Near Eastern and African Affairs, entertained them at an official luncheon yesterday. Later the two visitors went to Capitol Hill to meet Senator Arthur H. Vandenberg and Representative Charles A. Eaton, chairman of the Congressional Foreign Policy Committee.

Today they will be escorted through the National Gallery of Art by Administrator Harry A. McBride, who visited Liberia on treaty negotiations during the war.

District Teachers May Get Extra $600

Bill Introduced by Senator McCarran Meant to Correct Several Inequities

Some Washington public school teachers could get up to $600 more for this year's work than they expected if a bill introduced by Senator Pat McCarran (D., Nev.) becomes law.

That was the informal prediction of school officials after they were informed of the bill which Senator McCarran presented to the Senate late yesterday.

McCarran, in a statement filed for the Congressional Record, said the bill was designed to correct a number of inequities in the pay act for District school teachers approved last year. The bill would be retroactive to last July 1.

The measure would also scrap the feature of last year's law that said teachers could move up only five annual pay boosts automatically and then would be subjected to a review of the record before going on to the next five increases. Under the bill, pay steps would be automatic from one end of the scale to the top. The in-service training program of last year's law would be kept but placed on a voluntary participation basis.

The bill carries no specific pay boost for employes as a whole. But it does say that their pay for this year will be based on all their years of experience in the Washington schools plus experience in other teaching jobs which is counted by the Board of Education.

tion. It's not all counted in the pay envelope under provision of the present bill.

Last year's pay act gave teachers without a master's degree a pay scale which runs from $2500 to $4000, going up from the lowest to the highest by $100 steps over a period of 15 years. The teachers with a master's degree get a pay scale from $3000 to $4500 with the same 15-year progression.

But along with those scales, there was a section that limited the jump of most teachers to $150 over what they got for the preceding year. As a result, officials explained, teachers were generally held below the pay rate to which their years of experience would have entitled them if there had not been increase limitation.

Experience Pays Off

The new bill says that the pay a teacher is to receive for the year starting last July - would be at the rate to which his years of experience would have entitled him if the law had been on the books from the time the teacher was first appointed.

Officials said that one group of about 150 high school teachers this year are getting $4300 and would presumably go automatically to $4500 under the new bill. There are other teachers, however, getting $3400 who could go at once to $4000 under the new bill, it was said.

Traffic Ticket Adjustments Drop Slightly

Traffic ticket adjustments for last week showed a slight drop under preceding weekly "fixes" reported by the local police department.

A total of 106 adjustments were recorded for the past week, or five fewer than those recorded for the week ending April 3. Of this number, 98 violators of traffic regulations were excused with warnings, and eight had their tickets canceled.

Adelbert W. Lee, of 3211 Pennsylvania ave. se., a member of the District Board of Education, was among those let off with warnings last week. Lee, police records disclosed, parked in a no parking zone but was excused on the grounds it was an "emergency stop for medicine at a doctor's office."

Also excused with a warning was Sergt. Brooks Atherton, Army Military Police, who had been ticketed for parking at an entrance. Police listed him as having been "on official business for the Army."

Three of the eight cancellations were chalked off as "diplomatic immunity." Other excuses listed by police for ticket adjustments included disabled cars, strangers in the city, unexpected illnesses and previous good records.

With Shirley Povich

GREENVILLE, S. C., April 12.—Schoolboy Rowe, pitching on the same club that gave Young Curt Simmons a $58,000 bonus for signing a big league contract last summer, could berate his own luck, and he does in a mild sort of way.

POVICH

"I was born 15 years too soon," says Rowe. "I used to be something of a schoolboy wonder myself, but in those days a kid was thrilled to get a chance to play on a big league club. Nobody ever thought of a bonus for signing. When I signed with the Tigers in 1932, they gave me 10 bucks over my expenses to their Beaumont training camp."

The fact is that Rowe is modest when he calls himself "something of a schoolboy wonder." Down in El Dorado, Ark., he was an all-fired sensation at everything athletic, and unless it was Jim Thorpe, who never did stick in the big leagues, there never was an athlete who came into the majors with such all-round talent as Rowe.

The point may be made that Vernon Kennedy, pitcher for the White Sox, was an athlete of tremendous ability, he having just won the national decathlon title before he went into pro baseball. But, unlike Rowe, Kennedy did not star in football, basketball and golf.

ROWE'S FAME AROUND Arkansas was such that the Tigers didn't wait until he was a full-fledged high school star to sign him. Eddie Goosetree, the Tigers' scout, corraled young Rowe when he was a 15-year-old seventh grader and got his mother's signature on a Detroit contract. They put him on the retired list until he graduated from high school, but meanwhile Rowe's father signed him to contracts with the Cubs and Cardinals. It was a mess that Judge Landis had to straighten out.

The funny thing was, he didn't pitch baseball in high school. His coach wouldn't let him. He was too valuable a track and football man. When the El Dorado high track team set out for the Tri-State Championship meet in Rowe's senior year, it was a two-man affair—the coach and Lynwood Rowe. He was El Dorado's one-man track team and he won the championship of three States.

He used to win the javelin, the hurdles, the discus and the shot put in the field events, and the 100, the 220 and the 440-yard dashes. And on the third day of competition, he'd pack his golf clubs and win the Tri-State golf championship. He was All-State end in his first year of high school football, the All-State quarterback in his second, and in his last year he was All-State fullback.

THERE WERE OFFERS of scholarships from more than 40 colleges. Southern California didn't want him to play football—just a track man. Eastern colleges told him he could choose his field—golf, football or baseball. He finally enrolled at the University of Texas, after the Standard Oil Co., people who liked to do favors for the State, bought his father a house, a lot, a car and gave him a job.

Three weeks after he enrolled at Texas, they declared him ineligible because of the Detroit contract he had signed at 15, so he went to Beaumont with the Tigers. That was in 1932. In 1933, under Bucky Harris, he won seven games in 10 starts. In 1934, he won 16 in a row for the Tigers, tying any consecutive win record of Johnson, Grove and Joe Wood, and finished up with 24 victories in that pennant-winning year of the Tigers.

His victory streak nearly ended at 15, on a day in Washington when Monte Weaver had him licked, 4-2, in the eighth. Then Hank Greenberg hit a home run with a man on, and in the ninth Rowe himself hit the wall with a two bagger to win the game. He never did fool with a curve in those days. He just poured a fast ball in there with all the sinews of his 6 feet 4 inches and 205 pounds.

THE ARM went dead in 1937. He heard it crack in a spring training game against a minor league club. He stayed out of baseball that year and went to Beaumont in 1938. The fire was gone from his fast ball, he set about to learn about curves and knucklers, and he did all right. He won 14 and lost only two at Beaumont and the Tigers called him back.

There was a trip back to the minors at Montreal before Bucky Harris reclaimed him for the Phillies in 1942. He put in four years in the Navy, and with the Phillies in '46, he won 11 and lost only three with his slow stuff. Last season his record was 14 and 10. He and Dutch Leonard last season pitched the Phillies to victory in all of their first five double headers of the year.

He watches his weight apparently. "Seventeen years ago when I reported to the Tigers, I weighed 205 pounds," he said. "I weighed myself in the clubhouse yesterday, and it showed 205½."

Tulsa, Okla., April 12 (AP).—Hal Peck laid down a successful squeeze bunt with the bases loaded in the ninth inning today to give the Cleveland Indians a 6-to-5 victory over the New York Giants in an exhibition game.

The Indians jumped on Larry Jansen for four runs in the third inning, hitting him for three singles and a double by Aaron Robinson. They scored the winning runs off Jack Hallett in the ninth.

Jack Conway's pair of doubles and a triple by Johnny Kerr were the big blows in the Giants' attack.

Old Bobo Signs With Giants But Gets No Bonus

Tulsa, Okla., April 12 (AP).—The New York Giants today announced that Bobo Newsom, much-traveled pitcher of the National and American Leagues, had signed a contract and would join the club Sunday. 6Newsom received no bonus for signing, said Horace Stoneham, president of the Giants.

The veteran pitcher has served with eight other major league clubs during his 20-year career in professional baseball.

Newsom was dropped by the New York Yankees during the winter and has been working out with the Washington Nats. He had been holding out for a fat bonus from the Giants, who are desperately in need of pitchers. But the garrulous veteran failed

Sutherland Rites Today

Pittsburgh, April 12 (U.P.).—The football world has planned a State funeral tomorrow for Dr. John Bain (Pock) Sutherland, coach of the Pittsburgh Steelers, professional team, whose death cost the game one of its greatest figures.

Sutherland died of a brain tumor at 4:15 a. m. yesterday at the age of 59. The end came swiftly, just two days after he was found wandering airlessly in a Kentucky mud-choked swamp. The emergency operations failed to save his life.

Funeral services will be held at 4 p. m. tomorrow in Calvary Episcopal church here. Sutherland's body will lie in state at the church all day tomorrow, watched over by a guard of honor from the Varsity Lettermen's Club at the University of Pittsburgh, where Sutherland coached football for 15 years.

Active pallbearers will be the members of the 1047 Steeler 11.

Sutherland, the Scot who came to America as a poverty-stricken lad of 18, died with one of the greatest coaching records in history. Although the first football game he ever saw was the first one in which he played for Pitt, as a coach his teams won 172 games, lost 44 and tied 15 over a 24-year period.

G. W. Golfers Lose to W. & L.

Lexington, Va., April 12 (AP).—Washington and Lee's golf team overwhelmed George Washington University, 8½-½ here today.

The Generals dropped a half point in the No. 1 match when George Washington's Bill Griffin shot a 73 to halve the match with the Generals' Gordon Sibley. Sibley turned in a 74. Griffin's low of 73 was matched by both Wes Brown and Jack McCormick, who spent the No. 2 and No. 3 matches for Washington and Lee.

The summaries:

Bill Griffin (GW) halved with Gordon Sibley; Wes Brown (W. & L.) defeated Ken White,6 and 5. Washington and Lee won best ball, 4 and 3.

Jack McCormick (W. & L.) defeated Henry Kettles, 4 and 2; John McKelway (W. & L.) defeated Ted Linder, 3 and 2. Washington and Lee won best ball, 4 and 2.

Cliff Thoma, (W. & L.) defeated Gene Hall, 5 and 4; Dick Lewis, W. & L.) defeated Earl Morgan, 1 up. Washington and Lee won best ball, 4 and 2.

Holy Cross' Julian Named Celtics' Coach

Boston, April 12 (AP).—Alvin (Doggy) Julian, Holy Cross basketball coach, has signed a three-year contract to coach the Boston College Celtics in the professional Basketball Association of America.

Walter Brown, general manager of the Boston Garden, told reporters today that Julian's contract with the Celtics carries a bonus clause based on attendance that "can make him the highest paid basketball coach in the country."

The Celtics have lost $200,000 in the last two years, Brown said.

John (Honey) Russell, who has coached the Boston pro club, was offered a job with the Celtics in an advisory capacity, but declined. Brown said Russell's contract still had another year to run and that he would be paid even though Julian takes over the club.

Julian directed Holy Cross to 65 victories in 75 games during the last three seasons and led the Crusaders to the NCAA basketball championship a year ago.

Julian was signed by the Celtics a week agon, Brown said, but requested the announcement be withheld until he had an opportunity to talk with Holy Cross officials who were away at the time.

Julian is also on the Holy Cross football staff as backfield coach under Dr. Bill Osmanski. He said he intended to remain until spring football practice winds up in May.

Brown refused to confirm reports that Julian, who recently turned down several coaching offers, had accepted $8000 terms.

Since the Boston Garden is Holy Cross' home floor, Brown admitted that his negotiations with Julian had been "ticklish."

"We went after 'Doggie' only when we had been assured that his three-year Holy Cross contract had expired and he had decided not to renew it," Brown explained.

Bum Pitching Just That—Leo

Baltimore, April 12 (AP).—Leo Durocher amazed the folk in Baltimore today by some uncomplimentary remarks about his team's pitching, but all the same he forecast the Brooklyn Dodgers would be just as hard to catch as last year.

The Lip an dhis Dodgers are in town to wind up an exhibition series with the Orioles of the International League.

He told interviewers that the Bums have "the worst pitching staff of the loop"—all this in spite of the fact they have won 26 of their 27 exhibition games.

Durocher didn't go into detail about the shortcomings of his mound staff, but it caused his hearers (and probably the rest of the National League teams, too) to wonder just what would satisfy him.

He never predicted where he would finish but the "Cards with all that pitching are the team to beat, and the Braves will be right up there, too."

Willing to discuss almost anything dealing with the Bums, Durocher had a brief answer to question whether he regretted that Stanky had gone to the Braves.

"Stanky's a nice boy," was his only comment.

Dillard Named Best in Track

New York, April 12, (AP).—Harrison Dillard, national hurdles champion from Baldwin-Wallace College, was named the outstanding performer of the past indoor track and field season today by the New York Track Writers Association.

Dillard, winner of 54 straight races in less than a year, will be given a trophy similar to that presented to five other athletes since the award was inaugurated in 1941. There were no other nominations.

Saggy Beats Out Citation by a Length

By Walter Haight
Post Reporter

Havre de Grace, Md., April 12.—Calumet Farm's mighty Citation went down to defeat here today by a length margin before the speed of Mrs. Helen L. Sagner's Saggy.

A crowd of 10,634 bet Citation as if the $10,000 added Chesapeake Trial were already run and then came out to see the Kentucky Derby favorite, with Eddie Arcaro up, stage a bold rush, too late to catch the Baltimore-owned chestnut colt.

Citation was beaten, but the consensus of the press box was that he remains a great horse and an almost "sure thing" to take the Louisville classic. He had an excuse, being forced wide into the homestretch.

Saggy, for whom Stanley Sagner, a Baltimore clothing manufacturer bid $4700 in a Pimlico yearling sale against the advice of his trainer, broke a seven-race winning streak for Citation. The Calumet Express' only previous defeat was in the Washington Park Futurity last August when experts believed he was rated so Bewitched, a stablemate, could win.

Saggy's notable triumph came on the same oval where he equaled a world record for 5½ furlongs last year. He was capably handled by Jockey Don MacAndrew.

In the third position came another Maryland-owned campaigner, Mrs. J. V. Stewart's Dr. Almac. He was 4½ lengths behind Citation. Bovard, the S. W. Labrot, jr., Hope, Alan T. Clarke's Fritz Maisel and the High Ground Stable's Hefty finished in the order named.

Saggy Pays $10

Saggy was clocked in 1:12 2/5, creditable because the track was heavy as the result of rain last night and this morning. He returned a $10 mutuel. So heavy was the show play on Citation that a minus pool of $15,242 in that betting position resulted, each of the money horses paying $2.20 to show, the minimum allowed by Maryland law.

Arcaro did not ride an abusing race on Citation. The colt broke on top and was rated along as Hefty, Saggy and Dr. Almac vied for the pace. Citation was taken to the outside.

Leaving the backstretch, Saggy shook oc Hefty and Dr. Almac to gain a good lead while Arcaro seemed to be bidisg his time with Citation.

Swinging for the stretch, Arcaro was forced wide when the tiring Hefty drifted out. Saggy continued to draw out on Dr. Almac. Arcaro then shook up Citation and the son of Bull Lea charged at Saggy. Jockey Don MacAndrew then stung Saggy with his whip and the colt held on. There was no doubt that Saggy would have been a beaten 3-year-old in a few more jumps.

Preview for Big Race

It was the fourth running of the trial, a preview for Saturday's $25,000 added Chesapeake at a mile and a sixteenth. Citation gave 4 pounds to Saggy today. The race, the second victory in five starts this year for Saggy brought earnings of $8360.

Calumet Farm's Beau Dandy, scratched out of the Chesapeake Trial, made good in the Elkton, the day's secondary feature. The son of Bull Lea was a ridden out winner by three parts of a length over A. Klee's King Midas. Four lengths back came Cedar Farm's Brandy Punch to be third in the

Coaltown Runs In Preakness

Havre de Grace, Md., April 12 (AP).—Calumet Farm came up with a one-two hunch today for the May 15 Preakness at Pimlico by announcing it would make Citation and Coaltown supplementary entries.

Calumet skipped regular nominations for the second of the three classics for three-year-olds. It will cost $3,000 for each entry, plus another $1000 apiece to start.

Trainer Jimmy Jones said Owner Warren Wright had decided it was worth it to send his two fleetest colts after the $100,000-added money in the Preakness.

Jones reiterated Calumet's new policy of withholding stake starters as long as possible. He explained the stable had so many potential winners that it would cost as much to keep them all eligible as to wait until the last minute and enter the best conditioned as the race approached.

The decision to run Coaltown along with the established Citation was Calumet's confirmation of the coming of age of another son of Bull Lea. Coaltown didn't race last year.

But this season he reeled off three wins that had the clockers blinking and wondering it perhaps Citation would find his conqueror in a stablemate.

Wensloff Sold To Cleveland

New York, April 12 (U.P.).—Charley Wensloff, a holdout pitcher with a sore right arm and a unique sense of values, was sold to the Cleveland Indians for $20,000 by the New York Yankees.

The Yankees had earlier sold Wensloff to the Philadelphia Phils, but the National League club couldn't come to terms with him and returned him to New York Saturday.

Phils Post 3d Straight Over Griffs

By Shirley Povich
Post Reporter

Greenville, S. C., April 12.—The punchless Nats unleashed a batting attack comprised of three misjudged doubles and two infield singles today and took their third straight beating from the Phillies.

They staved off defeat until the eighth inning, when Harry Walker hit a two-run homer to win the game, 4 to 3.

Sid Hudson went the full nine-inning route for the Nats and allowed eight hits. He was given a gift 3-0 lead in the opening inning, and after that the Nats were held to three hits and with Early Wynn's pinch-hit single in the ninth their oly blow after the fourth inning.

Hudson took a 3-2 lead in the eighth and had one out when Del Ennis lined a fiery single off Al Kozar's glove.

Then Comes Walker

The next pitch was decisive. National League batting champion, Harry Walker, who used to play for Greenville, belted it over the right field wall.

A pair of Phillies rookies, the expensive young southpaw Curt Simmons and righthander Lou Brasnik, could have shut the Nats out with better luck. All of the Nats' runs and their three doubles were the gifts of Del Ennis, who played right field as if he were in the hire of the Nats.

Ennis misplayed Al Kozar's double to right in the opening inning after Sullivan had walked, and a walk to Coan filled the bases.

Vernon struck out in the crisis, but Culberson got a run in with a fly to center. Robertson drove a fly into left field, and Ennis played it as if the ball were radioactive. It dropped for a cheap two-bagger, scoring two more.

Yost Fails in Pinch

The closest the Nats came to scoring after that was in the third when they filled the bases with two out on Kozar's booted grounder, a walk, and Robertson's infield hit. Eddie Yost stranded 'em with an infield tap.

The only Washington hits after that were Sullivan's double in the fourth that Ennis misjudged, and pinch hitter Early Wynn's infield single with one out in the ninth. His pinch runner didn't get away from first base.

Hudson was wild in the second inning and the Phils got a cheap run. After he hit Dick Sisler with a pitched ball and wild-pitched him to second, Walker singled him home.

With two out in the fourth, Miller and Seminick rapped Hudson for singles and the big pitcher yielded another run when he made

Pinehurst, N. C., April 12 (AP).—Peggy Kirk of Findlay, Ohio, posted a 37, 35-72 here today to win medalist honors by five strokes in the forty-sixth North and South women's golf tournament.

The 26-year-old Rollins College graduate equalled woman's par for the first nine holes and bettered it by two strokes on the way back.

Five strokes back of Miss Kirk were Carol Diringer, Tiffin, Ohio; Helen Sigel, Philadelphia, and Mrs. J. D. Platt, jr., Pinehurst. All had 39, 38—77.

Washington's Mrs. J. P. Trouch-ard of Kenwood shot a 45, 44—89.

Dressing Room Plan Abandoned

Baltimore, April 12 (AP).—Football squads of Navy, Notre Dame, and the professional Baltimore Colts team may have to dress in city high schools at least an eighth of a mile away from the Municipal Stadium during the fall grid season.

City officials said plans for the overall remodeling of the Baltimore bowl had called for a temporary dressing room for use by teams while the old facilities were razed.

But Mayor Thomas D'Alesandro's stadium committee proposed that construction of the $50,000 temporary dressing room facilities be abandoned. The squads use facilities at nearby high schools, the group suggested.

President Truman Tells Griff He'll Be on Hand Monday

President Truman limbered up his pitching arm yesterday for his annual hurling assignment at Griffith Stadium next Monday.

His "spring training" was confined to extending his right hand to accept a pass to all American League games which was offered by Nats' President Clark Griffith.

Griffith said the President would attend Monday's opener between the Nats and the New York Yankees and agreed to throw out the first ball—with his right hand.

The President, who throws equally well or as bad with either hand, has worked as a southpaw in the past.

Philly, Bullets Resume Series

Philadelphia, April 12 (AP).—The Philadelphia Warriors will try for two in a row tomorrow night in the second game of the final Basketball Association of America playoff series against the Baltimore Bullets.

Philadelphia entered the final playoff by virtue of its semifinal victory over St. Louis. Baltimore disposed of New York and Chicago in preliminary round games.

Bo Rowland Takes a Cab Ride, Winds Up With Prayer Book From Sympathetic Driver

By Morris Siegel

ALTHOUGH the season's opener is more than six months away, Bo Rowland is already receiving sympathy. It came from a cab driver, once a student at GW, who upon discovering his passenger was the George Washington football coach, gave Rowland a prayer book . . . Charlie Walker and his Variety Club fight committee meet today to map preliminary plans for the club's charity show this summer . . . Georgetown recently purchased a splendid indoor track at the "bargain" price of $14,000 . . . the newly-organized Baseball Umpires Association is boasting over the fact that two charter members of the D. C. Umpire Association "jumped" to the new organization . . . Golden Gloves Champion Jimmy Garaway is expected to turn pro any day now . . .

There's no such thing as a life-time job in the D. C. Basketball officials Association, but Dallas Shirley is beginning to believe his fellow arbiters are trying to perpetuate him in office. He was reelected secretary-treasurer for the tenth straight time at the annual election over the week-end . . . Sidney Lust's annual opening day baseball party for 150 "outstanding Washington and Maryland personalities" heads Monday's noon social activities . . . Pfc. Raymond (Dirty Red) Jones of Washington, has compiled such an outstanding record as coach of the United States Air Force boxing team at Roth, Germany, he has been selected to be an assistant coach for the Army's Olympic boxing team . . .

The Howard U. publicity man explains his team's 17-1 loss to N. C. College in Durham this way: "Due to wet grounds at the original site, the game was played under adverse conditions" . . . If Maryland Lightweight Andy Quattrocchi turns pro, as he says he's not planning to, he'll be managed by Al Weill, says Al Weill . . . there are still a few tickets (bleacher) left for the Nat-Yankee opener Monday . . . Clark Griffith is one of the many outstanding baseball figures who will take part on Red Barber's "Play Ball" program over CBS Saturday night from 8 to 9. It's the story of Peewee Reese . . . every time Lloyd Mangrum wins a golf tournament this year George May, Mangrum's boss at Tam O'Shanter, gives him $1000. MYRIXON was allowed to settle into stride, improved position gradually and closed fast to wear down BEAUZAR. The latter went to leaders with a rush, disposed of CHARLES CITY to take command, but could not resist winner. TIMOTI moved up menacingly from sluggish start and weakened in final drive. EXPLORATION rallied then tired. SIR BOGIE was through early. MARKLESS was rushed to the front and stopped.

Pat O'Neill Is Eligible For Track

By Herb Heft
Post Reporter

A slight technicality in the District's interhigh age eligibility rule has paved the way for Pat O'Neill to add his first track letter to those he previously earned in football, basketball and baseball.

The rule states that a boy may participate in track if he has not passed his nineteenth birthday by January 1, opening date of track practice. The same rule applies to baseball, only the deadline date is March 1.

Pat's nineteenth birthday was in February. Therefore he is eligible to compete on Wilson's track team, but not in baseball.

Pat has done well enough in practice to make him Wilson's top 220 runner and a member of the 880 and one mile relay teams.

Billy Penn, former Coolidge High and Yale University football star, will coach the Naval Reserve baseball team in the District Recreation Department League this summer . . . Miss Dorothy Quayle, Bethesda-Chevy Chase High's girls athletic director holds Ohio's women's intercollegiate hammer throwing record. She set it at Denison College 10 years ago . . . Aaron Silverman, righthanded pitcher who is making the grade with the Buffalo Bisons of the International League, wasn't good enough to rate a uniform when he was on the Central High squad here back in 1937 . . . McKinley Tech High has the distinction of being the only local school ever to hold the national senior eight-oar crew championship. Back in 1916, under direction of Football Coach Clarence Hecox, Tech won the title in a regatta in Philadelphia. The eight burliest members of the Tech football team manned the oars . . . Latest rumors have Roger Antaya succeeding Charlie Guy as athletic director at Bullis, and John Maddon taking over from Bob Mavity in the same capacity at Fairfax High. Guy and Mavity resigned last month. Antaya is an assistant football coach at George Washington University, and Maddon is a member of the Fredericksburg, Va., public school athletic department.

a wild throw on Simmons' rap into the box. That adjusted the Phils' deficit to 3-2, an item Walker took care of in the eighth.

In their last three battles with the Phils, the Nats have now totaled 15 hits and 7 runs and are not recommending themselves as pennant winners. Harry Walker's career as a Greenville outfielder several seasons back lasted only one night. He was bought that afternoon and released following the game, in which he misjudged three fly balls. Al Kozar's fielding at second base was the only bright feature of the game for the Nats. Mickey Vernon got the biggest hand from the 2500 natives who saw the game. He used to be Greenville's first baseman. Greenville revisited was not a happy occasion for Vernon, though. In his first time at bat, he struck out with the bases full. The Nats and Phils move on to Anderson, S. C., tomorrow.

Starting Officials For ECA Operation Are Announced

ECA: These are among the people who will operate, at least temporarily, the Economic Cooperation Administration, which is handling the European Recovery Program:

WAYNE C. TAYLOR, former Undersecretary of Commerce, is the director of operations.

DONALD C. STONE, assistant director of the Budget Bureau in charge of administrative management, is chief of administration.

JAMES H. HARD, Treasury's personnel director, is personnel director.

GILBERT L. CAKE, associate commissioner of Treasury's Bureau of Accounts, is chief of the accounting division.

FRANK CAWLEY, budget officer of the Commerce Department, is chief of the budget division. He's being assisted by ED WILBUR, who is also from the Budget Bureau.

Each of these men, with the exception of Taylor, is on temporary detail to ECA. A White House assistant arranged for their release from their present jobs.

There was a report yesterday that CLINTON GOLDEN would be offered a top job in ECA. Golden is a former CIO official who served in several wartime Federal agencies. More recently he has worked on the Greek aid program.

Meantime, Civil Service has adopted a program to prevent any delay on its part in getting people on the job in ECA. It has assigned William Haslam as its liaison with the new agency. Also, it has detailed several of its top classification people to write up job sheets and to fix the salaries of jobs.

If it wishes, ECA can make an agreement with Civil Service to hire any or all of its own people and to give them emergency indefinite appointments up to June 30, 1952. Civil Service would retain the right to classify the jobs. No person appointed under this relaxation of rules would be permitted to be given Civil Service status. Further, ECA must work out a system to give preference to veterans.

CUSTOMS: A year ago an awful howl was raised in Congress over the administration of Treasury's Customs Bureau. A private management firm, McKinsey & Co. of New York, was hired to make a study of of the agency. The firm has made its report. It recommends a few changes, but it came to this firm conclusion: That customs is as well operated as the average industrial concern. That conclusion, incidentally, will disappoint a few Congressmen.

NSRB: The National Security Resources Board has made these appointments: Henry F. Hurley as administrative officer; Gilbert Jacobus, a consultant to study censorship; Leighton H. Peebles, a consultant to study communication problems, and John J. Croston, a consultant on nonferrous metals.

Jacobus was in Army Intelligence and the Office of Censorship during the war. Peebles and Croston were both in the War Production Board.

NOTES: Civil Service has exempted from its rules 30 jobs in the Office of Civil Defense Planning which is a part of the Office of National Defense . . . Civil Service has announced exams for engineer jobs in Interior's Reclamation Bureau here and in the Western States. The jobs pay from $2644 to $5905 to start . . . The House Civil Service Committee meets again today on the pay raise bill.

AWARD: The War Assets Administration has given one of its employes a $1000 award for saving the agency an estimated $525,000 a year. The employe is Francis A. Durante and he works in its Portland, Oreg., office. He suggested an IBM method of inventory analysis (of surplus war goods) which is being extended to all WAA offices.

EMPLOYMENT: The Federal employe population is creeping upward again. Civil Service reports a net increase of 11,390 employes during February, bringing up the total to 2,015,364 on March 1. And 1383 of that increase was in this city, mainly in the Commerce and Justice Departments.

Total employment in the executive branch here on March 1 was 199,784, plus about 25,000 additional in the other branches of Government. Over-all, the big increase of 6821 was in the Postoffice Department. The Army, Navy, and Air Forces also reported increases.

CIVILIAN: The Selective Service bill being considered by the House Armed Forces Committee provides among other things: That the director shall be chosen from civilian life, and that not more than three military people, either active or retired, shall be in the agency after it has operated for a year. The Selective Service high command was just about an all military operation during World War II.

OVERSEAS: To help civilian recruiting for overseas duty, the Army will now pay transportation home and return for their employes who have served two years, provided they sign up for another tour of duty.

FPC: His friends say that Harrington Wimberly, a member of the Federal Power Commission, will not support the Rizley bill as it is reported here Sunday. However, those who were opposing his renomination say that he has supported changes which are similar to those in the Rizley bill. The bill's opponents say, would result in natural gas consumers paying substantially higher rates. Wimberly's friends also say he is making no campaign for renomination but that he'll take it if offered.

Dalstrom Is Suspended Without Pay By Fire Dept.

Officer Must Face Trial Board After Drunk Driving Case Concludes

Superintendent of Machinery Ivan J. Dalstrom, of the District Fire Department who was charged Sunday with drunk and reckless driving in a department sedan, has been suspended from duty without pay.

In addition, Dalstrom, who draws the pay of a deputy chief engineer, will face a Fire Department trial board after the driving charges are disposed of in the Hyattsville Police Court, Acting Chief Engineer F. G. Berry said yesterday. A court hearing is set for Monday.

Dalstrom was suspended at 2:30 p. m. Sunday, three hours after the car which he was reportedly driving hit the rear of a vehicle which stopped for a traffic light at 38th st. and Bladensburg rd., Colmar Manor. The fireman told police he was returning to his home at 5317 Greenway dr., Springbrook ter., Hyattsville, at the time of collision.

The suspension action was taken by Berry after an examination by Dr. G. Louis Weller, jr., member of the Board of Police and Fire Surgeons, showed Dalstrom was "under the influence of alcohol."

The veteran fireman posted $126.70 collateral on the two charges at the Hyattsville Police Station. Monday's hearing on the charges is scheduled for 7:30 p. m. before Trial Magistrate Arthur P. Owen in the Hyattsville Police Court.

Prince Georges County police said Dalstrom could elect to forfeit the collateral, but then would have to face a hearing by the Board of License Revocation on revocation of his driving license.

Prince Georges police records show that Dalstrom was charged with drunken and reckless driving on July 2, 1947, but the charges were nolle prossed for lack of prosecution.

Assistant Superintendent of Machinery William H. Boswell has been appointed acting superintendent during the suspension.

The Washington Post

OUTSTANDING BOY PATROLMAN—Daniel H. Glaize, voted outstanding patrol leader at Montgomery Hills Junior High for three years, although victim of a crippling spastic condition, has received an even greater honor. He was awarded the American Automobile Association's gold medal for distinguished service. Joining him in a smile of pride is his sister, Sandra, 4

Daniel H. Glaize, 17-year-old Silver Spring, Md., school patrol boy who hopes to make safety his life work, has been awarded a gold "distinguished service" medal by the American Automobile Association.

The medal has usually been for boys who actually saved a life, according to George R. Hammond, safety director for the District of Columbia division of the AAA.

Danny, who lives at 8600 Milford rd., and is also a carrier for The Washington Post in the Rosemary Hills subdivson, displayed his medal yesterday. It reads: "Awarded for dstinguished service in protecting the lives of children."

For three consecutive years, Danny has been voted "outstanding patrolman" at his school, a record achieved by no other boy in the Greater Washington area, according to Hammond.

Surrently a student at Montgomery Hills Junior High School, where he is patrol captain, he has also performed safety work at Cranch-Tyler School, 12th and G sts. se., and Woodside Elementary School, Silver Spring.

The son of Mr. and Mrs. Ralph E. Glaize, Danny says he has been interested in safety work "ever since I can remember." Yesterday he displayed bulging scrapbooks of literature and newspaper clippings on the subject.

"Everyone thinks I'm interested in safety because of my crippled condition, which was caused by an accident," Danny declared. "But that isn't true at all," he said. "I just think it's an awful important subject, that's all."

Limit Hit By Private Charity Units

Community Chest, Social Agencies Say No New Burdens Can Be Assumed

Private charity here is in no position to take on additional responsibilities that should come under public assistance.

This statement was made yesterday by representatives of the Council of Social Agencies and the Washington Community Chest.

They testified in closed hearings before the House Subcommittee on District appropriations, considering the $13,258,009 budget of the District Department of Public Welfare.

Percy Weinberg, director of the American Legion Welfare program and member of the Council, urged subcommittee members to restore previous cuts in the budget made by District Commissioners before it was sent to Congress.

Compensation Bill Opposed By Business

A spokesman for Washington business yesterday opposed a bill to increase workmen's compensation for longshoremen because the measure, unwittingly, increases injury benefits for all District employes.

Through a legislative quirk, of Congress in 1928 enacted a workmen's compensation law which covers longshoremen on a national scale, and all kinds of workers in the District on a local scale.

This law provides compensation to injured longshoremen—and employes in the District—at the rate of two-thirds of the average weekly earnings, but limits maximum weekly benefits to $25.

Phone Ruse Is Used To Loot Apartment

A store looter suspect (who was caught) and a fast-moving apartment ransacker (who got away) were subjects of police attention yesterday.

First, the one that didn't get away:

At 2:45 a. m. yesterday, Pvts. Robert L. Reavis and Samuel N. Gough of the Eleventh Precinct cruised past Gentry's Market, 923 Kenilworth ave. ne., in a scout car. The usual light in the front of the store was on. Everything looked all right. They rode on.

They drove by again 15 minutes later. This time the front light was off, but a light was burning in the rear of the store. They saw a shadow moving on the wall inside the store.

They went to the rear of the premises and found the rear door of an adjoining variety store had been forced. They entered the variety store and found somebody had punched a large hole in a thin plywood wall. They went through the hole—into the market next door.

In a rear storeroom of the market they found a man curled up on a shelf, trying, perhaps, to pass himself off as a sack of potatoes.

Police said the man identified himself as James Howard Milton, 24, of 2519 I st. nw. They said a search of his pockets brought forth a cap pistol, a supply of caps, a nail punch, a pocket knife, a jar of vaseline, a pack of cigarettes, razor blades, chewing gum, and cough drops.

Nearby they found a large burlap bag, which had been filled with bacon, eggs, pork chops, ham, sardines and some canned goods. Police said Milton would be charged with housebreaking.

Now, the one who got away:

About 10 minutes after her mother had left, Miss Markley received a telephone call from a man who did not identify himself. He told her that a woman by the name of Markley had been involved in an accident.

The daughter rushed to the street, looked around, saw nothing and returned. She was gone only 10 minutes, but in that time the apartment had been turned upside down.

A pocketbook containing $40 was missing. The thief, however, overlooked another purse containing a small amount of money and a diamond wrist watch and a diamond wedding band, which were in a drawer.

The Washington Post

LYNNE MARKLEY, 21, student nurse at Sibley Hospital, looks through her purse rifled by a thief who broke into her home at 4850 MacArthur Blvd. yesterday. He got $40

Buck Hopes To Bring Up D. C. Rent Bill Today

Extends Controls For Year; Transient Hotel Amendment Given Approval

Senator C. Douglass Buck (R., Del.) said last night he hopes to bring up in the Senate today the bill to extend District rent control in modified form to April 30, 1949.

Senator Wayne Morse (R., Oreg.) blocked action on the bill yesterday, but made clear that it was done only so that he could have further opportunity to study it.

Before the Senate put the bill aside, Senator Buck obtained approval for an amendment which he said would make sure that while transient hotel rooms were decontrolled the rooms of permanent guests would still be controlled.

Later Housing Also

The bill calls for taking controls off transient hotel rooms and nonhousekeeping rooms in private homes with no more than two paying guests effective April 30. New housing that reaches the market after March 31 as the result of new construction or reconversion would also be taken from under control as of April 30.

Senator Joseph H. Ball (R., Minn.) blocked action on the bill to authorize a five-day work week for firemen. Senate District Committee aides recalled that he had opposed the bill in committee on the ground that funds should be available for the program before it is approved. The present work week is six days.

Four Bills Approved

Four District bills were approved by the Senate. They would:

1. Revise the District law on driving permits to permit an expanded driver training program in the public high schools.

2. Admit out-of-town doctors to practice here without examination if they are certified as having passed a national board examination.

3. Fix the salaries of Alcoholic Beverage Control Board members under the Federal Classification Act.

4. Remove the District 5 per cent franchise tax from firms which do not have offices, warehouses or other places of business here.

The first three bills go to the White House. The tax bill goes to the House, where Representative George J. Bates (R., Mass.) said his Disetrict Fiscal Affairs Subcommittee would give it speedy attention.

W. & L. U. Confers Degrees on Eight At Anniversary

Lexington, Va., April 12 (AP).—Washington and Lee University today conferred honorary degrees on eight persons at a Washington-Cincinnati Society convocation.

The convocation marked the sesquicentennial anniversary of George Washington's gift of $50,000 securities to Liberty Hall Academy, the university's forerunner, and first large gift to an American school.

Dr. James G. Randall, University of Illinois historian and Lincoln biographer, in addressing the convocation, reviewed war scares of the past—predictions of war that did not come to pass.

Doctor of letters degrees went to Randall; Donald Davidson, professor of English literature, Vanderbilt University; Urban Tigner Holmes, professor of Romance Philology, University of North Carolina; Charles Sackett Sydnor, Duke University historian; Charles Holt Taylor, professor of Mediaeval History, Harvard University; David Elton Trueblood, philosopher, dean of Earlham College in Indiana.

William Clyde De Vane, dean of Yale College and professor of English, received the doctor of humane letters degree. The doctor of divinity degree was conferred on David Herchell Wice, rabbi of the Rodelph Shalom Synagogue, Philadelphia.

Solomons Man Drowns In Creek Near Home

Solomons, Md., April 12 (AP).—Harvey Buark, 50, formerly of Baltimore, was drowned in Back Creek near his home here today, police reported. Dr. Earl S. Coster, assistant Calvert County medical examiner, filed a certificate of death by accidental drowning.

Ruark's wife found his body in the creek at the foot of a small pier. She explained he had been in ill health, had probably fainted and fallen into the water.

Fled at Cries

Police Hunt Housewife's Assailant

Police yesterday sought the assailant of a Washington housewife who said she was attacked Sunday night when she was hanging up wash in the basement of her apartment.

Mrs. Irene B. Simmons, of 4411 1st pl. ne., 42, told police she was seized by the throat from behind and flung to the floor by a tall, light-skinned Negro. He fled at her screams, she related.

Description of the assailant, police said, did not tally with that of the Negro who similarly attacked and raped a 24-year-old mother of two children in her apartment house basement laundry at 1434 Harvard st. nw. on April 1.

Mrs. Simmons was treated by a private physician for bruises of the leg and elbow. Two front teeth were broken off, she told police.

Officials Still Oppose Fare Hike

Cumberland, Md., April 12 (AP).—The mayor and council remained firm today in opposing a fare increase for local Potomac Edison Co. buses.

A letter from the company was read to the council. The only comment came from Mayor Thomas S. Post, who stated "the council already has gone on record."

Even with the proposed increase the company estimated its net income for this year at $3000 or six tenths of one per cent of gross revenue.

Labor groups have joined the mayor and council in opposing the proposed increase. The Public Service Commission has scheduled a hearing April 20.

23-Cent Raise Ends 12-Day Painter Strike

Settlement of the 12-day walkout of AFL painters here was announced yesterday.

J. Robert Carey, legal counsel for the contractors, said workers were granted a 23 cents an hour wage increase, from $1.95 to $2.18 on all new work. They will return to work today, he said.

The new pay scale, Carey reported, will be retroactive to April 1 and will be embodied in the current contract, which runs through next March. The union originally asked for a $2.25 scale.

Carey announced simultaneously that he would ask dismissal of a court suit seeking to terminate a trust fund agreement with the local painters' labor union as well as charges of unfair labor practices filed against the union with the National Labor Relations Board. Union officials could not be reached for comment.

Assisting in settlement of the dispute, which involved Locals 368, 890 and 797 of the Brotherhood of Painters, Decorators and Paperhangers of America, was Conciliation Commissioner James Holden.

Baltimore Police Slayer Is Given Death Sentence

Baltimore, April 12 (AP).—A sentence of death by hanging was imposed today on 24-year-old Roy Arnold Wood for the killing of a Baltimore policeman.

Almost without visible emotion, the young bricklayer from Whitehall, Md., heard the sentence.

Wood was sentenced for the killing last February 13 of Patrolman Joseph D. Benedict, 38, father of three children. He was convicted March 12 before Judges Emory H. Niles, John Tucker and Robert France.

All three judges were on the bench and concurred in rejecting a defense plea for a life sentence.

Gov. William Preston Lane, jr., will fix the date of the execution. Before it is carried out, the Court of Appeals will review the case.

Benedict was killed when he halted a taxicab. There had been a taxi robbery shortly before, and Benedict asked the driver if everything was all right.

Wood was a passenger in the cab. At the trial he said he fired because he thought Benedict was going to arrest him.

Donohoe to Head Southeast Businessmen

John F. Donohoe, first vice president of the John F. Donohoe & Sons real estate firm, 314 Pennsylvania ave. se., last night was elected president of the Southeast Businessmen's Association.

Meeting at 321 Pennsylvania ave. se., the group also elected: Cy Seibert, first vice president; Grant Ridgley, second vice president; Alonzo Thompson, third vice president; Alex Berlin, treasurer; Louis F. Frick, secretary, and Jack O'Connell, sergeant-at-arms.

British Plane Sets New Mark Of 605.230 MPH

London, April 12 (U.P.).—A secret, boomerang-shaped De Havilland plane officially broke the 100-kilometer closed circuit air speed record today at 605.230 miles an hour.

The new record was confirmed officially by the International Aeronautics Federation.

Former RAF Pilot John Derry flew the plane. The previous record was 564.881 miles an hour, set by M. J. Lithgow in a Vickers jet fighter last February 27.

Windsors Move Into New Mansion, Just for Lunch

Locust Valley, N. Y., April 12 (U.P.).—The Duke and Duchess of Windsor moved into their lavish new rented mansion today—for lunch.

They received at Severen, a French provincial-style chateau, situated on a 56-acre estate in the swanky North Shore of Long Island, shortly after noon. They lunched there and returned to New York late in the afternoon.

The duke and duchess are preparing to leave for a visit at White Sulphur Springs, W. Va., where they will be guests of Robert R. Young, railroad magnate. They are expected to move into the mansion April 23.

The chateau has six master bedrooms.

Virginia Expects To Drop Ration Plan

Richmond, Va., April 12 (AP).—A spokesman for the State Corporation Commission said today that if the coal miners go back to work promptly, there will be no need for power rationing in Virginia.

Therefore, added Judge L. McCarthy Downs, a member of the SCC, the power rationing case set for hearing Tuesday morning probably will be dismissed.

Habeas Corpus Move In Assault Dismissed

Baltimore, April 12 (AP).—Judge Michael J. Manley today remanded Theodore Mentzer to the House of Correction to continue a five-year assault term, and dismissed a habeas corpus proceedings.

Mentzer was sentenced March 4 in Frederick County.

VA Defends Viers Village Homes Price

The Veterans Administration yesterday joined the Federal Housing Administration in defending the $87000 sales price of Viers Mill Village homes as fair and reasonable.

Morgan J. Callahan, VA loan guarantee officer for the Washington area, declared that five appraisers from a VA panel had unanimously approved the $8700 sales price.

A subcommittee of the House Committee on Expenditures in Executive Departments has been investigating charges that the GI homes being built at Viers Mill Village, in adjacent Montgomery County, were poorly constructed and over priced.

Financing Plans

The project, when completed, is to be financed through FHA and VA.

FHA officials have testified that at today's prices of materials and labor, the four-room frame dwellings are fairly price dat $8700. The VA loan guarantee officer yesterday backed up this view, "if and when the houses are built and finished according to plans and specifications."

Both FHA and VA officials have emphasized that no government loan or guarantee will be behind the project until it is completed and found acceptable. Tentatively FHA has agreed to insure $7700 of the sales prices; VA, the remaining $1000.

Representative Melvin C. Snyder, subcommittee chairman, questioned the "public policy" of selection Richard L. Parli, Arlington architect, as one of the five appraisers for the development, on the ground that Parli had drawn the project plans for the builder, Haris Construction Co.

Appraisers Unanimous

Callahan said that Parli had been on the VA panel of approved appraisers for nearly two years; that he had deliberately picked Parli as one of the five appraisers because of his familiarity with the project; and that the five appraisers had to come up with a unanimous decision.

Max Greenberg, attorney for the builder, yesterday challenged the subcommittee to visit the development and find a single chimney that rocked or swayed, as has been charged by other witnesses. He offered to give $1000 to charity if such a chimney were found.

Courts Building Plan Urged By Justices

Federal justices here yesterday appealed to a Senate Public Works Subcommittee to approve the proposed new courts buildings for the District.

Chief Justice Harold M. Stephens of the United States Court of Appeals here, and Chief Justice Bolitha J. Laws of District Court told the subcommittee the need for the new building was urgent.

A House bill to authorize the $18,600,000 project has cleared the House Public Works Committee, but has been held up in the House Rules Committee.

Justice Stephens told the Senate subcommittee, with Senator John J. Williams (R., Del.) presiding, that planners of the new courts building had aimed primarily to provide "a useful and efficient machine for the operation of the courts."

Justice Laws said the confusion and delays resulting from the present cramped setup hurts the operation of the court, and "I am very much afraid it's bringing us inevitably into a certain amount of disrespect."

Former Senator John A. Danaher (R., Conn.), now an attorney practicing in Washington and in Hartford, Conn., declared that "here in the Nation's Capital we face a situation that should never confront the judiciary."

The proposed building would be located at 3d st. and Constitutoin ave. nw.

Area News in Brief

Traffic Tests Rate Woman Driver Top

When it comes to traffic know-how, the womenfolk are anything but dumb.

The report came yesterday from two experts on the subject—both men.

"Strange to relate," Police Capt. Loraine T. Johnson revealed, wives attending the city's new traffic violators' school make "better grades" than their spouses "even hough they can't dirve." Wives sometimes accompany their husbands to the school.

Later, Inspector Arthur E. Miller, also addressing the American Automobile Association's District Advisory Board luncheon in the Hotel Mayflower, pointed out that during 1946 "there wasn't a woman driver involved in a fatal accident in the District."

"I've seen many a man operating a vehicle with one hand and the other arm around a girl," Inspector Miller, who is in charge of traffic for the local police department, pointed out. "But I've never seen a girl operating a car with one hand."

Waring Antics and Tunes Score

From Yesterday's Late Editions

By Donald Engle

Constitution Hall, usually the scene of sedate audiences and sophisticated music on Sunday afternoons, was hit by an entertainment blockbuster yesterday afternoon, when Fred Waring and his (half a hundred) Pennsylvanians literally scored a bullseye with their tunes and antics.

In fact, after two solid hours of their fare, running the gamut from supercharged symphonic arrangements to the hottest jive, they were still going strong.

For years now the Pennsylvanians have been consistently at the top of the radio entertainment field, and for good reason. Much of their success derives simply from hard work, with empasis on infinite precision, smooth teamwork, distinctive arrangements and experimentation in new vocal and instrumental effects. The rest is chiefly due to Fred Waring's flair for leadership and showmanship, and the versatility of his musicians.

Actually, only a part of their talents are registed through a microphone, and you have to see them in action as we did yesterday to enjoy the rest. "Uncle" Lumpy Brannum's antics with his bull fiddle and false teeth are one of the funniest routines anywhere. with Daisy and her working gal patter a close second.

Among the soloists, Jane Wilson and Joanne Wheatley are as lovely to look at as to hear, and for them, pleasing voices and pulchritude go well together. Stuart Churchill's high tenor voice lends itself equally well to "The Lord's Prayer" and a folk song like "Foggy, Foggy Dew." Baritone Leonard Kranendonk was particularly effective in the dramatic "Journey's End," while the novelty offerings by Joe Marine and Mac Perrin were well received.

At Phillips Gallery

At the Phillips Gallery, a program of music by Washington's best known composer, Mary Howe, was presented by several soloists and a male choir, directed by Theadore Schaefer.

The program included four settings for male chorus, one for mixed quartet, nine songs for soprano voice, with Katherine Hansel as soloist, and three pieces for flute and piano, with Kenton Terry and Sol Sax playing the two parts respectively.

Among the solo songs, Mrs. Howe's setting of Victor Hugo's Reve is a perfect gem, with the music in keeping with the spirit of the lyrics and expertly wedded to the text. The same is true of the two German songs, Heute Geh Ich, and Mein Herz.

In the later songs, and particularly those grouped under the title of Three Serious Songs, the composer seems to be experimenting in a new idiom with which she is not at ease. These are predominantly in a melancholy mood, rising to emotional heights through increasing intensity of that melancholia rather than by contrast of mood. The settings for male chorus were both enjoyable and convincing, and were well performed by a select group under Mr. Schaefer's direction.

2-Year-Old Wins Grim Bout With Tuberculous Meningitis

Miss Bridget Burns, Public Health nurse, greets Billy
He Has Recovered from Tuberculosis Meningitis

Billy is a bouncy 2-year-old now wit ha great desire to go "by-by."

Even if "by-by" is just out in the front yard, he likes it, for he wants to move around, see things, touch them.

Until about a month ago Billy's world was a ward in Gallinger Hospital, where he spent more than a year recovering from tuberculous meningitis—a usually fatal illness.

Prompt Action Credited

The fact that Billy is alive today is due in large measure to prompt action of health officials here in arresting the disease.

It was discovered about five months after it was found that Billy's father had tuberculosis. Within a week after this was learned, arrangements were made to place the man in Glenn Dale Sanatorium.

Since children of Billy's age (he was then less than a year old) are particularly susceptible to infection, public health nurses of the District kept a close watch on the home.

There was the item of "terminal disinfection"—removing all possible sources of infection from the home.

Clinical Analysis Sought

Then, when Billy showed symptoms of tuberculosis, nurses sought clinical analysis of his condition. Billy soon was found to be suffering from the more serious tuberculosis meningitis.

He was discharged from Gallinger Hospital last month, and since then has put on about ' pounds. Yesterday, Miss Bridget Burns, a nurse of the D. C. Health Department, paid a visit to Billy's home as a checkup. His mother is to take him to the clinic next week for a more complete going-over.

While Billy's father is convinced that the child contracted the disease from him, Health Department officials saiy that there is no sure way to say where he got tuberculosis. They are taking every precaution to be sure Billy has his chance to grow up into healthy manhood.

Mrs. Wallace Dies; Mother Of Candidate

Des Moines, April 12 (AP).—Mrs. Mary Wallace, 80, the mother of third party presidential candidate Henry A. Wallace, died here today after a long illness.

At her bedside as death came at 6:15 p. m. (CST) were four of her children—Henry, James, Mrs. Annabelle J. McLay of Birmingham, Mich., and Mrs. Mary O. Bruggmann, of Washington, D. C., wife of the Swiss Minister to the United States.

Henry Wallace and Mrs. McLay had traveled by automobile from Chicago yesterday, arriving here late last night.

Two other children, Mrs. Ruth Wijkman, wife of the Swedish to Canada, Ottowa, and John B. Wallace, St. Petersburg, Fla., were en route to Des Moines.

Widow of Former Secretary

Mrs. Wallace was the widow of Henry C. Wallace, who served as Secretary of Agriculture under Presidents Harding and Coolidge.

At one time she changed her political affiliation from Republican to Democratic to avoid canceling her son's vote.

Members of the family said a rumor was untrue that Mrs. Wallace disapproved of Henry A. Wallace's third party movement.

"That was not true," her son, James Wallace, said. "She was not deeply interested in politics, but she was loyal personally to any one in her family in politics."

Born in New York City June 22, 1867, Mrs. Wallace moved to Des Moines with her family when she was very young. She was the daughter of John A. Brodhead, a lawyer and Civil War captain.

In 1895, the Wallaces moved to Des Moines, where Wallace joined his father, "Uncle Henry" Wallace, and John Wallace in establishing Wallace's Farmer, a farm magazine. They lived in Des Moines until Wallace went to Washington as Secretary of Agriculture in 1921.

Tobacco Prices Show 1947 Drop

The Agriculture Department reported yesterday that last year's flue-cured tobacco crop brought growers an average of 41.5 cents a pound, as compared with 48.5 for the 1946 crop.

Sales on 81 auction markets in Florida, Georgia, North Carolina, South Carolina and Virginia totaled 1,304,600,000 pounds, 37 million less than the record sold from the 1946 crop.

Growers' income from last year's crop was said to have totaled 541 million dollars, as compared with 650 million dollars from the previour year's.

SOS to Pentagon

Yanquis in Bogota Cable For More Light; American Tells of Lunch With Gaitan

By Mary Van Rensselaer Thayer

DURING THE hectic weekend down in Bogota, our military lads, assigned to both embassy and bashed-up conference, SOSed the Pentagon, asking that supplies be flown in.

What did they want—an atom bomb, machine guns, ammunition? Wrong! Nothing more warlike than candles and matches!

A literary pal of ours, an expert on Latin-American doings, tossed us a bright trifle about Liberal Leader Gaitan, whose assassination touched off the Bogota fuse. For days he'd tried

MRS. MESTA, MRS. TRUMAN, MRS. WILSON . . . thousands had a look-see unsuccessfully to snag Gaitan for an interview. Relaxing in romantic Latin-American atmosphere, our hero had a luncheon date with a senorita when Gaitan called, suggesting a midday get-together.

Business before pleasure being the basis of sound journalism, he contacted the gal, promised to feed her later in the afternoon. Over a spot of vine he told Gaitan what had happened.

"I always knew all gringos were crazy," the Liberal leader exclaimed, "but you're craziest of all. Who but a gringo would pass up a girl to lunch with me?"

"Extra Man" Offers Services

LAST SATURDAY hoards of sightseers tramped through embassies, legations, swell dwellings around Sheridan Circle, their pleasant curiosity benefiting Washington's Home for Incurables. Tea was served chez Mrs. George Mesta and tight-packed ticket takers squeezed in to have a look-see at our First Lady, Mrs. Woodrow Wilson, Mrs. Robert Vinson and other glamourites.

One man, however, let no grass grow under his toes in attempting a social deal. Singling out his hostess, he went straight to the point.

"You give parties," he said, "and must need extra men. "I'm unattached and very agreeable. Here's my name and address."

Turning to go, he added, "I hope you don't think me presumptuous!" Mrs. Mesta, stunned, shook her head.

New Merchandising Star

WE ADMIRE up-and-coming women. Newest addition to our list is a female who flies her own plane to and from business appointments. She's Mrs. C. Wesley Frame, daughter of the late Claude W. Kress, who built his pile via a 5 and 10 chain. Rosalind, who's the pretty mama of three small boys, lives on a 10,000-acre plantation at Yemassee, S. C., recently set herself up in the food business via a salad dressing.

It is not her own concoction—she tasted it at Aiken's Hitching Post Inn, thought it wonderful, persuaded the lady proprietors to sell her their secret. In short order, the dressing was handsomely bottled, Walt Disney designed a special label and today, only four months later, it is being bought by 14 of the country's most cuisine conscious hotels.

Rosalind has acquired a factory in Savannah, Ga., added to her line artichoke hearts in sumptuous dressing, and is about to market shrimps in a peppery sauce, and fresh lima beans, smoked and fixed up in some mysterious way.

There's no doubt Rosalind inherited the family genius for merchandising, but it didn't all "come naturally." Before her marriage 10 years ago, she took courses in business administration, worked with her uncle in the Kress stores. She is flying here this week to peddle her wares in the local caravanseraies.

Lady Astor's Barbs Strike At Communists, U. S. Press

Official, diplomatic and residential Washington society jammed the Palladian Room in the Shoreham Hotel yesterday afternoon to hear Lady Astor confirm or refute alleged criticisms hurled at the American woman and this country last Friday when she spoke before the Capital Division, Woman's National Farm and Garden Association.

Spotlight speaker during the "Celebrity Interview Hour," Lady Astor was primed with epigrammatic answers for all press quaries. Referring to a newspaper story that Mrs. George Mesta, society leader, marched out when Lady Astor deplored American advertisements, the Virginian - born beauty retorted, "I doubt it she did. Suppose she had walked out, who cares?"

Lady Astor deplored the trend of American journalism to overemphasize comics, gossip columns, crime news and party trivia. She said that she was sorry for the newspaper women who had to write "such trash."

Lady Astor termed the Christian Science Monitor "the most perfect paper in the United States." In that paper you see no sin, sickness, disease or divorce," she declared, adding, "There's nothing in Great Britain that can touch it."

West Not Isolationist

Here's a sample of the Astor wit as revealed by a variety of questions and answers:

Q. Lady Astor, you have been visiting "grass roots" country. Do you think there is more isolationism in the West than in the East?

A. That's a lie. The East is not separated from the West. I didn't find any isolationism in Kansas or Iowa.

Q. Is it true that the United States is more frightened of war than Great Britain?

A. Nobody can be more apprehensiv eof war than Great Britain.

Q. Do you think that the people of Europe are as afraid of United States imperialism as Henry Wallace stated?

A. I think it's true of the company Wallace kept, but nobody else. Even the Labor people were shocked at the criticisms he hurled against the United States.

Play Up the Good

During her remarks, Lady Astor stated that the thought papers should play up the good in other countries instead of emphasizing the the bad. When asked what good she would write about Russia, she said, "Only their program to wipe out illiteracy."

Recalling a visit with Stalin, Lady Astor said she asked the Premier when he was going to change the Czarist program of shooting people without benefit of trials. In "comparison to the brutality of the Communists, the Czars were like sweet, loving mothers in Russia," she asserted.

Lady Astor said that George Bernard Show was the first to congratulate Lenin on the success of the revolution in Russia, adding, "Shaw still thinks he is a Communist. But never have I seen a man more worried about losing his assets."

Club Hears Statehood Plea For Alaska

"Alaskan statehood is vitally essential to the future defense and economic development of this hemisphere," declared Governor of Alaska Ernest H. Gruening, yesterday. Speaking at the Woman's National Democratic Club's luncheon, he said that in 1939 one old fort was the entire defense of the territory. "The situation is not much different now—the defenses are inadequate and outmoded," he explained, reminding his audience that the islands of Attu and Kiska were the only parts of America occupied by the enemy during World War II.

Governor Gruening said that the people of Alaska consider Statehood imperative in order to develop the country and to end existing discriminations, in federal aid for schools, transportation, agricultural experiments, conservation of fisheries and other resources.

"Before World War II there were no airstrips or landing fields in Alaska, he continued." "Only in 1940 was Alaskan and American aviation linke dtogether, despite the fact it's the shortest route to the Orient."

Other needed improvements for Alaska include stipulated living wages for the commissioners who now must exist on fees; expert advice for farmers, the same as that given by the Agriculture and Extension Departments here, according to Gruening.

Mary Haworth's Mail

Agnostic Mother Feels Absolute Revulsion, Inexplicable Dread, as She Starts Reading Lord's Prayer to Child at Family's Urging

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: Please help me organize my chaotic thinking. I have a precocious three-year-old and quite suddenly members of my family have come to the conclusion that religious training is in order and that I am shirking my duty in leaving this undone.

It is my personal opinion that Kit is still too young to be suddenly swung into the burdens of religion and religious education; but tonight I sat down with a copy of the Lord's Prayer and read it aloud, with Kit repeating the words after me.

As we progressed, I felt absolute revlusion for the thing I was doing; even horror at the words I was having her repeat and parrot. My very protective instincts were aroused. I felt that somehow I must check some dreadful calamity. Why this reaction?

I have no religious creed; only a philosophy born of hard knocks, as my upbringing was neither conventional nor happy. Experience has taught me generosity of mind, a form of humility, a degree of personal integrity and some understanding of others.

Shrinks From Prayer As Form of Weakness

I SHUDDER at prayer, even despise it (I think) as a form of weakness. I believe that saying "I will be good" is more effective than praying "Help me be good." And while I respect the things Jesus stood for, and his weight in anchoring so-called Christian civilization, I have no more belief in His divinity than that of any other prophet.

I hope you know that I would not tell my child my unbeliefs; but I crawl at the thought of lying to her. If she were older and no pressure were being exerted by my family, I think I would teach her a simple credo of honesty, kindliness, loyalty to self and others; resolve to do one's best always, etc.—as I do want her to believe in SOMETHING.

I don't say the things I believe are best. I may be entirely wrong; I don't know. I only know that I haven't an aptitude for blind (or should I say undoubting) faith. However, it has done me no particular good, being as I am; and I cannot take chances with my child.

I want to give Kit all the benefits of conventional education; a normal childhood with normal beliefs and all the things people must have to live peacefully in a conventional world. How can I do this? C. G.

Woman's Credo Is Half Right

DEAR C. G.: You are a product of the school of hard knocks; and in effect your credo is this:

1. Self-help is the only form of help there is. In the ultimate sense, spiritually, this is true; but true self-help consists in knowing and doing the will of God; or discerning His laws and abiding by them.

2. You believe that security depends on behaving "well," to gain others' respect or esteem; acting in terms of copybook virtues that make you reliable, predictable, an open book, useful to others and, to that extent, socially "safe." This is delusinary doctrine; a matter of building on sand. All is facade: there is no indestructible foundation.

Further, you believe that experience has vested you with generosity of mind, humility, personal integrity, some understanding of others. But by and large your story (here much condensed) indicates that these attributes, taken in order, have other meanings, to-wit:

1. Generosity of mind—numbed critical faculty, loss of direction and loss of "fight," often dissembled as tolerance. 2. Humility—inferiority feelings. 3. Personal integrity—compulsive disposition to "do right" as per authoritarian decree, while deeply repressing valid ideas, feelings, etc., indigenous to yourself. 4. Understanding—a tendency to read your emotions into others' behavior.

Gets Lightning Glimpse of Lack

NOW, about your panic while reading the Lord's Prayer to your child and hearing her "pray." This was a volcanic stirring of deeply repressed neurotic material, brought into focus by the situation described; and far too entrenched and complex to admit of decoding without analytic guidance.

However, it seems the essential pattern has to do with consistent confusion, outrage and defeat in dealing with authority—especially that "fond" variety which presumably "knows best."

In that instance you felt revulsion for what you were doing; but what were you doing? Praying? No. You were bowing to family dictate "doing right" per their definition, wholly without your soul's consent but trying to make like your feings and judgment assented.

Overtly you were feigning "loyalty to self and others," while subjectively you were madly resentful of family pressure and sick about your "tolerant" surrender to it: and the conflict sparked a lightning-flash of dread, which verged on awareness that to be without positive faith—i.e., informed vigorous purpose—and positive integrity is to be helpless and threatened indeed. And your fear for the child was greater even than your self-concern.

You want to give Kit a normal childhood with normal beliefs, and it is normal to sense the operation of spiritual force in life. But due to a punitive history you've lost that awareness and cannot regain it via sectarian paths, you say. So, for advice perhaps Thomas Troward's writings may guide you back to the Kingdom of Heaven, which according to Jesus "is within." Published by Robert M. McBride Co., New York City, Troward's two best-known books are "The Creative Process in the Individual" and "The Edinburgh Lectures on Mental Science."

Lovely Sally DeMarco Says Dancing Fines Down Figure

Dimitri Wolkonsky

THE tawny golden and brown tones of a leopard's spots are reproduced in this unique dance frock worn by Sally DeMarco, petite dancer who is a guest at the Shoreham Hotel this week. She and her dancing partner husband, Tony, have just completed a two weeks' engagement in the hotel's Blue Room. Made of organza, the dress is one of several originals designed by Traina-Norell for Sally. With it she wears a necklace and earrings by Nettie Rosenstein. Traina-Norell gowns are available at Julius Garfinckel & Co.

Lithe and lovely Sally DeMarco of the famous dancing team thinks women can find fun, good figures, poise and grace—while the band plays on. "Besides being one of the most pleasant forms of exercise," our talented authority said, "ballroom dancing is also one of the best. It develops grace while slimming off the inches."

For proof, she offered her own measurement changes after taking up ballroom dancing as a profession. "I never really had to worry about my size," she explained, "but dancing fined down my figure—1½ inchs off the waist, ½ inch off the calf, 1 inch off the thigh, and a full inch off the hips." Slim through the midriff, willowy round the waist, Sally gives the right look to he New Look.

So for those of you who would achieve a spare midriff and a willowy waist and banish the middle age spread forevermore, our favorite ballroom dancer obligingly swung through a few new-look specials.

Midriff and waist slimmer—stand, legs well apart, body bent gracefully to one side, one arm arched overhead, the other parallel to it at side. Swing down, around in front, over to opposite side, back as far as possible, and around again . . . using the waist as a pivot. Following through with the arms, our authority said, gives an extra slimming pull and makes for grace and willowiness. Fine—we might as well go after grace and streamlines at the same time.

Now for the hips—it's Sally's theory that an ounce of prevention can stave off pounds of middle age spread, and there's no excuse for women succumbing to hips. Two good preventives—lie flat on floor and raise and lower alternate legs. Like this . . raise leg up, move it out to side, back to position, and down. Repeat with left leg, and so on. Now stand up and kick . . . back and forth as far as possible. "It musn't be done haphazardly," Sally emphasized. "In every exercise, good form should be practiced. When kicking, tighten hip muscles and point the toes.

To make exercises really count, our authority said: Get in good posture before starting—don't let the body flop around . . . Think about what you're doing . . . Exercise rhythmically—hit a good pace and maintain it . . . Keep going until you feel you've exerted real energy—10 to 15 minutes is good for beginners . . . Exercise in front of a full-length mirror if possible and consciously try to make movements graceful.

Then we were back on Mrs. DeMarco's favorite subject—dancing. "So many people are taking lessons these days," she pointed out, "they're not embarrassed about it anymore. While it's wonderful to begin dancing when you're a child, it's never too late.

How to Keep Griddle Clean

What can I do to a cast iron griddle to keep pancakes from sticking? I have used no abrasives on it. The iron is as I bought it with the exception of a dark spot in the center where I tried to cook on it? W. E. B.

Did you season the griddle before using? This is necessary with any cast iron utensil. Wash it first, then scour with a mild household cleansing powder until lacquer coating is entirely removed. Wash and dry thoroughly. Apply a liberal coating of salad oil or unsalted fat to the inside of the utensil. Set over very low heat for two to three hours. Rub fat around utensil every 15 or 20 minutes. Wipe grease out. Wash in hot soapsuds. Rinse and dry thoroughly. For several weeks, rub unsalted fat on the interior each time the griddle is used because "seasoning" is a cumulative process and takes time to develop. For regular care of the griddle, wash in hot soapsuds after each use and rinse well. Use baking soda in the last rinse because alkaline solutions of this sort retard rusting. Be sure utensil is thoroughly dry before putting it away or it will rust.

Do you advise using a furniture wax or a hard automobile wax on the outside of a chest and crib to preserve its finish? Both pieces of furniture have hand-painted figures. The furniture is blond wood. D. J. M.

Either cream wax or the type of automobile wax you suggest in a color to match your furniture would be excellent as a protective coating. Be sure the furniture is clean, then apply two or three thin coats of the wax. Allow each coat to dry thoroughly before buffing.

Do you have a recipe for a very buttery cornmeal stick? All the recipes I have call for a quarter cup of butter or shortening and do not produce a very buttery or moist stick. I. D.

Has any reader a good recipe of this type she will share with I. D.?

I am interested in obtaining several first grade readers and other books containing interesting stories which would be suitable for an adult learning to read. Can you also give me suggestions as to where they can be obtained? 66 6 B. E.

The Adult Education Office of the District of Columbia Public Library can be very helpful to you in this regard. I suggest that you call Mrs. Helen Steinbarger there for suggestions about books. These can be borrowed from the library.

Many thanks to readers who turned in suggestions for M. K. on where to obtain goose feathers and down: These have all been forwarded to her.

Attention H. E. H.: Several readers have sent in suggestions for you on making a crocheted sleeveless sweater for a boy. If you will send us your name and address, they will be forwarded to you.

Can you tell me how to set the color in a cotton wash dress? I have tried salt and it hasn't helped. K. P. Y.

Clothing experts of the United States Department of Agriculture say that neither salt nor vinegar is effective in setting the color of fabrics at home. Rinsing cloth with these is just a waste of salt, vinegar, and time. About the only thing you can do to keep colored materials from fading is always to wash them carefully in lukewarm water and dry in the shade. It's a good idea to check labels when you buy washable materials or clothing (though not all such merchandise is labeled) and buy color fast goods whenever possible.

Can you give me the name of a booklet about rugs—what to watch when buying one, how to take care of a rug, etc.? I. D.

A booklet on this subject, entitled "Better Buymanship, Use, and Care of Floor Coverings," can be obtained by sending 5c to Department of Research, 919 North Michigan Avenue, Chicago 11, Ill. Ask for booklet number 10.

Do you know where I can buy either black or blue tissue paper, sometimes recommended for packing away white evening dresses, etc. I have been unable to find a store that sells it. A. M.

Stationery sections of department stores often carry such paper. They have not had very much of it in recent years, since paper supplies have been short. However, several local stores say they expect to get it in soon.

Suggestions sent in by J. E. F., F. E. B., F. I. W. and E. Y. have all been forwarded to readers for whom they were intended. Many thanks for your helpfulness.

I have some old-fashioned silver sherbets with a low foot. A regular 10-inch salad plate looks rather large for them. I wonder if it is correct to use a smaller plate for serving them—say a 6 or 7-inch plate. When serving ice cream and cake should I put the cake on the same dish on which the sherbets stand, or should I have a second plate for the cake? M. M.

Most salad plates are 8 inches in width, with dinner plates about 10 inches, luncheon plates 9 or 9½ inches and bread and butter 5 to 7 inches. As to which to use under the sherbet glasses, select the ones which look the best. Serve cake on the same plate on which the sherbets are placed.

I have an ugly chest of drawers—varnished mahogany—which I would like to paint a light color and then decorate. It would be very difficult to remove the present finish. Could I sand it slightly, apply a coat of aluminum paint, then proceed with two or more coats of light paint? M. K. B.

It would be a good idea to wipe furniture with a cloth saturated with turpentine to remove all oil or furniture polish before sanding. If wax has been used, repeat treatment several times. Then sand lightly with No. 2/0 or No. 3/0 sandpaper to dull the gloss and provide adhesion. Dust off well before painting. The application of several coats of light paint will be sufficient to cover the dark finish without using aluminum paint.

Fashions Delicate Flowers From Gold and Silver Metal

A collection of gold and silver flowers, reproduced in exquisite detail, went on display yesterday in the silver department of Julius Garfinckel & Co.

Wonders of nature, from Cape Cod pine to delicate baby orchids, fashioned in the gleaming metals, are included in the exhibit which is the handiwork of Dr. Ariel Millais of Providence, R. I. A prominent jewelry designer, Dr. Millais completed several years of research to find the secret process of "transmutation" which catches even the worm holes in a piece of tree bark.

Silver craftsmen and botanists joined the many visitors at the exhibit's opening yesterday. One young woman, who is attending a class for silversmiths, picked up one especially fragile rose and exclaimed, "It's an exact reproduction, even to the velvet-like texture of the petals. How does he do it?"

Process Is Secret

Although that question goes unanswered, visitors may learn this much. Key to the secret process is an alchemic term, transmutation. This is a process which permits changing a specimen from its original form, or base, into precious or semiprecious metals. In this case, live flowers are transmuted into sterling silver or gold.

Dr. Millais' process does not stop with mere transmutation. His flowers have been stylized, and wrought into many designs. He has fashioned pins and earrings of gold marigolds, silver gardenias and gold lily of the valley. Pine logs and cones have been used in making a handsome desk set. Cigarette boxes and pill boxes have been topped with gardenias or roses.

No two flowers can be alike. Hence each piece is as though it were signed by the designer himself, thus constituting a collector's item.

Pieces Can Be Cleaned

Many of the pieces, such as the gardenias, could be duplicated by some other process, but never in one piece, according to the designer.

The question asked by most visitors is, "How do you clean these delicate pieces?"

Answer is, "Just like you do any other piece of fine silver."

Despite the fragile look of the flowers, they are quite strong. A tooth brush or any other small brush may be used, even on the pine needles.

Although Dr. Millais has been developing his process for almost 20 years, he has only been producing jewelry and objects of ornamentation for the past six months, an assistant said.

Dr. Millais is a graduate of Columbia University and did undergraduate work at Oxford. He became interested in gems and jewelry early in his life, and has made a special study of sixteenth and eighteenth century designs.

Sheer Woolens Good for Summer

Summer sheer woolens and worsteds are here to stay. The sheers are 3 and 4 ounces and they vary from finest crepes and nun's veiling types to heavier weights that combine very light tweeds with stripes of tissue-like worsted in new and extremely smart designs—for little two-piece bodice and skirt dresses and for suits with little jackets nipped in at the waist with fitted, flared, pleated or ruffled peplums.

Many of these sheers are pleated and lace-trimmed for afternoon wear and others are full, worn over silk petticoats.

So much may be said for these sheer wool dresses—cool in summer because they are by very nature of their construction air-conditioned—and then there is the delicate color, the fine nuances that are not so easily dyed in other fabrics.

Now for suits, a wool shantung, certainly not warmer than silk shantung, and it keeps its shape and is resistant to perspiration—in fact absorbing moisture instead of holding it and wrinkling—is the newest fabric.

Sheer woolens will begin with Easter and carry on into summer.

Last-Minute Dramatics Fail To Hide Lewis' Costly Flop

By J. A. Livingston

WHEN Senator Taft first heard from a group of reporters that Speaker Martin of the House of Representatives and one of his corivals for the Republican presidential nomination had stepped in as peacemaker in the coal strike, he chuckled and then remarked offhandedly that John L. Lewis is quite a character. He always seems able to pull a dramatic gesture at the last minute.

Livingston

That's Lewis all right. When he's up against something, he'll find a way to squirm, turn, and becloud the facts. That's what he is doing in this case. Wanting to save face from a contempt charge, he got Martin to intervene.

Superficially, the calling off of the strike makes Martin look good—a great statesman who can deal with Lewis.

But the superficial didn't go in Federal Judge Goldsborough's court Monday. When Welly K. Hopkins, counsel for the United Mine Workers told Judge Goldsborough that Speaker Martin had called Lewis to his office and that Lewis, like the good citizen he is, went, Judge Goldsborough wanted to know what that had to do with the case before the court.

HOPKINS went on to explain that as the result of that meeting, Senator Styles Bridges (R., N. H.) had agreed to serve as a trustee of the Health and Welfare Fund, that Bridges had worked on a pension plan over the weekend, that a plan had been agreed to, and that, therefore, the dispute with the coal operators had ended. He pleaded that "no strike had ever been called, encouraged, recommended, or suggested directly or indirectly" by Lewis, that therefore Lewis couldn't be in contempt.

Hopkins then read a long back-to-work telegram Lewis sent to district officers of the union. When he got to the sentence, "your voluntary cessation of work should now be terminated and your protest ended," laughter shattered the judicial stillness of the courtroom. Judge Goldsborough then wanted to know how it was that on March 12, when Lewis wrote the miners that the contract was dishonored, they had voluntarily quit work, but now that Lewis had sent a telegram, they were going to return to work. He asked:

"Is the court to understand that when the miners quit work without an order from Lewis on March 12, Lewis had lost control of his union, but somehow in between and as the result of this telegram today he has regained control?"

HOPKINS argued that the walkout was a voluntary protest on the part of the miners, but that now the reason for the protest had been dissolved. Therefore, the union felt certain the miners would return to their jobs. Hopkins asked for dismissal of the case. Judge Goldsborough would not hear of it. He insisted a trial must be held to determine whether there had or had not been a strike.

So, despite the drama of the last-minute Martin-Bridges rescue, Lewis has not escaped the clutches of the court. Moreover, Lewis got less out of Bridges on pensions than he was offered by Thomas E. Murray, the first neutral trustee, who resigned when he was unable to get Lewis or Ezra Van Horn, the other trustee, to agree to any plan.

Murray proposed a $100-a-month pension to miners 60 years old who had served 20 years, but he insisted on a trial-and-error priority system. Miners who retired after July 1, 1947, would get pensions first; then if any money was left, miners who retired between July 1, 1942 and July 1, 1947, would be paid. Then came miners who had retired before July, 1942. Lewis said it wouldn't help miners who needed help most—the old men who had retired many years before.

BUT HERE'S what Lewis got from Bridges: $100 a month for all miners 62 years old who had served 20 years and were working on or after March 28, 1946. So, the eligibility age is raised by 2 years and the oldsters so dear originally to Lewis' heart were forgotten entirely.

So, Lewis' latest triumph as a labor leader reads as follows:

1. He cost each miner four weeks' work at $75 a week. Total wages lost: 100 million dollars.

2. He denuded the Nation's coal stockpiles—possibly in preparation for another strike in July.

3. He slowed down freight and passenger transport and production generally.

4. He established that he's vulnerable to the Taft-Hartley Act. Martin and Bridges may take bows. But the citation for contempt really made Lewis move. He was fined $710,000 once, and doesn't want to be nicked again.

5. He took less than he could have gained without a strike.

Chicago Grain

Chicago, April 12 (AP).—Wheat futures weakened today after getting off to a flying start. Corn was off with wheat, but oats showed some independent strength.

Early wheat buying was based on the Government's announced upward revision in the export goal. Profit-taking developed quickly on the upturn, however, and demand fell off. Prices slumped about 3 to 4 cents a bushel from the early peak at times.

There was a brief rally near mid-session on the announcement the Government had increased its maximum buying price for wheat 1½ cents a bushel, Chicago basis. This rally was short-lived, however.

Wheat closed 1½ to 2 cents lower than the previous finish. May 2.49@2.49¼; corn was off 1¼ to 2¼ cents, May 2.26¾@2.26½, and oats were ⅛ down to ½ up, May 1.15⅝@1.15⅝.

The early upturn was based on the announcement by Secretary of Agriculture Anderson, after the close Saturday, that an additional 16,000,000 bushels of cash wheat had been allocated for export, bringing the total to 466,000 bushels.

Teachers Insurance Assets at New High

The company reported a total of 87 million dollars of life insurance in force December 31. Premiums to purchase retirement annuities last year aggregated $18,620,954, a 24 per cent increase over the $15,010,650 in the previous year.

Teachers insurance, a nonprofit corporation, was organized in 1918 by the Carnegie Foundation for the Advancement of Teaching and was endowed by the Carnegie Corp. Its purpose is to issue annuities and life insurance to educational personnel in the United States and Canada.

New York Cotton

New York, April 12 (AP).—Cotton futures registered gains of 65 cents to $2.20 a bale in active dealings today. All delivering made new season's highs, with the May, 1948, delivery reaching 37.23 cents a pound.

Following early gains extending to $1.80 a bale, the market moved lower on considerable profit-taking, but a late rush of trade buying sharply reversed the trend as offerings proved scarce. Trade buying was confined to domestic mill and export accounts. Commission houses bought new crop months on favorable export prospects and the opening spot cotton situation. There was a good deal of switching from May into the later months, anticipating first notice day April 27.

D. C. Deposits Off 8 Million In 3 Months

By S. Oliver Goodman

Washington bank deposits declined $8,218,000 in the first three months this year, according to a compilation by the Federal Reserve Bank of Richmond.

Deposits of the 17 local Federal Reserve members totaled $918,703,000 as of March 31, 1948, compared with $926,921,000 on December 31, 1947. Two Washington banks are not members of the Reserve system; therefore their figures are not included in the Richmond bank's report.

Loans and discounts of the 17 local institutions showed an increase of $10,219,000 for the first period, totaling $216,344,000 as of March 31. Real estate loans amounted to $67,858,000, an upturn of $2,426,000.

Demand deposits on the latest date aggregated $732,388,000, against $737,825,000 on December 31, 1947. Time deposits dipped to $186,315,000, from $189,096,000.

The savings drop was attributed largely to heavy withdrawels because of March Federal income tax payments.

Upon the outcome will hinge whether Washington will receive gas to meet greatly increased requirements. Proposed new facilities include construction of 269 miles of gas line from Clendenin, W. Va., to a connection with a mainline at Rockville, Md. Estimated overall cost of the new pipeline is $20,649,600.

One on the Aisle—

'Inside' Story's Mostly Lillie

By Richard L. Coe

WITH $300,000 ALREADY in the till of New York's Century Theater over two weeks before its opening, what has "Inside U. S. A." got to worry about?

This is the Howard Deitz-Arthur Schwartz revue "suggested by John Gunther's famous book," as the program puts it. The Deitz-Schwartz combination in merrier years gave us such revues as "Three's a Crowd," "The Band Wagon," "Flying Colors" and "At Home Abroad," all of blessed memory.

The stars are the incomparable Beatrice Lillie and the wry Jack Haley. The production itself has the suave assurance of the song combine's previous hits; record albums of the songs already are on the stands and you're probably whistling "Rhode Island is Famous for You" already.

The thought of such flavors is enough to whet the revue fancier's palate, a promise that carries a threat of danger. The danger here lies in dragging in the Gunther book. The way I get it, the revue was written first and then someone got the idea of linking the sketches with the Gunther title. Like "Seven Lively Arts," the Billy Rose revue, also with Miss Lillie, which got its theme from the Seldes book, this is a nice theory but it doesn't necessarily work out. "Inside U. S. A." would be a better show under any other title. But the title, plus Miss Lillie, has three months' worth of tickets sold before the New York opening, and that's what you call good business.

Saturday matinee in Philadelphia's Shubert Theater, the Quaker cititizens lapped up every song, joke, line, dance and gesture of "Inside U. S. A." No matter what she said, every time Miss Lillie opened her noble trap the house went wild with joy. It was a remarkable tribute to a lady who has come to personify sophistication.

Now She's an Indian

The fact is, however, that Miss Lillie's sketches are not the best sketches she has had (it seems to be a habit of reviewers to point this out about the Lillie material of every revue). In an effort to cover the States, Sketch Writer Arnold Auerbach has seen Miss Lillie as a frustrated movie fan from Ohio and a Pittsburgh choral director. Lyricist Dietz and Composer Schwartz have set her up as a futile quilt designer at a Wisconsin fair, as a queen of the New Orleans Mardi Gras and—happiest inspiration of all—as a caustic Indian of Albuquerque. This number, which she sings with Haley, is the best of her material, "We Won't Take It Back."

The most typically Lillie sketch finds her as a superstitious, talkative maid in the dressing room of an actress on an opening night. Lillie is really wonderful as "Guladys"—who is up to her ears in theatrical superstition. "Friend of mine, Millie," she confides to the star, "dreamed of Gilbert Miller last night. And—the last time Millie dreamed of Gilbert Miller, the Normandie caught fire."

Yes, that is Lillie at her best. There is nothing better. The sketch is by Moss Hart and was dumped from "Seven Lively Arts" before it opened in New York.

That this old one is the best sketch in "Inside U. S. A." is one reflection of the troubles a revue can come across. Jack Haley's best chance comes in Auerbach and Arnold Horwitt's mockery of the latest sleeping gadgets. This one's in pantomime and Haley does it brilliantly. Horwitt, by the way, wrote most of the sketches in "Make Mine Manhattan," a revue which comments on current oddities with more bite and variety than "Inside U. S. A."

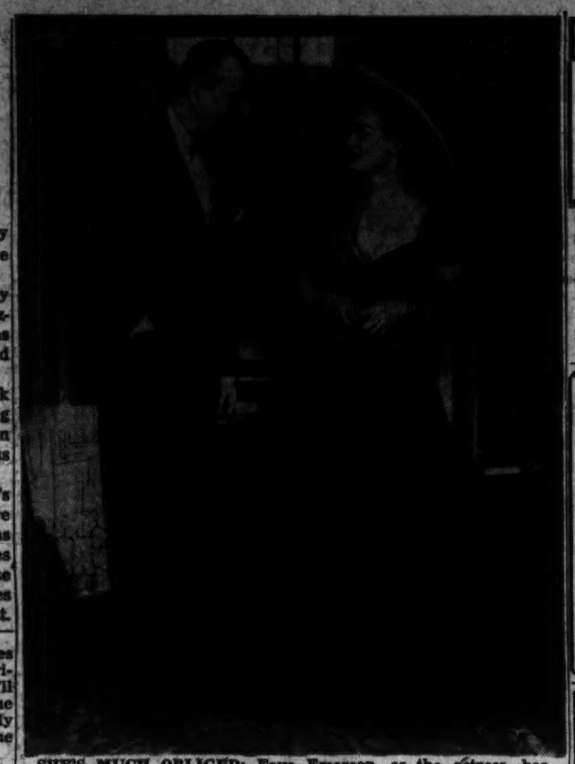
A Tip-Top Score

I wouldn't want you to get the idea that "Inside U. S. A." isn't pleasant. Its score has more good tunes than any of the new ones this season, and, besides the tribute to Rhode Island, I think you'll also be hearing more of "Blue Grass," "Haunted Heart," "My Gal Is Mine Once More" and the title number.

At the moment, too, Miss Lillie is working on two new numbers, one of which finds her as a mermaid. Even if it isn't the comment on things American the Gunther title might lead you to expect, "Inside U. S. A." is a slick, handsome revue with the likeable Haley and the brilliant Lillie on hand to make you rejoice they're alive.

The revue continues in Philadelphia this week and next and opens at New York's Century Theater Thursday night the 29th.

THE PALACE is running a "sneak preview" Wednesday night at 11:15; the picture's a mystery, 'pun my word . . . Mail orders now for the National's return of "The Red Mill." In the Victor Herbert musical will be a somewhat different cast line-up than that of the early fall visit: Buster West, Pat Rooney, jr., Fifi O'Orsay, Edward Dew and Gloria De Werd . . . The Hiser-Bethesda is programming a 15-unit "Cartoon Carnival" Saturday, with three performances: 9::30 and 11:15 a. m. and 1 p. m. . . . Lucy Monroe is in town, singing at Walter Reed, Mount Alto and the Naval Medical Center, at the start of a 39-week tour of Veterans' Hospital Camp Shows . . . Also touring the vet circuit is Josephine Stein, who's spending two weeks here doing her sketches of hospitalized men.



SHE'S MUCH OBLIGED: Faye Emerson, as the actress, has reason to thank Louis Calhern, as the obliging playwright, in the revival of Ferenc Molnar's comedy, "The Play's the Thing," which last night opened a run at the National prior to its New York opening.

The "Volpone" Review by Richard L. Coe, as it appeared in The Washington Post!

No Inhibitions About 'Volpone'

By Richard L. Coe

"VOLPONE," at the Hippodrome, is a deliciously amusing farce that could never have come from the careful caterers of Hollywood.

As a matter of fact, it comes to the New York ave. cinema by a most circuitous route. It stems from a comedy written in 1606 by Shakespeare's pal, Ben Jonson; back in the late '20s it was adapted into frisky French style by Stefan Zweig and done in New York by the Theater Guild, a version still acted by the Comedie Francaise. Several years ago Zweig and Jules Romains polished it up for the French films with juicy parts for the late Harry Baur and Louis Jouvet. This is the sardonic triumph which finally has reached our dilatory Capital.

The story tells of a sly, rich Venetian trader, Volpone, who pretends he's dying to watch the effects on his friends. His closest friend, Mosca, is in on the joke, and with the promise of Volpone's wealth as bait inviegles one man to give gold to Volpone, another to disinherit his son and a third to offer him his wife. The idea of becoming Volpone's wealthy widow also lures the outstanding fille de joie of Venice.

"This leads to some bitterly amusing scenes in the "dying" man's bedrom and a titivating trial scene,' which follows an upset when the disinherited son walks in on Volpone and the baffled, borrowed wife. The three hopeful inheritors sacrifice their public face to insure their greedy ends, but Mosca, the Fly, outwits them all, including Volpone, the Fox.

Broad, Brilliant Acting

There is a rushing, grandiose style in the telling of Jonson's old tale, immensely brightened by the performers. Baur rolls his eyes, squeaks and groans with brilliant aplomb, and Jouvet is coldly aloof to the devilry he achieves. And Charles Dullin, as the money-lender, has a magnificent scene licking his chops over the thought that, old as he is, he's seen the deaths of most of his friends. His cackling is sheer magnificence.

All this lustry, uninhibited behavior is refreshing stuff to watch, particularly to anyone who gets regular doses of the nonoffensive niceties of our homegrown product. The English achieve some of the rowdy force of the soundtrack, but their idiomatic phrasing still suggests that importers of foreign films ought to give far more attention to this linqual key than they do. Its broad, darting characterizations and its lusty, cynical humor make "Volpone" an adventure to relish.

Govans Club Backs Bolton In Baltimore

Baltimore, April 12 (AP).—State Senator William P. Bolton, seeking the Democratic nomination for Congress from the Second District, has the support of the Govans Democratic Club today.

The organization threw its weight behind the Baltimore County legislator with an attack on James H. (Jack) Pollack, Fourth District political leader.

Pollack's "invesion" of the Govans area—in the Second District—has aroused Democratic leaders there, the group said.

It noted that Pollack's motive for the alleged invasion was "not the welfare of the neighborhood but his own political aggrandizement."

Pollack is supporting the Second District incumbent, Representative Hugh Meade.

The Fourth District leader, meantime, said it was "unfortunate that some of the coalition group have not seen fit to openly espouse the cause of Leo H. McCormick.

McCormick, former State OPA director, is the Pollack-supported candidate for the Democratic nomination from the Fourth District.

Oath Requirement Expected

Richmond, Va., April 12 (AP).—Democratic candidates in Virginia probably will have to take the usual party oath this year.

Mayor Horace H. Edwards of Richmond, the party's Democratic State chairman, told Hartin A. Hutchinson in answer to a query, that unless the Virginia party convention provides otherwise, all Democratic candidates will be required to take the oath. Hutchinson is the leader of the anti-Byrd faction of the party.

Hutchinson said Edwards "hedged" in his reply and added: "What the people of Virginia want to know is whether or not the candidates will be required to pledge themselves to support all Democratic candidates, including those for President and vice president."

Under the State's new anti-Truman election law, Democratic candidates and voters may be faced with the choice of supporting Virginia Democratic nominees for President and vice president if they be different from the candidates chosen by the national party convention.

Yates Seeks Senate Seat

Richmond, Va., April 12 (AP).—E. Floyd Yates, member of the House of Delegates from Chesterfield and Powhatan counties, announced today his candidacy for the State Senate from the Ninth Senatorial District.

Earlier, Lynwood H. Wilson, Crewe attorney, said he would be a candidate for the district Senate seat, left vacant by the recent death of Dr. W. D. Kendig of Kenbridge. The district includes the counties of Powhatan, Amelia, Nottoway, Lunenburg and Prince Edward.

Five Republicans Run

Charleston, W. Va., April 12 (AP).—Five Republicans sought the nomination for Governor of West Virginia today as incoming mails swelled the candidate list for the May 11 primary.

A rerord 61 anoitions were made yesterday as letters postmarked before midnight of the April 10 fising deadline arrived at the Secretary of State's office.

Newest aspirant for Governor was Paul R. Maness, Republican member of the House of Delegates from Preston County.

A Methodist minister since 1930, Maness resides at Arthurdale. Former Mayor Paul O. Fiedler of Huntington added his name Saturday to a list which already included Senate Minority Leader Herbert S. Boreman of Parkersburg, former State Supreme Court Judge Haymond Maxwell of Clarksburg and former State Auditor Edgar C. Lawson of Charleston.

Easton Gas Stations To Curb Pollution

Annapolis, Md., April 12 (AP).—Filling station operators in Easton have agreed to help curb pollution in a stream flowing through the northeastern part of town, John G. Walters of the State Water Pollution Control Commission said today.

Commission chemists checked the stream last week after a complaint by Town Engineer William H. Corkran, jr. The stream runs into the Tred Avon River, which also is affected by oil pollution, the investigators said.

They reported that oil from some filling stations in Easton had been dumped into storm sewers, which empty into the stream.

Filling station operators plan to remove oil in drums, burn or sell it.

Storm Damages Ordnance Depot

Richmond, Va., April 12 (AP).—A twister-type storm did extensive damage to the Government's Blue Grass ordnance depot near here today, but no one was hurt.

Col. John W. Orcutt, commanding officer at the big depot 3 miles from here, said seven permanent buildings and five ammunition sheds were seriously damaged, while eight other buildings were damaged to a lesser extent.

He said he could not estimate the extent of the damage in money, but added that it appeared to be be considerable. Electric wires were blown down but there was no fire.

County Has First Strike

Moorefield, W. Va., April 12 (AP).—More than 60 of the 70 employes of J. Natwick & Co., flooring manufacturers, went on strike here today in a dispute over wages and paid holidays. It is the first strike ever reported for Hardy County.

About 40 pickets crowded around the ntrances to the plant and only a half dozen workers passed through the line, union and company representatives agreed.

Study of Trace Elements in Food Begins

Baltimore, April 12 (AP).—A man who gave $500,000 for the purpose of finding out how and why tiny traces of minerals affect the world's food values sat down with 15 scientists today to begin the study.

John Lee Pratt of Fredericksburg, Va., who described himself as a "dirt farmer from Virginia," is the donor of the fund that set the international "conference on trace elements" into motion.

The "trace elements" are minute quantities of such minerals as copper, cobalt, boron and manganese.

Pratt told the conference, made up of scientists from the United States, England and Canada, his idea for the research came about this way:

Ten years ago his alfalfa crops were poor and no remedy at hand was any help. The addition of a small amount of boron to the soil solved the problem.

Five years ago the Pratt cattle herd was "losing too many calves." A visit from a Texas herdsman brought out that a man from Australia tried giving small amounts of cobalt and copper. Pratt tried this and it was successful.

Pratt said these incidents led to the belief that a further study of trace elements might have a real effect upon soil, plants, animals and men all over the world.

The fund for the study is known as the Pratt-McCollum fund. Dr. A. V. McCollum of the Johns Hopkins University is a noted nutrition authority and the discoverer of vitamins A and B.

The meeting at Johns Hopkins will continue tomorrow.

Moral Training Needed in Schools, Judge Declares

Atlantic City, N. J., April 12 (AP).—American children need moral and citizenship training in schools, Judge Walter H. Beckham of Miami, Fla., said today.

Beckham, president of the National Council of Juvenile Court Judges, sai demphasis in curbing juvenile delinquency now can be taken away from the building of playgrounds and recreation centers because of a steady improvement in physical facilities for children, he said.

"We must now reach their thinking," he said. "More emphasis must be placed on character and moral training. Eventually, we must go to the public schools and ask that every child be given moral and citizenship training."

There has been a considerable decrease in juvenile delinquency since the war, Beckham said.

Ice Pick Killing Brings 15 Years

Annapolis, Md., April 12 (AP).—Robert Jackson, 45, was sentenced to 15 years in the House of Correction today after he pleaded guilty to second degree murder.

Jackson was accused of driving an ice pick into the neck of Shelton Randall, last October 25.

Judge James Clark imposed the sentence in Anne Arundel County Court.

The judge also ordered Samuel Cannon, 61, to three years in the House of Correction when a jury convicted him of manslaughter in the death of Richard Harris, 46, last December.

Meetings on Grading Of Tobacco Scheduled

Meetings are scheduled for 8 p. m. as follows: Nanjemoy High School, April 13; La Plata High School, April 14; Glasva High School, April 15; Hughesville High School, April 16.

The meetings are being held by the Charles County Farm Bureau and the Extension Service to permit further discussion of Federal grading and support prices, preparatory to a referendum.

Rain Floods Streams In West Virginia

Charleston, W. Va., April 12 (AP).—Torrents of rain beginning about midnight sent small streams roaring from their banks in north central West Virginia today.

Thirty inches of water flooded Salem's main street and about 20 business establishments. The water began to recede a short time later.

Schools in Salem, Wallace, Wyatt and Bristol were closed as high water blocked highways. At Wallace, telephone service was interrupted when operators were forced from the switchboard.

Cab Driver's Skill Saves Life of Child at Play

"Let's say a good word for our expert cab drivers," writes Mrs. F. N. Countiss of 1731 New Hampshire ave. nw.

"Their skill transcends the mere mechanics of guiding their vehicles.

"For example, my driver yesterday was taking me downtown when he suddenly stopped his cab in the middle of the block. I couldn't figure out why.

"'See that ball rolling out there in front of us?' the hacker said by way of explanation. 'Watch and see what happens.'

"Sure enough, a child came dashing out from between two parked cars, and without paying the slightest heed to traffic, the youngster retrieved his ball. The driver turned to me and said:

"'Whenever I see a ball come rolling out into the street, I slap on my brakes. I figure there's going to be a kid about three seconds behind the ball'."

MAIL BAG

Dear Bill:

In last Saturday's paper, Donald Duck painted a sergeant's chevrons on a picture of his Civil War ancestor.

Donald painted them on with the point of the V upward, as they're now worn. But in those days the chevron was inverted, and pointed down.

Audrey Ross.
616 Longfellow st. nw.

Dear Audrey:

A good catch, but we must make allowances for Donald. After all, he's only a duck.

He doesn't even know his up from his down. Bill.

PERSONAL NOTES

Kay McDougall, Hood College, Md.: According to our records your roommate is wrong. Last year's Cherry Blossom Queen was Nancy Anderson, daughter of a Government worker.

Midshipman R. H. Richardson, United States Naval Academy, Annapolis, Md.: Thanks for the information about Anne and Dutch, but Dutch beat you to the draw by 'fessing up while your letter was in transit.

EXPLANATION

Mrs. Ella M. Adams of 4448 E st. se., wants to know why the motorman cranks up the chain in the front of the streetcar before switching from underground to overhead trolley, or vice versa.

Capital Transit explains that the clanking chain is really "a parking, or hand brake."

It is set as a precautionary measure, to prevent movement of the car, which might be injurious to the man in the pit.

HE'S A SHE

Mrs. M. A. Batnick of 2815 31st st. se. needs some help in answering a question posed by Daughter Susan, aged 4.

Susan observes that radio announcers refer to a "weatherman," but the voice that gives the forecast on the telephone belongs to a lady.

Susan doesn't want to be difficult about the matter, but she would like to know what's what.

INNOCENT CASANOVA

Mrs. Angela B. Casanova of 7915 13th st. nw. gets a lot of kidding about her name—as you might imagine.

But she says it's nothing compared to the going over her husband and son get.

During the war, the boy went down to enlist in the Marine Corps. A hard-boiled sergeant asked, "What's your name?"

"Casanova," replied the lad.

"Don't brag, kid," snapped the sergeant. "Just gimmie your name."

You can imagine the predicament in which that put the young man, because next the sergeant would be lifting an eyebrow at the news that the recruit's first initial was "A"—and then he'd probably blow a gasket on being told that the middle name (in Spanish) means "Innocent."

SUPREME PUNALTY

Punster Nate Leiderman of 6206 Georgia ave. nw. says: "They might try to give me the electric chair for my puns some day, but I wouldn't take a thing like that sitting down."

GIVE-AWAYS

"Three charming, healthy kittens, 7 weeks old; two males, one female." (Atlantic 6153).

"Three lovely puppies, 5 weeks old, cute as can be; two males and one female." (Woodley 2290).

"Two 6-week-old kittens, two 6-month-old kittens." (National 4300 and ask for Gus.)

Road to happiness

By James J. Metcalfe

The road to happiness begins . . . In front of every door . . If we are certain that we know . . . What we are looking for . . . If we are just prepared to face . . . The problems that arise . . . And do not fear the gloomy clouds . . . That gather in the skies . . . For we must have the strength and will . . . To see our efforts through . . . And we must do our part in life . . . To make our dreams come true . . . No victory is easy and . . . No goal is quickly gained . . . And prizes are not given to . . . The one who has complained . . . Our road may be a winding path . . . And it may twist and bend . . . But everlasting happiness . . . Is waiting at the end.

Washington Merry-Go-Round

Truman Sure He'll Be Nominated

By Drew Pearson

President Truman remains coolly confident that he will head the Democratic ticket this year, despite both Southern-Northern opposition.

He made this quite clear during a chat with young Representative George Smathers of Florida the other day, when Smathers, accompanied by Leonce Legendre, assistant adjutant of the American Legion, invited him to address the Legion national convention next October in Miami. Without batting an eye, Truman replied:

"I'd certainly like to be there, but I'm going to be in a reasonably hot political campaign at that time."

Because of this, he added, some people might think he was using the Legion convention as a political platform. However, when Smathers and Legendre suggested he could make a strictly nonpolitical speech, preferably on preparedness, the President promised to think it over.

In gay mood, he took a Legion service cap from his desk drawer and donned it at a jaunty angle. Pointing to the insignia, "Independence, Mo., Legion Post 21," he remarked:

"That's my real post—No. 21—though I also belong to Post 340 in Kansas City. I'd prefer to have No. 21 on my convention certificates, if that can be arranged."

Note—The President also showed his guests some of the recent gadgets he has received through the mails, including a bow tie that lights up with the slogan, "Elect Harry Truman."

Roosevelt's Grave

Franklin D. Roosevelt's grave continues to attract people from all over the world. It also continues to attract the interest of the governments of the world.

Just recently, the Chinese government founded a National Chinese Library, and has written to the Roosevelt Memorial Foundation asking for some of FDR's personal possessions, also some radio recordings of his voice, especially his speech, "Rendezvous With Destiny," and every type of book written about Roosevelt.

Another interesting request came from Liberia recently—permission to dedicate one wing of a new Liberian hospital to FDR.

Who Got to Berlin First?

Col. Alexander Jelisarov, Russian delegate on the Allied Control Council of Berlin, forgot one important fact when he boasted that the Russians alone liberated Europe and that if the British were worried about Berlin, "why didn't they get their first?"

He forgot that, three years ago today, American troops were in Potsdam, the suburbs of Berlin. Suddenly, the day after President Roosevelt's death, they were ordered out, back to the River Elbe.

The order came after vigorous, almost savage protests by the Russians claiming that the Red army, not the American Army was to occupy Berlin. This commitment apparently had been made at Yalta.

If American troops had remained in Berlin, the present dynamite-laden situation in that city might have been different.

However, though we can't turn back the clock, it is important to recall that at that time the United States was leaning over backward to cooperate with the Russians—not slapping them down as claimed by the boys around Henry Wallace.

Also, it's important to note that Stalin had laid his political plans very carefully for the future. He was supposed to take Berlin by a certain date. Instead, his offensive delayed to take Vienna—which he also wanted. Then when the American Army, pushing ahead with the sole motive of winning the war in a hurry, got to the edge of Berlin, Stalin sent one of the most savage notes in history to FDR.

Roosevelt received it the day before he died. It was answered for him later.

Senate Feud

One of the hottest Senate feuds is between two New England Republicans—Tobey of New Hampshire and Brewster of Maine. On the surface their banter may seem pleasant, but there is real bitterness beneath. They disagree on just about everything.

Tobey was presiding over the Senate Interstate Commerce Committee last week when Brewster, a member of the committee, persisted in challenging committee procedure.

"The Senator is just making a stump speech," observed the sharp-tongued Tobey. "The Senator is good at that."

"But not the equal of the Senator from New Hampshire," was Brewster's acid reply.

"I'll accept that," shot back Tobey without even batting an eye.

NEW YORK.—The sponsors of the new television series featuring current Broadway hit plays selected last Tuesday as the date for the first telecast—of "Mr. Roberts." This much-publicized debut was made to only half the television audience because April 6 was Primary Day and all the bars and grills—which have television sets—were closed.

Feike Feikema, whose "Chokecherry Tree" is out this week, is 6 feet 9. Once, in a Chicago bar during a convention, he saw Alabama's Governor, Jim Folsom. They stared at each other, and noticed they were the same height. Folsom pointed to his neck and said "17½." Feikema showed his collar label, also "17½.' Folsom put his hands at his waist and said "38." Feikema said "38." Folsom pointed to his trousers, and said "38-inch inseam." Feikema said "38-inch inseam" . . . Folsom raised his shoe and said "18" . . . Feikama pointed to his own shoes, size 17½, and said: "Okay. The beers are on me."

Max Marcin, the radio writer who created the Crime Doctor series, was so prolific that he resorted to many pen-names. When Cohan and Harris produced his show, "The House of Glass," Harris interrupted the rehearsal to take the author aside and accuse him of plagiarism. "I was just shown a short story called 'The Probationer,'" he told Marcin. "It's by a writer named Hilary Blake. It's exactly like this play of yours" . . . "I am Hilary Blake," replied Marcin. "And I'm also Christopher Wright, Creighton Tolerance and Donald Dawson. In fact, Mr. Harris, I'm even Lillian Larkin."

NEW Scientific Discoveries Used in Hair Experts' Exclusive Treatments Help You To GROW THICKER HAIR
Hopeless Cases Not Accepted

H. W. FARRELL, Trichologist

Hair Experts' Scientific Plan Allied with Nature's Functions!

Upon Nature's innate system of growth is based Hair Experts' specialized system . . . a plan that results in thicker hair NATURALLY grown and nurtured to full strength and virility with the aid of modern scientific formulae. First, the scalp is thoroughly and professionally cleansed of its dandruff or other disorders through special, gentle but effective germicides which penetrate below the skin surface to kill the source of the infection and then reopen clogged passages.

Then when the basic cause of the scalp trouble is routed, Hair Experts begin the rejuvenating treatments that start to show actual results within weeks.

Special Exclusive Laboratory Created Formulae Used ONLY by Hair Experts!

After energizing the papilla to action, and then creating a fertile "field" for that growth, Hair Experts' special formulae (scientifically created by and for them) stimuate the sub-scalp hair growth to normal, natural length, strength and thickness. Then sluggish blood circulation is normalized to flood the hair follicles with life-giving "food" for hair growth.

Delay Is Deadly! Fatal Follicle Shrinkage May Negate Any Treatments!

Once your hair begins to show these symptoms: excessive hair in the combings; weak, short hair; excessive dandruff; itchiness, etc., you can be sure that a scalp disorder is already well under way. Follicle shrinkage is fatal!

Once it has set in your chance for thicker hair is practically negligible! Come in IMMEDIATELY for a free, private scalp examination. Relax under our pleasant, professional treatments and care, and enjoy THICKER HAIR within a few months.
